THE LUDENDORFF AND VON TIRPITZ MEMOIRS

LUDENDORFF TELLS OF CRISIS THAT PRECEDED COLLAPSE OF TURKEY AND BULGARIA

Czar Ferdinand's Forces Were Refusing to Fight and the Morale of Sultan's Armies Was So Shaken Not Even German Divisions Could Hold Forces Together.

IN front of Von Gallwitz's Army Group, between St. Mihiel and the Moselle, much movement had been noticed as early as the end of August, 1918, and an American offensive seemed probable there. G. H. Q. pushed up reserves.

I discussed with the Chief of Staff of the Army Group and of Army Detachment C, which was exposed to the attack, the evacuation of the salient, which had long ago been planned and prepared. Local commanders were confident in spite of my demurs.

G. H. Q. was reluctant to evacuate the salient on account of the industrial centers lying behind it, and unfortunately did not order this step until Sept. 8. At the same time the southern front of Army Detachment C was to increase its distance from the enemy, much as had been the case with the Seventeenth Army in the middle of August. Advanced guards only were to be left in the most forward trenches.

The work of evacuation had not been carried very far, when, on Sept. 12, the attack developed between the Rupt de Mad and the Moselle, accompanied by a secondary offensive movement against the northern end of the salient on the Combres Heights. The enemy penetrated our line in both places.

On the southern sector they broke through a Prussian division, and the reserves were not sufficiently close enough up to restore the position immediately. On the Combres Heights there was an Austro-Hungarian division, which might have fought better. As early as noon the local Army Headquarters ordered the evacuation of the salient.

I was dissatisfied with myself, but also with the local command. The earlier reports indicated that the evacuation was proceeding satisfactorily, this being facilitated by the enemy not following up. I founded my official communique, which turned out later to be too favorable on these reports.

It has been said that my communiques were unreliable. They were indisputably true and they were framed in accordance with our duty to the army, the people at home and our allies. The evening communique merely described briefly the events of the day. That of midday was founded on the reports which reached G. H. Q. up to the time of my signature—generally 10:30 a. m.

I wrote them principally for the army; our soldiers had the right to have their achievement and sufferings reported. The unit, officer or man mentioned in the communique was proud of it; was it not uplifting to have one's fame announced to the world? It provided a stimulus of no mean value to the conduct of the war, and an important psychological encouragement to achieve. The people at home, too, were rightly proud to have their sons' deeds recognized.

Every Word Was Weighed.

Every word in the official communique was carefully weighed; great events were given in detail; only the most important or lesser engagements could be mentioned. In quiet times a frequent report read: "Nothing particular," or "No events of importance;" from this an antelligent reader gathered that on all parts of the wide front German men stood night and day doing their difficult duty to the fatherland with loyal devotion.

I should certainly have preferred in times of stress to have employed curt phraseology rather than to give full reports, for the events of such times were appropriate to these phrases. But a report on the Flanders battle:-"Langemarck is held," or lost, would have satisfied nobody.

Losses of ground were mentioned, if they affected the general situation. but not until no harm could be done to the troops engaged by doing so. Nobody could expect me to communicate our losses in guns and prisoners to the enemy, not even the German who think so objectively.

Not an "Iron People."

We were not the iron people, about which I was so often told in those very days. The habit of reading enemy communiques had done damage enough already. Suspicion of the report from G. H. Q. went at times so far as to cause them to be compared with enemy reports. That was typically German.

Was it not, for example, a great strategic victory for us to have held the line in Flanders in 1917, although we suffered tactical reverses, that cost us prisoners and materials of war. If I mentioned in my report that the enemy had reached our artillery lines, one could deduce the loss in prisoners and guns. Was that not sufficient? Did people wish to wallow in misery?

G. H. Q. had allowed the enemy communiques to be published, in reliance on the clear-sightedness of the German people. I had the impression later that it was a mistake. The enemy used his communiques for propaganda, and lowered our morale. A belated order forbidding the publication of these reports seemed to me even more questionable. France knew what she was doing when she forbade the publishing of our communiques, although ours were never used for propaganda.

I have mentioned that I had also to consider the effect of our official reports on our allies. This was important in our case because our allies relied entirely upon us.

One thing must be admitted, Wolff's commentaries on my reports, edited in Berlin and intended solely for the neutrals, were not happily worded. There was good reasons for the tone of these telegrams; but I stopped them, although too late, as soon as I realized the harm they did.

Admits Heavy Losses.

On the Woevre plateau, the evacuation of the salient was carried through, though with heavy losses and the Michel position was occupied. The fighting was dying down by the 13th.

According to the reports that reached me, the continuation of the offensive against the Michel position (in front of Metz) seemed probable. After the 22d the situation changed in front of Von Gallwitz's Army Group. The likelihood of an offensive here diminished and a battle on both sides of the Argonne appeared imminent.

Duke Albrecht's Army Group's sector, too (in front of Nancy) was considered in danger, but that was based rather on the conjectures of my colleagues than on reports. I, on the other hand, clung to my opinion that the development of the offensive between Rheims and the Meuse was more likely than an attack in Lorraine.

Our troops had suffered severely; their numerical strength diminished, exhaustion increased. The situation grew steadily worse, but the line held with the exception of a few weak places on the Second Army sector.

Blows Rain on His Army.

The Army Groups of the Crown Prince Rupprecht, Von Boehn and of the German Crown Prince had carried out the withdrawals from Kemmel and the Lys plain behind the Arleux-Moeuvres Canal, into the Siegfried system (the Hindenburg line) and on the Vesle. The movement went without a hitch and was completed by the Eighteenth Army, which had furthest to go, by about Sept. 7.

The armies had not fallen back everywhere to the German trenches; they manned in some places parts of the old enemy line. Everywhere the enemy followed close on our heels. They soon resumed their offensive, which developed particularly keenly between Moeuvres and Holnon (in front of Arras) against the left wing of the Seventeenth, the whole of the Second (west of Cambrai) and the right wing of the Eighteenth Army (west of St. Quentin) and between the Ailette and the Aisne against the left wing of the Ninth and the extreme right of the Seventh Army.

Fighting was very keen, but our line recovered itself, except that in the Second Army some weakness still remained. On Sept. 18 and 19, particularly severe attacks were launched on the Moeuvres-Holnon section; the left wing of the Second Army was pressed back several kilometers on to the Scheldt-Oise canal, north of St. Quentin, the Eighteenth Army being forced to withdraw its extreme right to conform with this retirement.

Heavy Toll Was Taken.

Otherwise, the line was held, severe local fighting continuing up to September 25, and 26. The French extended their offensive further towards St. Quentin. It goes without saying that these days, too, took heavy toll of our entire army.

The German Crown Prince's Army Group had taken over command of the Ninth Army from Von Boehn about the middle of the month. This army and the right flank of the Seventh were constantly in action. The Army Group had to find its own reinforcements.

Tension was particularly high on both sides of Rheims and, after the 22d, also on both sides of the Argonne, where on the 26th another great battle was to break out. (This refers to the American-French offensive.) The completion of the Hermann line behind the two northern Army Groups had begun, and similar work was actively proceeding in the rear of the Crown Prince's Group.

Behind the line between the coast and the Meuse, the work of evacuation was often interrupted by successful enemy air raids. Huge supplies of material had to be moved, which were essential for the further prosecution of the war. Many sectors had worked on bad supply systems and the result was now felt.

The Austro-Hungarian line held in Italy. There were no indications of an Italian offensive.

Bulgars Did Not Resist.

Thus matters stood when events in Bulgaria forced us to grave decisions.

On Sept. 15 the armies of the entente attacked in Macedonia, east of the Vardar, in the mountains between Vardar and the Cerna, and also with weaker forces near Monastir. On both flanks the attacks broke down.

In the center, where the attack was faced with the greatest obstacles (here the French and Serbs had to cross a high mountain range), the Bulgarian Second and Third Divisions offered no resistance; they simply surrendered the position. No other explanation exists for the rapid advance of the Entente troops over broken country, even mountainous.

Gen. von Scholtz sought to bring the Bulgarians to a stand on the second line by removing reserves up in good time, but his hopes were not realized. The Second and Third Bulgarian Divisions retreated, as if on a definite plan, without any show of resistance, behind the Cerna in one direction and behind the Vardar in another. The Bulgarian reserves, equal in strength to three German divisions, did not fight at all.

The German troops, which had recently been reinforced by battalions from Rumania, could not close the gap unaided. The northern descent to the valley of the Vardar in the neighborhood of Krivolac was open to the Entente. All further efforts to reorganize and make a stand failed. The Bulgarian Army went home. Only the Bulgarians incorporated in German forces between Lake Presba and the Cerna behaved better for a time.

Accuses U. S. Officials.

On the 16th, or at the latest the 17th, Gen. Lukow, in command of the troops on the Sturma, wired to the Tsar (Ferdinand of Bulgaria) that he must conclude an armistice; he could not desert us publicly and throw himself into the arms of the entente too soon.

A few days after the 15th, a secret report of the French General Staff fell into my hands which made it evident that the French no longer expected any resistance from the Bulgarian army. Entente propaganda and money, and the United States representative, who had remained in Sofia, had done their work. (He again pays his respects to Dominic I. Murphy, the U. S. Consul-General in Sofia, despite German protests. He had great influence with the Bulgarian Cabinet in the critical days and helped arrange the armistice.)

In this instance again, the Entente had made a thoroughly good job of it.

Possibly, too Bolshevist influences from Russia had crept in. Neither the Czar nor our representative in Sofia knew anything of this. Gen. Jekow knew all about it; a few days before the battle, which was known to be imminent he developed ear trouble, I understand, and went to a clinic in Vienna.

Gen. von Scholtz and all the Germans had done their utmost. Where Germans were in command the Bulgarian army held out. On the mountain sector the Bulgarians refused to have a German command. They even went so far as to leave a divisional General there whom Gen. von Scholtz wished to have removed because he did not trust him; and they made numerous alterations in personnel in that sector.

Denies He Broke Treaty.

The suggestion, put forward by the Bulgars to cloak their defection, that I was informed that soldiers' councils had been formed among their troops, is untrue. It is equally untrue to say that we had broken a treaty obligation to leave six divisions on the Bulgarian front, for this obligation was confined to the Serbian campaign of 1915.

When I came to G. H. Q. in August, 1916, there was about one division in Macedonia. The obligation must also have lapsed on the formation of the German Supreme Military Command for the Quadruple Alliance in September, 1916 This Supreme Command did not in any way neglect Bulgaria.

The forces opposed to each other there were of about equal strength. The Greek troops with the Entente had had no military experience, and their choice of sides was not based on conviction. The Bulgarian Army had had a long rest. They had had the opportunity to strengthen their forces, and ought rather to have helped us in the west than to have sought aid from us.

We knew well that the Bulgarian Army was, in fact, in a bad state; but there was ground for the hope that it would be able to withstand the attack which we expected, as, indeed, was the case wherever the men were still willing to fight. We anticipated, now as previously, as did the German chiefs in Bulgaria, partial failure, but we did not expect the complete collapse of their army.

The rumors which had circulated in Sofia, to the effect that the army would not continue fighting after Sept. 15, found only too terrible confirmation. We could not answer every single cry for help. We had to insist that Bulgaria must do something for herself, for otherwise we, too, were lost.

Bulgars Bribed, He Says.

It made no difference whether our defeat came in Macedonia or in the west. We were not strong enough to hold our line in the west and at the same time to establish in the Balkans a German front to replace the Bulgarian, as we should have had to do if we were to hold that front in the long run.

The Bulgarian Government did nothing whatever to keep up the morale of the troops and the population or to maintain discipline. They gave free rein to enemy influence, and took no steps against any of the anti-German agitations. Entente bribery was the finishing stroke, even the troops that streamed back to Sofia being well supplied with enemy money. These were the true causes of the defection of Bulgaria from the Quadruple Alliance.

There were no illusions about the seriousness of the situation created by the collapse of Bulgaria. Turkey, too, was now in great difficulties. Her Palestine front was broken beyond repair. (Gen. Allenby had captured Jerusalem and more than 80,000 Turks.)

Here, again, the German officers and men had done their duty, and had fought like heroes on the Jordan. There were, however, limits to our strength and we could only keep the Turkish Army together for a time.

Constantinople Must Fall.

The English were gaining ground rapidly northwards along the coast and along the railway to

Tirpitz Charges Allies Offered Great Bribe to King of Spain to Enter War Against Germany

Says Alfonso Wrote About It to His Uncle, Archduke Frederick, Whom He Assured of His Neutrality—Tells of His Disgust With Crowd About Kaiser and Declares Hindenburg and Ludendorff Agreed With Him.

BY ALFRED VON TIRPITZ,
Grand Admiral of the German Army.

THE war had been in progress only a year when two great discoveries were made by me, each of which had to do with events which played a more or less prominent part in deciding the final issue. The more striking was the revelation, which came to me July 26, 1915, that the Entente had offered a virtual bribe of millions of dollars to King Alfonso if Spain would join the allies. The other was that the Kaiser's advisers, even this early in the development of our campaign, were not to be trusted, and that they were leading the way to the ruin of our plans.

The revelations of the plot to bribe Spain came to me almost directly from King Alfonso himself. As to the clowns in official position who had the final word at great headquarters, my opinion of them was identical with the convictions of both Field Marshal von Hindenburg and Quartermaster-General von Ludendorff, which we openly discussed when I was a guest of Von Hindenburg at his headquarters on the eastern front.

On the morning of July 26, 1915, I journeyed to Teschen, Austria, a picturesque town, which at that time was the headquarters of the Archduke Frederick, Field Marshal and Commander of the Austrian armies. We were welcomed with great friendliness there, and I took particular note of the environment, because it was that might be called our first intimate glimpse of our allies, for whose cause we had gone to war.

The Archduke Frederick impressed me at once as an absolutely harmless old gentleman, with whom Conrad von Hoetzendorff, the chief of the Austrian General Staff, would have no difficulty in dealing.

Afterwards we were received by the heir to the throne, who later was to be a participant in the war as the titular Commander in Chief—the future Emperor Charles. He seemed to us at that time very youthful, but his interest in the grandly betitled Austrian staff was frank and great. We were introduced to this staff, and I heard nothing for several minutes but "Count So-and-So," "Count This-and-That," and "Count the Other."

At breakfast I sat next to the Archduke Frederick, who seemed much more interested in his only son, the Archduke Albert, then 18 years old, than in the war.

Alfonso Charged Bribery.

The boy had just finished his school examinations in both German and Hungarian, which he was being taught to speak with equal facility. The old Archduke was very proud of the lad, who at that time loomed up as one of the great heirs of European royalty, as his father owned great estates in Hungary.

During the repast the Archduke Frederick confided to me that his nephew, the King of Spain, had written to him that he (the King), had received an offer of hundreds of millions of marks if he would join the quadruple alliance. King Alfonso, as quoted by his uncle to me, had written that so long as he was King he would not hear of an alliance with the Entente; moreover, he had his army to support him in an emergency.

Everyone at Austrian headquarters felt incensed at the latest note from the United States, which had been received in Berlin five days before, growing out of the sinking of the Lusitania. The note had served warning on Germany that President Wilson regarded our communication of July 8 as "very unsatisfactory" and the forebodings at a time when America's attitude was open to our grave suspicion, were not to be denied in all quarters.

Nobody at Teschen could conceive that we would be so weak as to draw back—if only that sentiment had been shared by our pantaloons in office!

My discovery that not alone Von Hindenburg but also Ludendorff were just as dissatisfied as I was over the turn of affairs, due to the workings of the intimate personal circle of the Kaiser's advisers, came during a visit to the Field Marshal less than a month after I had been the guest of Archduke Frederick. I joined Von Hindenburg at his headquarters at Lodz on Aug. 13.

I immediately held a long conference with Hindenburg and Ludendorff over this situation, and found their views in absolute convergence with mine. As a whole, Hindenburg told me, he "saw no prospect of altering the situation 'autour du roi (around the Kaiser). The mass, he told me, was too strong to penetrate. It was an attribute of this great soldier that he regarded the political problem thus presented as a military problem, and instinctively sensed that he was confronting in all verity a mass—a hostile mass, which defensively was strong, and impenetrable to the assaults of his good sense and my counsels.

He revealed to me how he had implored the Kaiser not to follow the recommendations of Gen. von Falkenhayn, chief of the General Staff, and that also, in the previous great operations, he had urgently advised against the strategy which always went on attacking the enemy from the front, so that the Russians by this method were enabled to slip away. He went on to tell me that this policy had caused us enormous losses.

Hindenburg Complained to Kaiser.

According to the opinions of Hindenburg and Ludendorff, given to me on the scene, the whole Russian army would have been captured by them three weeks previously if the Germans had been permitted to pursue them. Hindenburg then told me the most remarkable of his confidences; he had written to the Kaiser, complaining against the tactics of Falkenhayn, telling the Kaiser that the whole German people, who had rendered such grand assistance to their fatherland and to its armies, looked up to their Kaiser, but mistrusted the strategy and leadership of the high command. But the complaint of Hindenburg was to no purpose, he admitted to me.

After hearing this, I could wonder no longer that I had achieved so little, though Hindenburg struck me at that time as having a consciousness of having performed something great, the memory of which he will carry with him to the grave.

It was touching to see there at his headquarters how the people, young and old, honored him. Aged grand dames, young mothers and their children, the latter hushed by parental command, stood in awe and all saluted him as he passed along. He could hardly move for the flowers which were sent to him. The loyalty, the trustworthiness and the simplicity of his character were positively refreshing, after one had come, as I had done, from that accursed crew of intriguers at Pless.

I had spoken straight from my heart to the Kaiser, and Hindenburg and Ludendorff likewise. Hindenburg assured me that he would give to me all the support that he could for co-operation with Turkey and the submarine campaigns. We were at one on the question of policy as regarded Russia and Belgium, but the fact remained that Falkenhayn had the power of Germany in the hollow of his hand. The army group of Hindenburg, the group of Prince Leopold and the group of Mackensen all were subject to Falkenhayn.

The next morning, at the early hour of 8 o'clock. Hindenburg fetched me up for a walk. He said to me when I remarked on the greetings everywhere of the population in all the villages and hamlets:

"Yes, the people are touchingly devoted, but I would gladly do without some of that if my imperial master would be a little less distant with me."

Our supper that evening was a very delightful repast.

It was through such revelations and good understandings, as I was reaching with Hindenburg and Ludendorff that I realized more and more, especially at Luxembourg a month later, that my position in the German scheme of things was becoming abominable. Meanwhile there was a slight lull in the frightful war, although things were not going well with us.

Summing up, it appeared to me then that our chief plan of campaign, to drive for the channel ports and envelop the Russian armies, had both failed. There we stood, facing a superior force which had all the local advantages in its favor and which, without doubt, bore all evidence of being capitally led.

America, too, there was no longer any doubt, was set definitely against us. If we had scored our great victories there on the western front at the outset, our position would have been different. That is what I had hoped for earlier, and I favored never giving up without a fight anything we could retain, such as Shantung. We should have put up a fight at Tsing-Tao.

At that time, too, it appeared to me that our high seas fleet would not come out. On Sept. 24, I came to the decision to tender my resignation immediately after the war, which I did not believe could last long. The reconstruction of the German navy, I decided, if it should come to that, must be undertaken by someone else. I blamed the fact that the fleet had been kept back to four men: Admiral von Pohl, Admiral Mueller, chief of the Naval Cabinet; Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg and the Kaiser himself.

I believed then, although I was mistaken, that these four intended that our fleet should not fire a single gun and that the work of my life had ended with a cipher.

Having declared war on Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg and the high command of the German war machine, Von Tirpitz tells, in his next installment, how he and the Kaiserin tried to accomplish the overthrow of the Chancellor and put Field Marshal von Hindenburg in that high office. Sketching the failure of this coup d'etat, Von Tirpitz continues his almost prophetic analyses of what led to Germany's final disaster.

Peace and Work World's First Needs, Declares Baruch

In the First Public Statement He Has Made Since Returning From the Paris Conference—He Reviews Economic and Social Conditions Here and Abroad.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.

ON a dull, sleepy day in September, 1915, several badly bored correspondents at the White House in Washington left their card game in the executive wing and strolled into the White House grounds just in time to see a very tall, straight, gray-haired man walking away from the main entrance, where the President's callers were then received and dismissed. He was almost at the gate when they caught up with him.

''My name is Bernard M. Baruch,'' he replied, ''and I'm just a New York stock broker, who happens to be a friend and admirer of the President. My call didn't have any political significance at all.'' Whereupon the correspondents strolled back to their room in the executive wing and debated listlessly whether the incident was worth reporting.

These were in the post-Lusitania and Sussex days, outwardly uneventful but actually history-making beneath the calm surface of White House routine. For the President, still bent on peace and hopeful for it, was nevertheless obeying Washington's injunction. And Mr. Baruch had just laid before him in brief outline a plan for mobilizing the nation's industrial resources that finally merged with other plans into the accomplished miracle of our industrial war machine of Nov. 11.

"World Turning a Hard Corner."

Today Mr. Baruch is back in New York as a private citizen, after playing a part in world events that places him far within the inner circle of men who made history during the past two years faster than it was ever made before. As chairman of the war industries board during the war and as adviser to the President in the framing of the reparation and economic clauses of the peace treaty in Paris, Baruch probably knows more facts about costs and prices, and about the infinite problems involved in feeding, clothing and sheltering this human race of ours, than any one man ever knew before. And because it is a conviction with him that the public has a right to know as much as its servants know about the public business, he consented to answer some of the various questions that everybody is asking these days—in the light of his knowledge and his judgment. If his answers cover a wide range, and include opinions as well as conclusions, the fault is with the interviewer and not the often reluctant Mr. Baruch.

"The world has a hard corner to turn, but we will make it," he said. "We will make it because we must. The high prices and the prevailing unrest and nearly all our other problems are just a part of the cost of the war. It was the most staggering experience in all humanity's history, and it is idle to suppose that the armistice or the peace conference could immediately usher in normal conditions.

"In the winning of the war the people of the world had put forward such great efforts that at its termination they found themselves tired and almost exhausted physically, mentally and financially—staggering under huge financial burdens.

40,000,000 Producers Eliminated.

"Consider that 20,000,000 men were taken from productive toil and put into the armies and that as many millions more were turned from the production of food and other necesaries to the making of munitions and the supplying of armies—consider that this went on for more than four years, and that it was accompanied by a derangement of the world's shipping that left, for instance, Australia's food products to rot in the warehouses and isolated the most populous communities from some of the richest producing centers in the world, it is too much to expect that the world will recover quickly from these conditions. It will require all of our patience, courage and much sacrifice; but above all we must get back to work.

"Today the world is beginning to get back to work. It must work in order that it may save and pay. If proceeded with vigorously, within a year production of practically all the necessaries of life should catch up with the demand. Next, we shall have overproduction and what will happen to our high prices then?"

It has been understood that Baruch's view of the economic situation in Europe is less dark than that expressed by Frank A. Vanderlip. He was questioned on this point.

"I don't wish to underestimate the difficulties," he replied. "What Mr. Vanderlip said about the condition of Europe last spring was pretty near the mark. It would have been impossible to exaggerate the disorganization and paralysis of industry and trade, the complexity and size of the problems.

"But many people fear that there is a serious lack of products in the world. In your opinion, is this true?"

"There can be had enough of every essential commodity except coal," said Baruch. "The general problem is one of getting back to a balance of production and distribution so that life's necessities can be distributed according to the people's needs. The coal shortage in Europe next winter threatens to be the worst since the war began.

"The Causes Are Behind Us."

"The present prospect may not appear to be cheerful. But it is a great thing to know that the causes are behind us. The world has not fallen on evil times. It is emerging from them. It is like a man who has just won a gruelling race, and then discovers that he is far from home and must depend on his own tired legs to get him there. If he is a good sport, he will trudge along without complaining, knowing that tomorrow will be another day.

I don't mean to imply that all of the people's burdens are inevitable. They are being cruelly weighted down with prices that have no relation to the costs of production. But here again the factors at work are creatures of the war. We faced a scarcity and a prospect of a worse one as the war continued. Then, after the armistice, there was a momentary fear of reduced consumption, followed by a temporary lessening of production, but as lines of trade were reopened and the world clamored for goods, people got the idea of scarcity firmly fixed in their minds, and some men were quick to take advantage of it. It was the continuity of an idea, and under its influence the public has been paying one price increase after another.

"Today that continuity is being broken, and prices are going to come down, because the people demand it, and the facts justify it.

"As for prices during the war they were controlled with the one purpose in mind to bring every needed plant and mine and farm, every idle dollar and every idle man into production. Every proposal by which excessive profits could be reached and eliminated was carefully considered. For instance, it was proposed that the great essential commodities like steel and copper should go into a pool to be sold at an average price, and that each mill or mine should be compensated according to its cost. That plan never reached fruition because it would have involved a tremendous amount of supervision and overhead organization such as we did not feel able to build up during the crisis, and it was a grave question of whether production might not have lessened, and full production was the first essential.

Wisdom of Anti-Trust Legislation Questioned.

"The war experience with costs and prices has raised in many minds a serious doubt of the wisdom of our anti-trust legislation. When we were asked to sanction a higher price for some essential basic commodity, it was almost never the big fellow who came to us. It was the little chap—usually a less efficient high cost producer. And if we needed his output and found his cost estimates accurate, there was only one thing to do—lift the price for that commodity and let the big low cost producers take an excessive profit, 80 per cent of which the Government received back in taxes. That

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

"Back to the Land!"

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Is it not a sad commentary on the present trend of affairs that on Friday of last week in your list of applications for work from discharged soldiers, out of 601 men not a single man wanted to go back to the farm? Not only is it deplorable, but it is a very serious matter to the owners of the land. Every farmer in my neighborhood has been short of help this summer and almost every one of them could use a good husky lad right now in his fall plowing and wheat sowing, gathering corn, fodder and his winter wood. The war-time slogan, "Food will win the war," imbued almost every farmer with an earnest effort to make "two grow where only one grew before." He cannot do this without help—and while America is at her task of feeding the war-torn world the farmer would be wise to adopt a plan of profit sharing with his boys and give them the benefit of increased prices and production.

In regard to which life is the happier, urban or farm life, one man cannot of course judge. Knowing what I have experienced in cities, I have often wondered at the happy, even, serene faces I have seen in crowded streets. There must be, I admit, those to whom that life is absolutely necessary. They must handle their money, make shoes, and sew garments, and write in ledgers, if that completes and contents them. It is, after all, a big and various world where man can be happy in many ways.

Every man is a magnet highly and singularly sensitized. Some draw to them fields and woods and hills and are drawn in return; and some draw swift streets and the riches which are known in cities. The greatest tragedy in life, as I see it, is that thousands of men and women never have the opportunity to draw with freedom; but they exist in weariness and labor, and are drawn upon like inanimate objects. They do not farm, they are farmed. They do not know that with one's feet rooted firmly in the soil God is nearer—a more beneficent, kinder God than is ever known in cities. The trees, the hills, the valleys, all His creatures bring Him closer to us. He is indeed everywhere about us country folk.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

When I read W. R. B.'s letter recently it made me smile, for that day I had gotten up earlier than usual to prepare for the washerwoman, who comes in at 8 a. m. and by the time she eats a breakfast on you, gets her clothes changed and ready to wash it is 9 a. m. At noon you must have her served with a nice lunch. At 5 p. m. she is finished and $2 clear money and possibly wearing some clothes that you have provided.

On the other hand, I provide my own meals, work from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m., have 30 minutes for lunch, doing general office work, and saleslady when necessary, must dress neatly, pay carfare, get $2.50 per day and if I am not satisfied someone else is ready to take my place. When Mr. Wilson brings down the cost of living we will all be able to live and let live.

Legislation for the Soldiers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Have noticed the last few weeks that the Post-Dispatch, through its editorial section, is in favor of the proposition that Congress do something, in a material way, for the discharged service men. I have read of the amendments offered by the several Senators and Representatives to the Lane or Mondell bills that will be up for debate and action in the next few weeks. Having studied them carefully I favor and would take advantage of that amendment which would allow an ex-service man to borrow a certain amount up to $5000, at a moderate rate of interest and a sufficient length of time to repay, for the purpose of purchasing a farm and implements, or if the party is a city resident, to apply that amount to purchase a home.

I am sure everyone understands that a man having his own home, or an interest in one, would become a much better citizen to that community, thereby making him a more valued citizen to the country at large. By passing an amendment of the sort proposed Congress would do much in quieting the unrest that prevails and also would be doing something worth while for the discharged service man. AN EX-SOLDIER.

Board of Education Versus Unionism.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

With deep regret we note the development of unionism among the teaching profession, and greatly regret the mistaken policy of the St. Louis Board of Education in practically forcing its employes to organize, by overlooking the unorganized forces in favor of the organized divisions in the matter of salary increases.

The teachers, principals and janitors, all of whom formed organizations within the past year, are all being granted salary increases, whereas the attendance, hygiene and clerical forces, who have not organized as yet are being overlooked.

Let us give fair play to all, and above all things avoid any policy which might foster unionism in the teaching profession.

GARY'S ACUTE MORAL SCRUPLES.

Mr. Gary says that "questions of moral principle cannot be arbitrated or compromised," and that "such questions are included in the present unfortunate struggle."

What moral question can possibly underlie a mere meeting between employers and employes to discuss more intimate relations and more satisfactory co-operation? What moral principle can underlie a meeting between the parties to any legitimate contract to talk over its terms? Arbitrarily to refuse such a meeting might have results to which a moral quality might attach. No moral principle is infringed by consenting to meet one's helpers and coadjutors. Indeed, high moral principle and sentiment might be sustained by such a meeting.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Gary's act provocative of the strike was dictated, not by any moral principle, but by a mere matter of economic expediency and business policy—questionable expediency and policy. Mr. Gary is an instrument, a figurehead. Back of him is the most powerful financial group in America, which means in the world, made up of banks of enormous resources, capitalists of swollen fortune, the allied interests and personages of big business. This group has many other investments besides Steel Trust securities. It has railroads and mines and vast industrial plants, the employes of all of these forming an army.

The group has decided that the time has come when the labor movement in this country must be checked, and, irrespective of the interests of the tens of thousands of small stockholders for whom Mr. Gary pretends such solicitude, it has singled out the Steel Trust among its various trusts and gigantic enterprises as the one in the best position to administer the check. In other words, the Steel Trust is making the fight not alone for itself, but for a chain of inter-related industries and enterprises. The Steel Trust is the goat.

There is in this country another financial group of less power than the Steel Trust group and in rivalry with it at many points, but still a group of vast resources and influence. That is the one back of the Bethlehem Steel Co. What is this group going to do?

It has acquired prosperity in the past by refusing to imitate the Steel Trust's blunders, by taking advantage of them. Will it reverse its policy and repeat the Steel Trust's blundering treatment of its workers? It seems about to do so.

Critical as these days are for the Steel Trust, they are still more critical for the Bethlehem corporation. By refusing to incur unnecessary losses which its small stockholders must share and adopting a conservative but just policy towards its men, Mr. Schwab might gain the greatest opportunity of his career.

We do not justify the strike. The union men should have held off for further mediatory effort. But Judge Gary's plea of moral principle is the worn-out plea of all those who have opposed the substitution of right and reason for self-will and might in the settlements of differences, industrial or international.

A NEGLECTED MASTER.

To Theodore Roosevelt, omnivorous reader, Thomas Carlyle made no appeal. On the contrary, he despised the Sage of Chelsea. "The more I read Carlyle," runs a Roosevelt letter, "the greater is my contempt for his profound untruthfulness and his deification of shams."

From that harsh judgment there would have been an indignant dissent by the generation that read Carlyle. It will be frankly confessed, of course, that if one is looking for the facts about the French Revolustion he doesn't turn to Carlyle. There are dry-as-dust historians in plenty who have related the actualities. Indeed, Carlyle's "History of the French Revolution" is a misnomer. It is not a history. Just what its literary classification is would be hard to say. Someone has called it a great poem. Anyhow, across those "Apocalyptic pages" they march, the great and lowly, the noble and the vile, the fine and ugly, and where else in literature has pretense been so mercilessly assailed or the wretchedness of royalty so scorned and spat upon?

The mere searcher for facts, be it repeated, should leave Carlyle unopened, but he who would walk through an endless gallery of masterpieces or would listen to a secular oratorio of words, if the expression is permissible, will turn unerringly to Carlyle's "French Revolution." In its blazing pageantry and growling eloquence he will find disheartening verities, to be sure, but he will also find sustaining prophecies. "Deification of shams" may not be preferred against Thomas Carlyle. The one outstanding thing in his entire philosophy, whether in the "French Revolution," "Heroes and Hero Worship," or even in "Sartor Resartus," is his blasting, blighting exposure of shams.

It may be ventured, we think, that if Carlyle had really been known in the chancelleries of Europe, the stupid, bungling intervention in Russia had never blotched the record. The experience of France had enjoined such folly, had modern statesmen known Carlyle.

RUSSIA'S PROBLEM UP TO THE RUSSIANS.

Representatives of the United States, England, France, Italy and Japan at Paris are reported to have approved the decision of the British Government to withdraw its forces from Russia and to leave the ultimate disposition of Russian affairs to the Russians themselves. The single proviso is that Russia must, of course, respect the rights of other nations, including the new nations formed in part from Russian territory.

No one can say just how shortlived the Bolshevist regime might have been had not other Governments interfered, including Russia's late enemy, Japan. Foreign opposition, however, and the presence of non-Russian armed men on Russian soil gave the Lenin-Trotzky junta of revolutionary adventurers ground for appealing to patriotism and at least tended to divert attention from enormities at home and to unite factions which perhaps might otherwise have pursued diverse purposes. Foreign opposition had precisely the same effect during France's great revolution and when the outside peril temporarily lessened, the influence of terrorists within declined.

Only time can reveal the opportunities for exploitation that will be opened to Germany by abandonment of allied aims in Russia. But if Germany has deep-laid plans for the trade control of the field, who but the Russians can prevent them? At any rate, allied attempts to intervene have been so managed as only to increase the confusion in that chaotic country. With the exception of Japan, public sentiment in each of the great Powers will not tolerate any enlargement of its troops in Russia and the maintenance of the contingents even at their present inadequate strength is a cause of increasing protest.

PATTI'S PASSING.

Luigi Arditti, famous operatic conductor and Patti's favorite, once said concerning the voice of the wonderful artiste who has just died at her Welsh castle: "There may be singers who have voices equal to Mme. Patti's in the upper register; there may be singers whose voices equal hers in the middle register or in the lower register, but I have never heard a voice equal to hers in all registers. She can sing with equal excellence in all registers. One note in her voice of marvelous range is as good as another. She can sing the complete scores of all the operas without a slur or a shade of defect—her voice is a perfect voice. She is the greatest artiste of her century."

Arditi's opinion was the opinion of all the experts and critics who heard Patti in her prime. And the public agreed with them. She drew packed houses at the highest prices ever known in her time. She commanded the largest pay of any prima donna to the close of her career. She was a diva whose supremacy in her art was unquestioned.

Patti not only had a golden voice; she was mistress of her art. Literally born on the stage, of artist parents, a public singer in childhood, Patti was a great actress. She was a beautiful and charming woman, who retained her marvelous voice, and the beauty and charm of youth far beyond the age when the average prima donna has been forced into retirement. At 50 she had the voice, the figure, the grace and vivacity of 30. Mme. Patti, still remarkable for her age, sang in concert at 65, but youthful voice and beauty and charm inevitably fade, and those who heard her found only a suggestion of the fascinating artiste whose rare gifts and art won the fervid adoration of the world.

Unfortunately, the phonograph was unknown in Patti's prime, so that her wonderful voice, art and magnetic charm are only memories, which are vanishing with the passing of those who were enraptured by her song. None of them can forget.

AMERICAN PROHIBITIONISTS IN EUROPE.

Leaders of the American Anti-Saloon League who have been pioneering in England are said to be disconcerted by the attention their efforts have attracted. Notoriety, or publicity, if the latter term be preferred, was the last thing desired by those missionaries. They had planned to work quietly in the beginning until they had organized their forces into an invincible army when the pussyfoot would be discarded for the thundering tramp of conquerors. Their strategy seems to have failed.

A surprising angle of the situation, however, is the reported position of the American State Department. According to the London Daily Mail, our State Department will issue no more passports to citizens bent on rescuing Europe from the clutches of Demon Rum. The time is not propitious for such a crusade. In its present welter of difficulties Europe, it is feared, is in no mood just now to welcome foreign regulators of other people's habits. Should Americans persist in such undertaking it is likely to influence European attitude towards the United States unfavorably.

But why should our State Department exert its great power to withhold from Europe the glittering and manifold blessings of prohibition? Europe may be happy in its servitude to drink, but it is the happiness of ignorance. If Europe could see how beautifully prohibition is functioning in America, how upon its entrance all unrest has disappeared, all dissension vanished, all trouble departed; making way for an era of brotherly love and celestial serenity—if Europe could see all that, its untutored prejudice against the new enlightened order would crumble quickly and it would hail Drouth as a deliverer.

Or does our State Department feel that Europe has anxieties enough aboard without taking on prohibition?

THE FIRE BLIGHT PEST.

Missouri is still the Big Red Apple State, but her fruit growers will have to be up and doing if she is to retain her place as a first-class apple grower. Reports show that the number of apple trees in the State is decreasing, and this is largely due to the spread of what is known as fire blight, for which no spray remedy has yet been found.

The pomologist who can find a remedy for fire blight will perform a valuable public service in making it known. Meanwhile, the general health of the trees, through cultivation, fertilization and spraying, should be the rule. Healthy trees are more likely to escape the blight.

THE HUNBUND'S "WAR OF DEFENSE."

The new Austrian Red Book contains no revelations as to things the Entente world did not know already. It is important only as making a complete confession by Austria itself on points on which Prussianism has heretofore entered vigorous denials. It shows that as early as May, 1914, the Austrian Cabinet, with the full co-operation of Berlin, had decided that the time was favorable for aggressive action in the Balkans by war, if that should be necessary. The murder of Archduke Francis Ferdinand in June merely furnished an after-the-fact excuse for a course already determined. July 7 the Austrian Cabinet voted to declare war on Serbia, silencing Emperor William's fears lest the "present time so favorable to our chances should pass without taking advantage of it." All that is recorded between July 7 and July 27, including the Emperor's trip to Scandinavian waters, was only preparing a flimsy stage setting to a war of "defense."

The mass of the German people, coming out of the war with a feeling that they were unconquered and that the fortune of war was only against them in this one conflict, have also come out retaining the carefully cultivated illusion that Germany was only defending herself against a plot for her destruction. The utmost concession to the fact that many of them are still willing to make is that the Emperor, like Frederick the Great, discovered a coalition of hostile nations and sought Frederick's advantage in attacking first.

Monarchist leaders in their memoirs and other statements are as careful to preserve this illusion in peace as in war. Can the deception be perpetrated in the face of Austria's own admissions, based on official documents?

THE MOUNTAINEERS.

THEY looked as poor as poor could be—
They were mountaineers of Tennessee;
From their lofty home they had come down
For a holiday in Memphis town.
Both pa and ma were young in years
And their six little kids rose up in tiers;
My, it was an unusual sight to see,
Surely a wonderful little family.

They had no fears, and no alarms,
Even to Isabelle, a babe in arms.
There was Margaret, a mere human slip,
Who was toting along a heavy grip;
And Helen, with wondrous laughing eyes,
Was another of this sextet prize.
In the group were two boys, Zeke and Ben,
Maybe destined to become illustrious men.

And Josephine was a little tot
Who kept up with the crowd on a tiny trot.
Pa helped each one on a trolley car,
And they were off to the Alcazar,
A movie house, where flickers glow,
And I'll bet it was the kids' first show;
And so they could have a better time,
I gave each one a brand-new dime.

Though pa and ma were poorly dressed,
With six wonderful kids they had been blessed.
Of worldly goods perhaps they're shy—
And they dwell in a hovel near the sky—
But they were all smiles, not a single frown,
As they romped around old Memphis town.
And that's a sign of wealth, you see,
Shown by those mountaineers of Tennessee.

The United States Senate does not seem to have very much in common with the United States. Shut in upon itself, preyed upon by its own political passions, and resenting the most thankless task there is, that of playing second fiddle, the Senate has no more idea what the country thinks than if it were meeting somewhere in the wilderness of Timbuctoo. Except for the Senate the United States would be quick to join hands with the rest of the world in the establishment of an international society.

THE URGENT MESSAGE.

LO, I have said, in other words and times,
But I will chant the message once again,
For 'tis a message can be said and sung,
Old and yet new, unto infinity—
That man was made for love, and that by love
And in its power alone he shall be saved.

But what, then, is this love by which men live
And grow to heavenly stature? 'Tis not lust,
'Tis not desire nor passion of the flesh,
It is the love that cleanses, 'tis the love
That fills the soul with trust, the love that sees
In every human fellow one's self's other,
That sees in all creation that Supernal Light
That yet shall conquer evil.
Every day
In which thou goest forth with open eyes
Looking for signs and symbols of this love,
And shedding it abroad from thine own soul,
Thou shalt not fail to find it.

Mark a child
A flower, a dewdrop, or at night a star,
A true man or true woman—in all these
And in thine own heart shalt thou find the love
That fills the soul with peace and utter joy,
The love of God that makes a heaven here.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

PRICES NOW COMPARED WITH OUR CIVIL WAR PERIOD.

Alexander Dana Noyes in The Financial Situation," in the October Scribner.

WHEN our own Civil War had ended in 1865, the average price of commodities had risen 116 per cent as compared with 1860, but wages, as determined in the famous United States Senate report of 1893, had advanced on the average only 43 per cent. With the ending of the war, a decline in prices began at once, and within three years one-third of the extreme war-time advance had been lost. The decline was irregularly distributed, cotton and cotton goods falling 50 per cent—a natural consequence of the lifting of the blockade of the Southern States. But the advance in wages did not stop with the war. The average as computed for 1866 was 52½ per cent above 1860. By 1869, wages averaged 62 per cent higher than in that pre-war year, while prices averaged only 53 per cent above it.

Most people will remember what were the expectations, both in and out of business circles, during the war. In the United States—at any rate during our own period of neutrality—a hint at European negotiations for peace caused a fall in the markets; the familiar reason being the prevalent belief that a great fall in prices throughout the world, and a great fall in labor costs in Europe, would dislocate our own industrial organism. Since termination of the war would reopen the world's markets to Russia's wheat exports, the price of food would fall precipitously. With the ending of the purchases of war material by Governments, supply of manufactured goods for other purposes would quickly overtake demand. More than this, the return of Europe's conscript soldiers to their former occupations, so it seemed, would crowd the avenues of European labor, bring down European prices, and, combined with the cessation of the war demands on industry, might easily introduce new and destructive competition with our own producers by European manufacturers.

DE VALERA'S ATTACKS.

From the New York Morning Telegraph.

AS a friend and well-wisher of Ireland, we are moved to say that abuse of the President of the United States at meetings to promote the fortunes of an Irish republic will not get promoters of the cause far along on the road to freedom. Such attacks are in doubly bad taste when Eamonn de Valera is present. He poses as President of Ireland. Without discussing his de jure or his de facto status, it is sufficient to say that if he takes himself seriously he will at once abandon his practice of denouncing the league of nations and other administration measures. In international affairs the titular head of one sovereignty doesn't invade another in times of peace and participate in discussions affecting the policies or polity of the State. The fact that De Valera does this seems to indicate that he himself is doubtful his own standing.

The American people are far from unanimous in support of the league of nations; there is among us an aggressive opposition to its terms and its tenets, but we feel able to adjust the situation without help from the exterior, whether British, French, Italian or Irish.

The vast majority of the Americans have in the past been friendly to Irish autonomy and strong for the realization of Irish national aspirations. Misguided friends of that disturbed island have done more to alienate this sentiment than all other agencies combined, and the sooner they begin to exercise restraint while discussing the great republic and its President, the better it will be for their cause. After all, the first consideration is the freedom and independence of our own country.

Events in the Social World

Return of Veiled Prophet Revives Interest in Selection of Queen, but Even Heralded Visit Has Not Overshadowed Brides of Autumn Season.

WITH the much-heralded visit of the Veiled Prophet next week, society is in quite a quandary as to who of the many attractive maids will be chosen as this year's queen.

Many are the guesses, but there is a strong tendency to believe that it will be between Miss Ada Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Johnson of 25 Portland place, and Miss Nancy Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert G. Walker of 14 Hortense place, either of whom would be a very acceptable successor to Miss Mary Dee Jones.

However even the reappearance of the Veiled Prophet after an absence of two years has not overshadowed the many attractive brides of this autumn season. September, as usual, seems to have been a popular month as a choice, and now as it is drawing to a close, society is looking forward to October with just as much interest, as several important weddings are scheduled to take place in that month.

The first one on the calendar is that of Miss Rhea I. Lynch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Lynch of Clayton, who will marry Harry A. Muir Wednesday. The following Saturday no less than three important weddings will be celebrated, when Miss Irma Niedringhaus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Niedringhaus of 5528 Pershing avenue, marries Harold F. White of Burlington, Vt., Mrs. Dorothy Sylvester Spencer, daughter of Mrs. Frederick Oakes Sylvester of 5924 Horton place and Clark Garrison of Salamanaca, N. Y., formerly of St. Louis, are married, and when Miss Helen L. Boynton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Boynton becomes the bride of Lloyd P. Wells, son of Mr. Rolla Wells of 4228 Lindell boulevard. The latter wedding will take place in Grace Church at East Orange, N. Y., the home of the bride.

Conspicuous among the weddings of last week was that of Mrs. Lila Capen and Meredith C. Jones, who were married in a large church wedding Thursday evening.

The ceremony was solemnized at 6 o'clock at the St. Peter's Episcopal Church, the Rev. Dr. Z. B. T. Phillips officiating. The wedding and the reception which followed at the St. Louis Club were attended by a large and fashionable gathering.

The bride's attendants were her sister, Miss Esther Capen, as maid of honor, and Misses Frances Farish, Ellen Lee Hoffman, Beatrice Douglas and Dorothea Campbell of Indianapolis as bridesmaids.

Mr. Jones had Lyall Stuart as best man and Jack Dock, Kenneth Bitting, J. Hill of Little Rock, Ark., and Jack Adams were groomsmen.

Miss Capen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Capen of the Kingsbury Apartments and a cousin of Mrs. Charles H. Zeibig and of Miss Lucile Capen. She was educated at Mary Institute and Vassar College, where she was graduated in 1917. On account of the war she did not make a formal debut, but has taken an active part in the social affairs of the debutante set and is a member of the Junior League.

Mr. Jones is the son of Mrs. Meredith Jones of Chambersburg, Pa., formerly of St. Louis. He resides in Chicago and will take his bride there after a wedding trip.

The marriage of Miss Marie Dierkes, daughter of Mrs. Marie de Prez Dierkes of 5759 Chamberlain avenue, and Basil Manley Lide was quietly celebrated yesterday at the home of the bride's mother. Only the immediate relatives of the young couple were present at the ceremony.

Miss Dierkes is a granddaughter of Mrs. Louise J. de Prez, a member of an old French family of St. Louis, and of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dierkes.

Mr. Lide is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Lide of 6102 Washington avenue. He has recently returned from Miami, Fla., where he served as a naval aviator.

Mr. Lide and his bride will be at home after Oct. 15 at 837 Westgate avenue.

A wedding of interest, especially in South Side circles, was that of Miss Marie Hadley and Frederick W. Forshey, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Forshey of Toledo, O., which took place Monday morning last. The ceremony was quietly performed by the Rev. Father P. D. O'Connor at the Immaculate Conception Church, in the presence of members of the two families, and was followed by a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's father.

Miss Mildred Hadley attended her sister as a maid of honor and was the only attendant.

Miss Hadley is the daughter of Leo G. Hadley of 3247 Longfellow boulevard and was educated at Sacred Heart Convent and at Loretto Academy.

The couple have departed for the East on a wedding trip and will be at home after Nov. 1 at 2608 Louisiana avenue.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Edith Schmidt and Harris B. Ladd, which took place in Clayton last Tuesday. Miss Schmidt resided with her two brothers, Charles and Henry Schmidt, and her sister, Miss Josephine Schmidt, at 4328 Forest Park boulevard. Mr. Ladd is the son of Mrs. Louis P. Pim, who, with her husband, Col. Pim, is temporarily at the home of Col. Pim's brother, R. J. Pim of 6666 Washington boulevard. Mr. Ladd recently was discharged from the army, in which he saw two years' service overseas with the First Division.

The marriage of Miss Florence Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Sullivan of 5605 Chamberlain avenue, to John V. La Barge of Detroit, Mich., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. La Barge of 943 Beach avenue, took place Tuesday at St. Rose's Church. The Rev. Father J. J. McGlynn performed the ceremony in the presence of the members of the two families. There were no attendants. Mr. and Mrs. La Barge will reside in Detroit and will be at home after Oct. 1 at the Hotel Pontchartrain.

Mme. Mack's made-to-order corsets and surgical garments are the best obtainable. 510 Odd Fellows' Bldg.—Adv.

Four weddings of note were solemnized last Wednesday. The first of these took place at 9:30 o'clock in the morning when Miss Mary Sheehan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Sheehan of 5851 Nina place, became the bride of Dr. Humbert Stephen Ghio. The ceremony was performed at St. Roch's Church and was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents. Miss Alice Sheehan attended her sister as maid of honor, and Dr. Clarence Funsch acted as best man. Joseph Sheehan and Dr. T. Noxon Toomey were groomsmen and the bride's small niece, Mary Rose, was flower girl. Dr. and Mrs. Ghio will be at home after Nov. 1 at 5852 Bartmer avenue.

Another wedding which took place the same morning was that of Miss Lucille Butler, daughter of Mrs. E. H. Bauman of 6169 Pershing avenue, and John J. Mullaly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Mullaly of 5170 Cabanne avenue, who were married at 11:30 o'clock at St. Rose's Church. The couple was attended by Miss Marie Mullaly as maid of honor, Miss Clara Mullaly as bridesmaid, Leon McCullom as best man and Martin Mullaly as bromsman.

A wedding breakfast for the bridal party and near relatives followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother, after which Mr. Mullaly and his bride departed on their wedding trip and will be at home after Nov. 1 at 6117 Pershing avenue.

At 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon at St. John's Methodist Church, Miss Betty Allen Sturdevant became the bride of Charles Todd Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Whilfield Russell of 4530 Forest Park boulevard, and at the Church of St. Philip the Apostle, Miss Lilian M. Sievers and Andrew C. Baker were married.

Miss Sturdevant's uncle, W. L. Sturdevant of the Buckingham Hotel gave her away. There were two attendants, the bride's sister, Miss Marion Sturdevant, being maid of honor and the bridegroom's brother, Milton Russell, best man.

Miss Sturdevant is the eldest daughter of Mrs. Ivanona Sturdevant of 1383 Belt avenue. She has been interested in dramatics, and spent three years studying at the Leland Powers Institute at Boston, Mass. She is a graduate of the Morse School of Expression.

The attendants at the Seivers-Baker wedding were Miss Gertrude Listerman as maid of honor and Kenneth Baker as best man. Miss Sievers is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Sievers of 2804 Osage street and Mr. Baker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Baker of 5504 Cates avenue. Mrs. Alexander H. De Menil of 3352 South Thirteenth street, who, with a large colony of St. Louisans, spent the summer in Estes Park, Colo., returned home last week.

Mme. Alga Samaroff, a leading American woman pianist, will open the Hotel Statler Monday afternoon musicales on Nov. 10 at 3 o'clock in in the afternoon and already the announcement of her coming has caused a ripple in social and art circles. Mme. Samaroff in private life is Mrs. Leopold Stokowski, wife of the distinguished conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra and a recognized leader.

Mme. Samaroff has added to her fame by featuring in her work for this season the 32 sonatas of Beethoven, the first time it has ever been undertaken by a woman. The tea which will follow Mme. Samaroff's recital on Nov. 10 will give opportunity for renewal of acquaintance, as she will be the guest of honor.

Her many professional engagements in this section will preclude private entertaining to any extent.

The second recital of the Hotel Statler series will be on Nov. 24, with the distinguished French violinist, Jacques Thibaud. Dec. 15 features two American artists, Emma Roberts, contralto, and Lois Rogers, pianist, and for the last, Jan. 19, the vivaciously brilliant soprano Dora de Phillipe of the Chicago Grand Opera Co. The management of the Hotel Statler musicales is in the hands of Elizabeth Cueny.

DO YOU KNOW

What it is that is attracting so many desirable students to the RUBICAM BUSINESS SCHOOL?

There are two chief reasons:

1st—The Thoroughness of Instruction

Never has the work in the Rubicam Business School been in better condition or the standard higher.

Every teacher is a person of ability and is thoroughly experienced in her line of work; there are no "weak spots" in Rubicam's instruction.

2d—The Good Positions That the School Secures for Its Graduates

From Sept. 1st to Sept. 24th the EMPLOYMENT DEPARTMENT has received 140 position calls which could not be filled because the demand for trained workers exceeds the supply.

RUBICAM BUSINESS SCHOOL

To Renew Complexion Without Cosmetics

If the excessive user of cosmetic only knew the impression her artificiality really makes upon others she would quickly seek means of gaining a natural complexion. Let her acquire the mercolized wax habit, discarding makeups entirely, and she will soon have the kind of complexion that women envy and men admire. It's so easy to get an ounce of mercolized wax at any drug store, use nightly like cold cream and wash it off mornings. And the results are so remarkable. Gradually the lifeless cuticle peels off, in almost invisible flaky particles. In a week or so there's a brand-new complexion, clear, velvety, soft, of girlish color and texture.

The treatment is so simple, harmless and so marvelously effective, the wonder is that every woman whose skin is withered, discolored, rough, freckled or pimpled has not already adopted it.—ADV.

Appear At Your Best—Instantly

If you receive a sudden caller or an unexpected invitation you can feel confident of always appearing at your best. In but a few moments it renders to your skin a wonderfully pure, soft complexion that is beyond comparison.

GREATEST·SALE of FUR·COATS
Ever Held in the City of Saint Louis

The Premier Fur Coat Sale of the Season—for 12 days—Sept. 29th to Oct. 11th

Anticipating the unprecedented vogue of the fur coat this season, we began months ago to prepare a fur coat sale that would surpass anything ever attempted here. We have planned a gigantic selling campaign in which all the Kline stores participate—involving hundreds upon hundreds of fine fur coats.

During the past year the Kline organization has purchased over three-quarters of a million dollars' worth of furs. So we went to the furriers with whom we have done such satisfactory and large business, and asked their co-operation. We furnished them with raw pelts, which we bought at 20 to 30% less than present market prices, and each maker has contributed to this sale 50 fur coats at the actual cost of making. In addition to these savings, we have sacrificed the major part of our regular profit, bringing the price of these fine fur coats down to the lowest possible figure.

WORK AND PEACE WORLD'S GREATEST NEEDS, SAYS BARUCH

arrangement within some of the big industries has become a part of the new business strategy, and it is a question today if society would not be better off by lowering the bars for the big, highly integrated establishments, and letting them absorb as large a proportion of the market in their field as their greater efficiency and lower costs can win for them. Today they are afraid of the anti-trust laws, which sanction and even force on them the practice I have described — maintaining prices high enough to keep inefficient competitors in the field, and thus pulling chestnuts out of the fire for them.

"But if we do let down the bars, we must provide adequate Government supervision, lest the markets come under monopoly control and the benefits of low cost production be absorbed in excessive profits.

"The Federal Trade Commission could be greatly strengthened in its authority and equipment for dealing with this whole situation."

"Do you think, Mr. Baruch, that there is any great danger that the effects of Bolshevism will be important in this country?"

"'I don't think there is any danger of Bolshevism extending its boundaries,' he said. "The world today wants food and clothing and shelter, and the most restless of men in Europe are beginning to realize that they can't get these things by attempting to change the world from a profit to a service basis over night. They are much more likely to lay society in ruins if they attempt it.

"Today the driving force in production and distribution is individual initiative, stimulated by the desire for profits. The economic world has never known any other driving force, and none other has ever been tried. It is a bad time for an experiment that even at its best is bound to mean widespread disorganization and chaos before the problematical benefits of a new motivation could have an opportunity to demonstrate themselves.

Blind Labor Generalizations.

"But the men who dispose of labor unrest with a few generalizations, and who look forward to a speedy return to the old conditions, are just as blind and irresponsible as the preachers of revolution. And they are just as influential in producing the conditions that make revolution.

"It must be said to the credit of producers and manufacturers that they are showing a desire to meet the new conditions. Their cooperation and generous action during the war speak well for a solution of this problem. The 8-hour-day is being generally adopted wherever the nature of the work permits. I doubt whether as a rule a less than 8-hour-day will produce enough to care for the needs of the world. What is wanted is greater production. The world is made richer and happier by the increased production of things, so that all can share in them. Greater wealth comes rather from increased production than from increased prices."

"What about the farmer?" I asked: "Can the tasks of the farm be adjusted to an 8-hour basis?"

"My remarks must not be taken as referring to the farming industry in which the conditions are such that it would be extraordinarily difficult to hold to fixed hours of labor. The farming problem must have separate consideration. I am not one of those who think that the farmer has been making an undue profit.

"There is a growing opinion," continued Mr. Baruch, "that the condition of labor should be made more humane and that it should have a day of the right number of hours, a share of the profits by increasing the wage scale as profit increase, and a voice in the management.

"Some further advocate a place at the council table, where labor would have the opportunity to study the commercial end of the business, learn accurately what the costs and earnings amount to, and learn to share responsibility. One suggestion made was to fix a basic wage on the basis of an average year's income for the business and provide an increase in the wage as the earnings went up; for fluctuations below the average of earnings, provide a margin beyond which there should be no reduction in wages. Then labor should do its share."

Baruch was asked about the contention of the European laborites that we must turn from a competitive to a co-operative basis of producing and distributing commodities if we are to avoid nationalist commercial friction leading to war.

Fight for the World's Markets.

"Isn't is true," I asked, "that the competition for markets is going to be keener than ever before, because the world's industrial capacity has been increased, and particularly that of this country and Japan? Isn't it going to be a serious problem for America and England to keep off each other's toes in the world's market?"

"I do not anticipate anything serious in this. We need not fear anything from honest and fair competition. If the occasion arises we can be confident that this question will be discussed and some solution found. Nothing should be done to kill the personal initiative that comes from free and honorable competition. Nor should anything be done that will interfere with the operation of the law of supply and demand which, if given time enough, will work all these problems out."

Baruch was asked about taxes and the crushing war debt faced by Europe.

"This is the greatest obstacle that statesmen of the old world have to face," he said. "Already the French Finance Minister has proposed a tax on capital. Germany has done the same, and the project is being seriously considered in other countries.

"There is a very grave question as to whether some of the countries can meet their present obligations and raise further money to meet the needs of their peoples. The burden seems too great to bear. Certainly this cannot be done unless the integrity of their borders can now be assured from aggression by powerful and rapacious neighbors and they be given an opportunity to work out their salvation in peace.

"Even in America we must consider very deeply and seriously what steps can be taken to relieve enterprise of the tax load it is now carrying. For peace times, our taxes today are too high for the spirit of enterprise and initiative and for the proper balance of economic forces. The man who must give too great a share of his earnings to the Government will simply quit working, or else he will increase his prices to meet his increased taxes, or else pad his business by means of unnecessary expenditure that he would otherwise not think of making. The tax is directly reflected in prices, for there is a general community sanction in peace time for higher levels of profit when a big share of the earnings are taken by the Government. These objections do not apply to an inheritance tax, and I believe it should continue high.

Must Differentiate in Our Taxation.

"We should distinguish in our taxation between earnings representing the fruits of enterprise and labor and incomes that represent the return on property owned. When the world is in need of increased production we should encourage men by relieving them as far as possible of a tax upon the fruits of their labor. This was the formula so successfully employed to encourage production of those essentials needed in our war activities, where, under stimulation, the supplies necessary to win the war were brought up to the required quantity.

"The distinction to be drawn between what may be called earned and unearned incomes applies with equal force to all those engaged in professional work as well as to those engaged in public or private work on a fixed salary. There is also a small and important class of people living on small incomes derived from savings made previous to the war, whose comfort and existence will be threatened by our present system of high taxation if continued in peace times. These professional and salaried men and women have had to bear and are bearing as great burdens as any class. Not enough attention has been given to them and their problems."

Strain of Last 10 Days Forces Wilson to Take Good Rest to Recuperate

President Is Suffering From Nervous Breakdown and Will Be Unable to Attend Labor Meeting Oct. 6.

By DAVID LAWRENCE,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1919.)

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 26.—En route to Washington, D. C., Sept. 27, President Wilson will not be back at work for a considerable length of time—nobody aboard the presidential train can predict with accuracy just how long. All engagements have been cancelled. The King and Queen of Belgium and other distinguished visitors will tour the country first and call on the President after their travels. The industrial conference scheduled for Oct. 6 will be held at the White House but President Wilson in all probability will not be permitted by his physicians to attend. In fact, the President may be removed from Washington to some quiet health resort for the next few weeks.

The President's nervous breakdown is perhaps the most serious illness he has ever had, for it comes upon him at a time when he has spent almost all his reserve strength. He will be 60 years old next December and during the last 10 years an inconceivable strain has been superimposed upon other years of ailing, so that his close friends have marvelled at his endurance thus far.

Woodrow Wilson was never a robust individual. He worked indefatigably as a college professor and frequently put so much energy into his lectures that he used himself up completely each day. It was in 1906 that he suffered a nervous reaction and was given leave of absence from the presidency of Princeton University. He traveled in Europe and came back to Princeton refreshed. He soon was engrossed, however, in the bitterest fight of his career—the graduate school controversy at Princeton—and was compelled again to interrupt his lectures and take a vacation, this time to Bermuda.

Suffered From Neuritis.

Mr. Wilson suffered from neuritis in his arms and hands, due very largely to the years spent in writing books. It was this ailment which compelled him to take up the typewriter as a means of expression, something he has used almost constantly since. When Mr. Wilson resigned from Princeton to become a candidate for Governor of New Jersey, he entered vigorously into a fight against the election of James Smith as Senator and thus began a series of mental strain, such as the struggle with a Republican legislature to get a reform program through and speechmaking tours in the presidential primary contest. This dovetailed into the presidential campaign in 1919 itself and when Mr. Wilson was elected he did not relinquish the Governorship of New Jersey until three days before he was inaugurated President.

With the exception of a few weeks in Bermuda with his family he had been continuously at work for two years when the cares of the White House began to accumulate. He had a hard fight on tariff and currency legislation and then came the seizure of Vera Cruz, followed soon by the outbreak of the European war in 1914, which made the first 18 months of his term exacting.

Throughout the first two years of the war, the Lusitania controversy and neutrality problems weighed heavily on the President's mind and then came the preparedness tour and later the presidential campaign of 1916. America's entrance into the war a few months later piled high the duties and tasks imposed by Congress on the executive. While war operations were at their height decisions affecting the placing of American troops in battle and naval questions of moment were referred to the President from abroad.

Decoded Messages.

Mr. Wilson spent many long hours at night coding and decoding confidential messages himself. Perhaps the climax of it all came when Germany asked for an armistice and the President began to exchange notes that led to Germany's capitulation. In the midst of this excitement, so great was the President's anxiety for the league of nations and the making of the terms of the treaty of peace that he asked the country to return a majority in Congress as a vote of confidence. His determination to hasten the peace conference and go to Europe himself was the source of some apprehension to his friends who wondered if he could stand the added strain.

Recuperates Strongly.

In Paris he was at work day and night and caught cold while in a conference with Prime Minister Lloyd George and Premier Clemenceau. This developed into influenza from which, as Dr. Grayson says, the President has never recovered entirely. It is true that there were many reasons for postponing the President's trip across the continent in behalf of the league of nations, which had been planned to begin immediately after his return from Europe, but even if he could have finished sooner those conferences with individual Senators, his physician would probably have held him in Washington as he was beginning then to show signs of a collapse.

But the President's recuperative powers have, on more than one occasion, been a pleasant surprise to those who have worried about his health and when he insisted on making his tour for the league of nations, consent was given on the condition that he would not make an extensive trip and that he would rest on week ends. It was suggested that he rest in Yellowstone Park or Rainier Park or in the Yosemite, but to all suggestions the President grimly objected, saying he was not bent on a pleasure jaunt, but a business trip. Even his Sundays were not kept free. Local committees insisted on seeing him. Everywhere along the journey requests for labor conferences have been made and the result was that Mr. Wilson got very little rest on Sundays. All day long and all night crowds would gather at the passing stations and cheer. If the train stopped to take water or change locomotives, it was pretty certain that the President's rest would be disturbed at night, while during the day he would go out on the back platform and shake hands with the people who insisted on seeing him.

Doctor Forbade Speeches.

His physician would not permit him to make any scheduled speeches. Between stations the President worked away on his typewriter on official business. Much of his time was spent in studying cables from Frank Polk, head of the American peace mission negotiating treaties with Austria and Bulgaria. Lately the situation at Fiume has given him much concern.

But the greatest burden of all has been the extemporaneous speeches. Instead of stretching his trip out to eight weeks and covering 10,000 miles as other Presidents have done, Mr. Wilson sought to accomplish his purpose in four weeks. He spoke extemporaneously everywhere, 40 times in 21 days. He would prepare notes on the train. On Thursday night he had mapped out the speeches he planned to deliver in Wichita, Little Rock, Oklahoma City, Memphis and Louisville. But ever since his appearance in San Francisco, he has been ill, and has coughed heavily, and spent sleepless nights. Mrs. Wilson, who is a trained nurse, has constantly attended him, and the effect of her vigils of the 10 days have seemed to tell on her. Dr. Grayson was summoned twice after midnight Thursday. On the second occasion, about 4 o'clock Friday morning, he sent a messenger to arouse Secretary Tumulty, who was asleep in the next car. He told the secretary that the trip would have to be cancelled; that the President had gone too far, and would have to detach himself completely from his work. The President insisted that he would be well enough in a day or so, and pleaded an opportunity to fulfill his engagement, but Mrs. Wilson and Dr. Grayson and Secretary Tumulty overruled him, and the trip was summarily cancelled.

Consultation aboard the train on Friday led to a decision not to stop off en route, but to get the President to the White House as soon as possible, and decide then whether he should go to some quiet spot in the seashore or mountains. It may be that in Washington other physicians will be called by Dr. Grayson as means of precaution, and the extent of the President's exhaustion fully determined, but that the President must give up all work for the present is the command of his physician.

Nervous Exhaustion.

The President's trouble is described, technically, as nervous exhaustion, but there are several things that contribute to it. First, there is a cough which is the after effect of influenza, and this has affected somewhat the President's respiration. His digestive organs have been hurt by the constant strain of his work. Altogether it has slowly taken away a large part of the President's

Really Removes Roots of Superfluous Hair

(Phelactine, the New Wonder-Worker)

Without doubt the greatest thing yet discovered for hair-disfigured womankind is the wonderful phelactine method. It has none of the disadvantages of electrolysis or depilatories, and, best of all, it removes the hairs entire, roots and all! It does this instantly, leaving the skin so smooth and soft that no one can tell the user was ever the possessor of a moustache or other hairy growth.

Phelactine is non-odorous, non-irritating and so harmless a child could eat it without any ill-effect. A stick of this remarkable substance, accompanied by simple instructions, can be obtained at any drug store. What woman would not be delighted after seeing those ugly hairs come out—including the roots—with her own eyes?—ADV.

The Mightiest of All Suit Sales

Five Hundred Brand-New Fall Suits in Scores of Newest Modes

Tomorrow—Monday, at nine o'clock, the doors of this store will swing open to one of the greatest, value-giving Suits events attempted in many seasons—an event that will instantly register itself on the minds of hundreds of St. Louis women as one of the mightiest merchandising achievements ever brought to their attention.

$25.

Buying five hundred Suits in one group from one manufacturer resulted in us securing this vast assortment at a phenomenal underpriced figure, enabling us to offer them to you at a price that would barely cover the cost of present-day manufacturing.

These Suits would be good "buys" at their real worth, but adhering to the Garland principle of giving its patrons the benefit of all underpriced purchases, we have marked these Suits at this very, very low price, allowing ourselves an extremely close margin of profit.

Misses' and Women's Sizes

Many Suits Worth to $49.50 None Less Than $35

Velours, Gabardines, Oxfords, Velour Checks, Stripes, Mixtures—All Colors and Combinations

Every Suit in this sale represents the very newest in Fall and Winter styles. Long and short coat models in tailored, semi-tailored and fancy types. Braid and embroidery on collars, cuffs and pockets—exquisite linings of plain and fancy silk and satin. In fact, there is hardly a size, style or color one could ask for that will not be found in this vast assortment. Misses' and Women's sizes.

Smart Fur-Trimmed Tailleurs at $59.50

Positively None Worth Less Than $75

Many Worth $100

Every suit in this group is lavishly trimmed in the finest of furs; in many instances the fur being worth, in itself, the price of the entire garment. Aside from this, the suits are developed of the finest quality fabrics in the very best styles, making every one worth many dollars more than you will pay for it.

LUDENDORFF TELLS OF CRISIS THAT PRECEDED COLLAPSE OF TURKEY

Damascus. This, it is true, did not amount to a threat to Constantinople, but it had grave effects on the Turks' power to resist. Having regard to the loyalty of Enver and Talaat, this would not have had any decisive effect by itself on the attitude of Turkey, but the entente had now substantial free forces in Syria, and was also, as a result of the Bulgarian collapse, able at any time to march on Constantinople across the Maritza.

There were only very weak Turkish forces here, the task of protecting this line having been hitherto left to the Bulgarian army on the Sturma. It was, of course, possible to bring reinforcements from the Caucasus, and perhaps also from the Ukraine, but we had never succeeded in arranging transport of troops on any large scale across the Black Sea, the available shipping being insufficient.

Constantinople was bound to fall, and whether it fell in November or December made very little difference to the situation as a whole. Once the town fell, it was to be expected that the entente fleets would establish communication with Rumania through the Black Sea, and send troops through Bulgaria to the Danube. We could not hope to keep Rumania neutral. Sooner or later, the arrival of enemy troops in that country was certain.

Had to Defend Hungary.

It was obvious that the entente would attempt to recover Serbia, and to make an attack from there on Hungary and Austria, thus giving the coup de grace to the Double Monarchy. Our Balkan front was unstable, and it was quite uncertain whether we would be able to reconstruct it in Serbia and Bulgaria, or even on the Danube.

The position in Sofia at first was far from clear. We could not even tell whether the whole Bulgar army was really demoralized. The Serbian army had fought for years outside its own country, and had shown a fine example of true patriotism. The Bulgars could well have done the same. Of Old Bulgaria, too, not a foot was in enemy occupation.

If the Bulgar army fell out altogether, then it would certainly be the time for Germany and Austria-Hungary to send substantial forces to the Balkans.

In the then situation it was vital to do everything to secure our position in the Balkan peninsula, in order to prevent the entente moving into Hungary and making a flank attack on Germany and Austria. We sent a German division from Sebastopol through Bulgaria and Rumania to Sofia. Gen. von Arz also dispatched an Austro-Hungarian Division from the Ukraine through Rumania to Serbia.

German Troops Sent.

Three German divisions from the East, which had been released for service in the West, and had in part already set out on their journey thither, were diverted to Serbia. Lastly, two divisions from the Italian front, which had been handed over to us by Gen. von Arz for service in the West, were also sent.

Finally, even from the hard-pressed West front, G. H. Q. sent the Alpine Corps to Serbia; this corps had just been withdrawn from the line, and still had its mountain equipment, which was urgently needed for Serbia. The West thus lost six or seven divisions.

While the one German division was to be assembled at Sofia to support the Government, the others were intended to be grouped at Nish. Transport was so bad that this could not be completed before the middle of October.

Ludendorff tomorrow tells how the collapse of Bulgaria and the growing disaster in France caused him to urge immediate peace proposals. He was vastly impatient. He pressed the Government not even to lose 24 hours. Finally it was decided to make the proposals directly to President Wilson.

STRAIN OF LAST 10 DAYS FORCED WILSON TO TAKE A REST

vitality and when the doctors observed him twitching and halting his speech, which, by the way, was noticed by the correspondents, too, in the last few speeches, it was apparent that Mr. Wilson was physically near the end of his rope. It is difficult to describe the intensity of the President's feeling about the peace treaty. He thinks and talks of nothing else. He has said he would gladly lay down his life for the cause for which he has been touring the country. Whenever anyone in the crowd has suggested that Mr. Wilson might run for a third term, he has given the impression that he never would run. His advisers have cautioned him against making a definite statement against a third term until after the peace treaty is disposed of, but in his Pueblo speech he went far toward repudiating the idea that his tour had anything to do with the next presidential campaign. If anything has settled definitely in advance of an actual statement by the President his desire not to continue his public office when once his term expires, it is the condition of his health since returning from abroad. The fact is, if Woodrow Wilson is to finish his term at all he must have much care, quiet and rest "for a considerable length of time," which are the words of his own physician.

PULLMAN "MYSTERY" SOLVED

"Peeping Toms" Found to Be Innocent Car Inspectors.

Complaints from occupants of Pullman cars on southbound Illinois Central trains at the Relay Depot in East St. Louis that a "peeping Tom" was nightly peering into windows became so numerous last week that on Friday night a squad of city detectives was stationed to arrest the peeper.

They discovered that two car inspectors in signaling each other from beside the coaches raised their lanterns above their heads, thus casting rays into car windows. The inspectors' eyes did not follow.

FEDERAL JUDGE ISSUES ORDER TO STOP FACTORY PICKETING

Court Says Union Officials Should Be Punished for Conspiracy.

Federal Judge Dyer yesterday issued a temporary injunction to restrain members of the United Cloth Hat and Cap Makers' Union from picketing seven St. Louis hat and cap factories where strikes are on, in so far as such picketing would involve the use of force or abuse or the congregating of picketers in large numbers. The Marshal was instructed to see that the Court's orders were carried out.

The Judge said national officers and organizers of the union who have been in St. Louis directing the strike should be punished, as the evidence showed a conspiracy to hinder interstate commerce.

Judge Dyer also made permanent an injunction retraining striking employes of the Jewel Tea and Coffee Co. from forceful and abusive picketing.

How Any Woman Can Remove Hairy Growths

(Beauty Culture)

It is not longer necessary for a woman to visit a beauty specialist to have superfluous hairs removed, for, with the aid of a plain delatone paste, she can, in the privacy of her own home, remove even a stubborn growth in a very few minutes. The paste is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. This is applied to the hairs and after 2 or 3 minutes removed and the skin washed, when it will be left clear and hairless. Be sure you buy real delatone.—ADV.

PUBLIC'S VOICE IN INDUSTRIAL CONFERENCE

Who Representatives Are; Criticism Made—List in This Group Is Topheavy With Employers.

SOME CAPITALISTS HAVE LIBERAL VIEWS

Large Proportion Served on War Trade Board or Similar Organizations, Thus Learning Problems.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The criticism has been made that the President's list of 22 men to represent the public in the industrial conference to be held here beginning Oct. 6 is top-heavy with representatives of large employing and financial interests. On the basis of a naked statement of the business connection of the conferees, the criticism has point, for 12 may be put down as identified with the management of big enterprises. Two are primarily economists, two are former leaders of the Socialist party, three are primarily representative of the farmers, and two appointments may be regarded as political.

How They Line Up.

According to this classification, the line-up of those who have accepted is as follows:

Financial and manufacturing—Bernard M. Baruch, New York, financier; Robert S. Brookings, St. Louis, merchant, financier; John D. Rockefeller Jr., New York, capitalist; Elbert H. Gary, New York, chief executive officer, United States Steel Corporation; Ward Burgess, Omaha, wholesale dry goods merchant; Fuller R. Callaway, LaGrange, Ga., cotton manufacturer; Thomas L. Chadbourne, New York; lawyer, capitalist; H. B. Endicott, Milton, Mass.; shoe manufacturer; Paul L. Feiss, Cleveland; clothing manufacturer; George R. James, Memphis, merchant, banker, farmer; Thomas D. Jones, Chicago; capitalist; A. A. Landon, Buffalo, manufacturer.

Economists—Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard; Edwin F. Gray, Harvard dean.

Farming Interests—E. T. Meredith, Des Moines, farm journal publisher; L. D. Sweet, Carbondale, Colo., potato grower; O. E. Bradfute, Xena, O., farmer.

Socialistic—Charles Edward Russell, New York, author; John Spargo, Vermont, author.

Political—Gavin McNab, San Francisco, lawyer; Louis Titus, San Francisco, lawyer.

Doesn't Consider Sympathies.

The foregoing list, of course, does not take into account the sympathies of the various conferees. Some of those listed as representing capital are men of known liberal views; among these, notably, are Callaway, Endicott and Feiss. It will be noted from the following "Who's Who," that a large proportion of the President's selections are men who served during the war on the War Trade Board or similar organizations, and thereby, it is to be presumed, got an intimate view of national industrial problems.

Bernard M. Baruch of New York is thought to be slated for the chairmanship of the conference; in any event, he will be one of its most influential members. Baruch jumped into national prominence as a central figure in the congressional "leak" investigation of 1916. Asked by the Investigating Committee to state his business, Baruch escaped the inquisition in store for him by replying simply and frankly that he was a "speculator." It developed that he was not a beneficiary of the "leak" through which some of the Wall street interests had obtained advance information of the nature of the President's reply to the pending German peace overtures. The committee exonerated him of blame. Baruch had given evidence of his shrewdness as a speculator in another way. When the reply of Lloyd George to the German proposals came over the ticker, through legitimate news channels, he read the apparently conciliatory statement till he came to the word "but." He read no more, but immediately began, by selling short, to back his belief that the war would go on. His correct interpretation of what lay beyond the "but" netted him $500,000. Testifying before the committee, he confided that he had never completed the reading of the note. The incident of Baruch's testimony is recalled here as illustrative of his frankness and his vision—two qualities that would seem to fit him for the work of the coming conference.

Learned Industrial Conditions.

Baruch came down to Washington as a dollar-a-year man, and served with distinction throughout the war. He is best known now as former chairman of the War Industries Board, which was charged with the difficult task of increasing productivity for war purposes without unnecessary interference with normal industrial processes. In this capacity he gained an intimate knowledge of industrial conditions and saw the necessity of bringing about better co-operation between capital and labor. When the peace conference came on, the President took him to Paris as an economic adviser to the American mission. It is believed by many that he was offered the post of Secretary of the Treasury, and when Secretary Redfield recently announced that he would leave the Cabinet, gossip immediately connected his name with the coming vacancy in the Commerce Department. Apparently Baruch enjoys the full confidence of the President.

The selection of "Barney" Baruch as a conferee on behalf of the public is generally approved. He knows the problems of employer and employed; he is frank, open-minded and of pleasing personality; his thinking, as shown by public utterances, is along liberal lines. As between capital and labor, he can be counted on to hold the scales of justice even.

To Conference With Open Mind.

Robert S. Brookings, of St. Louis, president of the Washington University Corporation, obtained an insight into labor conditions as chairman of the price-fixing section of the War Industries Board, and it is largely for this reason, it is believed, that the President named him a member of the conference. In discussing his appointment, Brookings said that he would approach the work of the conference with an open mind, and cited the fact that, at price-fixing hearings during the war, he had insisted that the distinctive rights of labor be recognized.

The name of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is sufficient identification. He is associated with his father in Standard Oil and other big business enterprises and is active in Sunday-School and philanthropic work.

Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the Board of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation, gets his title of Judge from the fact that he was once a county judge in Illinois. On the employers' side, Judge Gary is now the storm center of the steel strike, owing to his refusal to deal with union representatives and his announced opposition to the closed-shop principle. Labor and liberal circles here are severely critical of the appointment of Judge Gary to sit in the conference.

Representatives of Public.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot was president of Harvard for 40 years and is now President emeritus. He is probably the best known educator in the country. He has written and lectured extensively on a great variety of public questions, and lately has been conspicuous in his advocacy of the league of nations. In addition to numerous academic honors, he has received decorations from several foreign Governments. Dr. Eliot is now 85 years old. He and Dean Gay are probably more truly representative of the public, as between the conflicting claims of capital and labor, than any of the others.

Charles Edward Russell of New York is one of the two former Socialist party leaders named by the President. As a newspaper reporter he is credited with having been the first man to get into Johnstown, Pa., after the flood at that city. He has held various executive positions on newspapers and has contributed extensively to magazines. He was Socialist candidate for Governor of New York in 1910 and again in 1912 and was a member of the Root mission to Russia in 1917. Repudiating what he believed was the anti-war attitude of his party, Russell threw himself wholeheartedly into support of the war and he is now prominent in the fight against Bolshevism.

John Spargo of Vermont also split with the Socialist party, in which he had been a leader, on the war issue. Spargo was born in England and came to this country in 1901. As author and lecturer he has been active in the Socialistic cause. He was a delegate to the International Socialist and Trades Union Congress in Copenhagen in 1910 and was on the National Executive Committee of the Socialist party, resigning when the United States entered the war. His latest book is an indictment of Bolshevism.

O. E. Bradfute of Xenia, O., president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, is classified as a farmers' representative in the conference. He is regarded as an authority on agriculture, having farmed on a large scale for many years. His farm near Xenia is described as a model.

Ward Burgess is a wholesale dry goods merchant of Omaha, Neb. He directed the War Savings Stamp campaign in Nebraska, which led all the states in the amount subscribed per capita. When Vanderlip resigned as head of the national campaign, Burgess came here to succeed ceed him. He has since returned to Omaha. Friends describe him as open-minded and courageous in expressing his views. He is a Republican, but a close personal friend of Senator Hitchcock, Democratic leader.

Fuller R. Callaway of La Grange, Ga., is a cotton manufacturer and financier, and has taken a prominent part in various cotton conferences. He is accounted an authority on agricultural matters in Georgia.

Thomas L. Chadbourne of New York is a lawyer, who, during the war was the special representative of the State Department on the War Trade Board. He is general counsel for the Midvale Steel Co. Though his personal interests are with capital, Chadbourne is said to entertain liberal views toward labor.

Charles G. Dawes of Chicago, former Comptroller of the Treasury, one of the President's original 22 selections, has declined to serve.

Capitalist of Liberal Views.

H. B. Endicott of Milton, Mass., is president of the Endicott-Johnson Corporation, with general offices at Endicott, N. Y., one of the largest manufacturers of shoes in the world and owners of the next to the largest tannery. Endicott is described by his friends as a capitalist of liberal tendencies, who has gone far along the line of profit-sharing and co-operation with his employes. After the passage of the Adamson eight-hour railroad law, he wrote a congratulatory letter to President Wilson, saying that he had already made the eight-hour day a rule in his shoe factories. Though a Republican, he supported Wilson at the last election. He has been conspicuous as an arbiter in labor disputes.

Paul L. Feiss of Cleveland, president of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, is another employer who has taken a progressive stand in industrial relations. He is a clothing manufacturer and distributer.

Edwin F. Gay, dean of the graduate school of business administration at Harvard University, is an economist of note. During the war he was a member of the War Trade Board and served in various other capacities where his talents were useful. It is understood that he will leave Harvard, Jan. 1 to join the staff of the New York Evening Post.

George R. James, of Memphis, Tenn., is one of the most prominent men of that city, holding large interests as merchant, banker and farmer. He is president of a wagon company, president of a large department store company, vice president of the Central States National Bank at Memphis, and owner of a large model farm near that city. He has taken an active interest in agricultural development in the South. During the war he was head of the cotton linters section of the War Industries Board.

Millionaire Friend of Wilson.

Thomas D. Jones of Chicago is the man whose nomination to be a member of the Federal Reserve Board in 1914 was withdrawn by President Wilson after a fight on his confirmation led by Senator Reed of Missouri. Jones was a classmate of the President and is his personal friend. He is a director of the International Harvester Co. and of the New Jersey Zinc Co. and president of the Mineral Point Zinc Co. He is rated a millionaire. He served during the war as a member of the War Trade Board.

A. A. Landon of Buffalo is vice president, in charge of manufacturing, of the American Radiator Co., and a former member of the Buffalo Chamber of Commerce. Landon's experience is held to have fitted him peculiarly for helping to solve the problems of capital and labor. He came up from the labor ranks, having been at one time a leader in the old Knights of Labor. His war service was with the Aircraft Production Board and with the War Industries Board, on which he had the special duty of looking after the interests of the so-called non-essential industries.

E. T. Meredith of Des Moines, Io., though a man of large financial interests, is primarily a farmers' representative, being editor of Successful Farming, one of the largest farm papers. He was Democratic candidate for Senator from Iowa in 1914 and candidate for Governor in 1916. Secretary McAdoo in 1917 made him a member of the board to advise upon the administration of the excess profits law. He is a director of the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank and until recently was a director of the United States Chamber of Commerce. During the war he went to Europe with a party of editors. A young man, he has become wealthy as a publisher, and a few years ago signalized his success by building a fine printing plant that is one of the show places of Des Moines.

Served as Arbitrator.

Gavin McNab, a San Francisco lawyer, is one of President Wilson's spokesmen in California. He is described by his friends as a canny Scot of engaging personality and boundless energy. He has served successfully on boards of arbitration in labor disputes and has been active in civic reform movements. Though prominent in Western politics, having served in 1916 as a member of the Democratic National Campaign Committee, he has not himself sought public office. During the war the President called him to Washington to investigate the aircraft production situation, and it was on his advice, it is said, that a single civilian executive (John D. Ryan) was placed in charge. McNab is quoted as saying that a law ought to be passed to prevent any Congressman from staying in Washington for more than 60 days at a time.

L. D. Sweet of Carondelet, Colo., is called the "potato king" of Colorado, being one of the largest growers of potatoes in the country. Under the Food Administration during the war he had charge of the potato section and worked out a system of grading.

Louis Titus of San Francisco is a lawyer known in Washington as a representative of Southern California oil interests. He has appeared before congressional committees in behalf of the claimants affected by the order of President Taft withdrawing oil lands for the use of the navy.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA FACES $45,000 DEFICIT

Increase in Salaries Expected to Bring Loss Despite Sold-Out Houses; Guarantee Fund Sought.

With indications that sold-out houses will be the rule during the coming season of the Symphony Orchestra, and with the price of tickets advanced from 12 to 22 per cent, there is still a prospect of a deficit of more than $45,000, according to an announcement by Manager Gaines.

He estimated that the total expenditure for the season will be $116,461.37, of which $90,725 will be to pay salaries for conductor, musicians and soloists, while $25,736.37 will be used for hall rent, advertising, management and office expense, printing and miscellaneous expense. The income from ticket sales is calculated at $71,000, leaving a deficit of $45,461.37.

The cost of giving the concerts has increased 28 per cent over last year, said Gaines, due principally to increases of salary for members of the orchestra. An appeal for contributions to the Guarantee Fund, which will be used to defray the deficit, will be sent out this week.

The question of annual deficits was discussed at the first meeting of Orchestra Managers of America in New York last week. It was agreed that the most satisfactory method is to raise a big endowment fund, to be kept intact, but the income from which would meet the yearly losses.

The Chicago and New York Philharmonic Orchestras have such endowments. The other American Orchestras, including the one in St. Louis, are maintained by guarantee funds, raised annually.

The Association of Orchestra Managers of America elected the following officers: President, Frederick J. Wessels, manager of the Chicago Orchesta, and secretary-treasurer, George Engles, manager of the New York Symphony Orchestra. The managers believe that by means of frequent meetings and exchange of ideas much profit will accrue to orchestral music all over the country.

U. S. AID FOR DISABLED MAIL CLERK SOUGHT IN CONGRESS

Bedridden 10 Years, Arthur E. Rump Supports Himself by Soliciting Magazine Subscriptions.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Behind the few formal lines of a bill introduced in the House today by Representative Newton of St. Louis is the story of the plucky effort of Arthur E. Rump, 6216 Columbia avenue, St. Louis, to make a living while lying helplessly disabled in bed. Newton's bill proposes that Rump be given the benefits of the employers' liability act of 1916.

Ten years ago, while a mail clerk in the St. Louis Post Office, Rump was struck by a mail bag falling from an overhead carrier, and was paralyzed from the shoulders down. Since then he has been in bed. He has endeavored to support himself by soliciting magazine subscriptions over a telephone installed at his bedside. Two years ago a bill was introduced in Congress giving Rump $10,000. This was cut to $2000 in the measure as passed.

Rump's wife died two or three years ago and he is said to be dependent now on his own efforts, his mother, aged 70, being unable to aid him. His injury having occurred before the passage of the liability act, he is not entitled to compensation. Newton's bill extending the act would give him a pension of $66 a month. It has been endorsed by the Chairman of the United States employes' compensation commission, who has promised Newton his co-operation in getting it favorably considered.

YOUR DRUGGIST will receive your Want Ads for the Post-Dispatch at the same rates charged at the main office. Try him. He sells other things than medicine. Look around.

FRENCH DEMAND "BIG BERTHAS" BE GIVEN TO GOVERNMENT

Deputy Declares Famous Guns Belong to France Under Terms of Armistice.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Sept. 27.—Where are the "Big Berthas" and why have they not been turned over to France? These are questions now asked in Paris. Recently Deputy Charles Lebouck proposed their acquisition as national property of the Bois de Crepy en Laonnais whence the huge guns bombarded Paris, killing the worshipers in the church of St. Gervais. The emplacement still stands but the guns themselves remain in German hands.

Lebouck and others now point out that, under the terms of the armistice, they belong to France. They have not yet been examined by French technicians and most of the information as to their construction has come from German prisoners.

"Our children," he says, "should visit the historic spot to realize the beauties of kultur. They will learn how the whole family of the Crown Prince made a holiday there to celebrate the bombardment of St. Gervais. My proposal is for a popular subscription in Paris to make possible the consecration of this historical spot."

TWO-TON BELL IN CITY HALL TOWER TO BE MELTED THERE

Corroded Steel Supports Render Removal Necessary—Acetylene Torches Will Be Used.

The two-ton bell which hangs in the tower of the city hall has made the tower unsafe, but the bell is so large it would be dangerous to try to take it down, so it is to be melted right where it is, with acetylene blow torches, such as are commonly seen in use by workmen repairing car tracks.

Building Commissioner McKelvey pronounced the tower unsafe as long as the bell remains, because the steel supports have become corroded. Moreover, he said, an attempt to lower the bell would be very dangerous, therefore the decision to take it down a bucketful at a time.

The only time in recent years that the bell has been rung was the day of the armistice celebration. It was rung when the building was constructed in 1904 and cost about $2000. The expense of removing it will be about $1500. It is six feet high, and four feet in diameter at the base.

ARRESTED FOR HITTING INFANT

Charged with beating his 7-months-old son with his fists, because the baby refused to stop crying, John Savage, 6135 Myrtle avenue, Wellston, was arrested yesterday when at work at the Curtis Manufacturing Co. The complaint was made by his wife, Mrs. Naddie Savage.

Savage admitted, when arrested, that he had hit the baby "because it kept him awake," but said he "didn't hurt it as much as they say I did." He was locked up on a charge of assault and battery.

TWELFTH AT LOCUST

Maintain, even in this time of scarcity, a stock of housefurnishings that embraces a greater variety of patterns and a more consistent range of values than can be found elsewhere.

We Build Our Own

Overstuffed Furniture

Our factory is right here in St. Louis, and every piece is built under our personal supervision—from start to finish.

The Trorlicht-Duncker guarantee that goes with every piece we sell is made possible by this direct oversight.

Our stock of tapestries, damasks, brocades, velvets, velours etc., is the largest and most varied in the West, and those who buy overstuffed furniture of us have the privilege of selecting coverings from this unusual variety of fabrics and color effects—which is an advantage of much moment to any one who wants the best, yet it costs no more.

Our Great-Grandmother's Hall Clock

was built by a master clockmaker of an era famed for its masters of design. The clocks of that day found favor with the Puritan and the Cavalier, a natural response to an aesthetic appeal based on truth—the foundation of art.

Reproductions of the best clocks of that period constitute the Trorlicht-Duncker collection of Hall Clocks, which is now displayed on the street level floor of our store.

We invite every one who enjoys the study of period designs to see this collection of clocks. All of them are for sale at very reasonable prices, which range between $37.50 for the least expensive, and for our finest......... $875.00

Box Springs—and Others

All of Them Good

We sell Bed Springs of many kinds. Every spring chosen by us because of some particular point of excellence or because of a combination of excellent features. Anyone looking for good springs of any type should come to this store—we have the variety to choose from. We have Box Springs at varying prices according to materials used in their construction. Our prices on them being consistently low in every instance.

We have other Springs to meet every requirement—and our prices on them vary from $7.50 each up to.... $18.00

Pillows of Down

We sell Feather Pillows and Pillows made of softest down. They are all of the plump kind that support one's head so comfortably that restful sleep takes quiet possession.

We have these most desirable qualities in different sizes and weights—all guaranteed—which we price very reasonably, lower than, as a rule, they can be bought elsewhere.

What Sort of Mattress Do You Like?

There is not much doubt about our having it, because we have them that are made of cotton felt, Kapok fiber, Illinasilk or curled har. Then we have the famous SEALY MATTRESS which is, virtually, a great big pillow made to sleep on. Imagine the delightful comfort you would feel if your whole body were to rest in bed as comfortably as your head lies on its softly yielding pillow! This imagined comfort you will convert into a positive fact when you buy a SEALY for your own bed. Bear in mind—

Trorlicht-Duncker Sell Sealy Mattresses

Yard-Wide Cretonnes

We have them in dainty stripes and pretty floral patterns for bedroom draperies, and in stronger patterns brought out in the bright colorings and rich effects suitable to the decoration of living rooms, bedrooms, dining rooms and sun rooms. Our price on this quality is only, a yard. 85 Cents

English Casement Cloth

A well-finished, good weight fabric of very convincing quality that comes in the ecru color and is woven in vertical stripes—plain and figured. It measures one and a half yards in width, and when draped falls into very dignified and graceful lines, its weight being sufficient to properly support the fringe used as a trimming. Our price on this handsome cloth is only, a yard.......... $2.75

Trorlicht-Duncker for Rugs—Always

Today, when it is so difficult to procure Rugs from manufacturers in sufficient numbers to even partly supply the demand, our position as the largest Rug house in the world is a matter of interest to you, because it enables us to show a greater variety of patterns and a wider range of values than is shown anywhere else.

SEARCH FOR MISSOURI JEWS MISSING IN WAR

Families in Poland, Aided by Relatives Here, Lost Trace of Them Since Conflict Began.

NEW YORK.—Search for Jewish breadwinners in this country whose families in Poland and adjacent countries have lost track of them as a result of the war-time interruption of communication, began on a nation-wide scale here with the publication by the Joint Distribution Committee of American Funds for Jewish War Sufferers, of a list containing the names and last known addresses of 4000-such people. The list contains names from practically every state.

In many instances both the breadwinner on this side and the dependents abroad have moved several times during the war, and have been unable to communicate with one another. The result is that fathers, husbands, sons and brothers in America have been frantically striving to send funds to their families in Europe, while these unfortunates have for years been destitute and unable to understand why their supporters in America have failed them. Thousands of these people in Poland, Lithuania and nearby countries have been kept alive for many months by the Joint Distribution Committee's funds and supplies. The present effort on a large scale to reunite these broken family ties is designed to lessen the drain upon these relief funds and to place the financial burden of supporting these people upon their long lost, but willing enough breadwinners in America.

Co-operation Urged.

Religious, social service and all other agencies are urged by Felix M. Warburg, chairman of the committee, to co-operate in locating these lost relatives. Information about them should be forwarded to the Transmission Bureau, 98 Second avenue. This bureau will also forward funds in small amounts without charge for transmission. More than 18,000 individual remittances have been sent abroad by this bureau in the past few months, and its facilities are at the disposal of all.

The following list gives the missing from Missouri, known to their relatives abroad and the person in Europe making the inquiry: J. Komon, 1400 Dioldes street, Jameson, sought by Homo Kamionocko from Kloszcezelo; F. ST. LOUIS' QUOTA FOR MEMORIAL

St. Louis' quota of the $5,000,000 Theodore Roosevelt Memorial Fund is $70,000, as announced by the Missouri Committee of the Roosevelt Memorial Association, which will make a nation-wide campaign during the week beginning Oct. 22, to raise the money.

A number of Democrats are on the committee, including Chief Justice Bond of the State Supreme Court. Kansas City's allotment is $40,000.

JAPANESE WILL NOT ABANDON MANCHURIA RIGHTS, SAYS KATO

Viscount Kato Believes Shantung Should Be Excluded From Allied Agreement.

TOKIO, Sept. 19.—Speaking at Nagoya, Viscount Kato, former Minister for Foreign Affairs, and the man generally considered responsible for the treaty in 1915 with China, declared Japan would never consent to abandon her preferential rights in Manchuria and Mongolia.

Viscount Kato, who is leader of the opposition party, said his organization also believed Japan's rights in Shantung were based on treaties and agreements which should be excluded from the proposed consortation in which the United States, Great Britain, France and Japan would participate.

Children who have given benefits for the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund are urged to make their report within the next two days, as the campaign for the babies will be officially closed on Oct. 1. A strict record has been kept of all tickets furnished to workers, and those who have tickets which were not used will kindly return them to the Milk Fund Editor, as each ticket must be accounted for.

A bazar at 5728 McPherson avenue netted $1.38 for the babies. It was under the management of Bernice Wertheimer, Goldie Schultz, Esther Handleman and Simon, Kathryn and Marie Steinberg.

The "Jolly Five" club gave their annual show for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch Milk and Ice Fund a few days ago and earned $8.25. The children presented a play, "At the Bee Hive School," composed by members of the club. Those who participated were Edna Jackson, Evelyn Mausmer, Mary Helen Bartlett, and Frances and Beulah Newberry. The performance was staged at 1436 McCausland avenue.

Show Given for Fund.

Children from the neighborhood gave a show at 3455A Henrietta street which brought $8 for the fund. The group of workers consisted of Pearl Heinzer, Grace Koester, Mildred Frazier, Florence Cremer, Ruth and Edna Whelan, Alvina Sorbitz, Lillian Lancken, Fred Groth and Everett Kleinschmidt.

A show at 3332 South Eighteenth street, which netted $10 for the babies, was managed by Violet Rinke and Florence Berger. They were assisted by Myrtle and George Harvey, Myrtle Henne, Lorgia, Clarence and Richard Berger, Adele Westrict, Anna Griel, Oliver Crinckelmeyer, Myrtle and Sadie Sieler, Martha and Virginia Stoffler and Ralph Berger.

Six girls from the 5700 block on Easton avenue gave a Milk Fund show recently and earned $5. The names of the girls who participated follow: Virginia Decker, Mary and Genevieve Young, Heren Aronoff, Ruth Cohen and Kitty Ginsberg.

Julian Flieg, age 5, with the assistance of Margaret Hodgeman, 13 years, conducted the second lemonade stand he has managed this season at 4747 McPherson avenue, and earned $4.95 for the babies.

Gertrude Cannon, Mildred and Evelyn Hoaper, Ada and Eva Green, Florence Smith and Marian and Alleen Andreas gave a show at 3727A Lucky street and donated the proceeds of $3 to the fund.

Julia Sigoloff forwarded $1 to the fund with the statement that it represented the net proceeds of a lemonade stand, but she failed to enclose her address and did not mention where the stand was conducted.

POGROMS IN SIBERIA DENIED

American Consul at Omsk Says Massacre Reports Are False.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Reports of pogroms in Siberia were denied in an official dispatch from Ernest L. Harris, American consul at Omsk, received today at the State Department. The message said:

"At no time has there been a single pogrom since Kolchak came into power."

Children's Conservation Conference.

Representatives of 20 public schools attended the meeting of the Children's Conservation Conference Tuesday afternoon at the Women's Chamber of Commerce club rooms in the Title Guaranty Building, under the auspices of the Chouteau-Lindell Improvement Association. Mrs. Calvin Miller, Mrs. Norman Windsor and Mrs. Littlefield spoke.

ROCKEFELLER $29,000,000 GIFT TO IMPROVE MEDICAL COLLEGES

Secretary of Board Says Distribution Will Be Determined Definitely in December.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Abraham Flexner, secretary of the General Education Board, stated today that, while it was impossible to indicate the method of distribution of the fund of $29,000,000, donated by John D. Rockefeller for medical education, just announced, until the board's next meeting in December, "the obvious intent would seem to be to improve the equipment of medical colleges in this country, and therefore the quality of outfit of those institutions." He added that "the widest possible discretion is permitted."

It is estimated that Rockefeller's gifts to public causes total more than $300,000,000.

SIGHTLESS MILLER'S MACHINE

Improved Machinery for Alton Mill Is Planned.

F. Sparks, treasurer of the Sparks Milling Co., at Alton, who lost his sight a year ago, is working out details of a plan for a new machine for use in the mill. He has explained his idea to a mechanic at the mill who is working on the machine.

A model has been constructed, and will soon be given a test. Sparks makes frequent trips from his home in St. Louis to the mills at Alton to learn the progress of the machine.

NEW CARDINALS MAY BE NAMED AT THE NEXT CONSISTORY

No French, Spanish or Australian Prelates Are to Be Elevated Now, It Is Said.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Thursday, Sept. 25.—At the next consistory it is probable the appointmnt of new Cardinals will be announced. Reports seem to indicate that the red hat will be given Monsignor Kakowski, Archbishop of Warsaw; Monsignor Ragonesi, papal nuncio at Madrid; Monsignor Valfri di Bouzo, nuncio at Vienna; Monsignor Sardi, assessor of the Consistinal congregation; Monsignor Isili, vice chamberlain of the church, and Monsignor Canassi, patriarch of Constantinople. It is said that perhaps Monsignor San Salvatori, Archbishop of Bahia, Brazil, may be another new Cardinal.

No French prelates are to be elevated to the Sacred College, it is said, France having already a larger number than is customary to grant her. For the same reason there will be no Spanish Cardinals.

In the Consistory of 1916 two Cardinals were created but their names were withheld. It was generally believed they were Monsignor Huyn, then Archbishop of Prague, and Monsignor Bertram, Archbishop of Breslau, but since then the former has resigned from his archbishopric, and the latter owed his red hat to the fact that Berlin was then capital of the empire which comprised his jurisdiction. Owing to the changes which have occurred, Pope Benedict will probably postpone further announcement of the creation of these two new Cardinals.

It is probable that an Australian Cardinal will not be appointed at this time, since the anti-English feeling runs high now on the continent.

HEIRESS BREAKS ENGAGEMENT

(Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, Sept. 27.—"The engagement between Fred Barnes, a well-known musical artist, and Miss Kathleen Aldous, an American heiress, whose home is in New York, has been broken off," the Daily Mail asserts, "because Miss Aldous' parents insisted on Mr. Barnes leaving the stage. This he could not see his way to do.

"So ends a romance that commenced when Mr. Barnes found Miss Aldous with a broken motor car. From this chance meeting a friendship sprung up."

SERMONS ON CENTENNIAL

Sermons on the centennial celebration of the Chrust Church Cathedral, Thirteenth and Locust streets, which is to be held Nov. 1 to 9, will be given at all Episcopal churches in the city this morning.

The pulpit of the Rev. C. M. Davis, dean of the cathedral, will be occupied by the Rev. Ambler M. Blackford of Beaufort, S. C., and Dean Davis will preach at the Church of the Holy Communion. Other Episcopalian rectors will exchange pulpits for the morning services. A reunion of all former choir singers of the cathedral will be a feature of the day.

Meeting of Parish Members.

A meeting of the parish members of the St. Vincent de Paul Church, Ninth and Barry streets, to complete plans for the celebration of the diamond jubilee of the church, Nov. 1, will be held tomorrow night at the parochial residence.

"The City's Most Popular Store for Boys"

Your Boys' Clothes

THERE is no mysterious secret behind long life and satisfactory service in clothes for boys.

Quality—and quality alone—will prove tearproof and holeproof; any other claim is based upon misrepresentation.

The idea that quality "costs too much" is a fallacy; genuine quality always is most economical.

Of that fact even a casual examination of our boys' wear assortments will permanently convince you.

His School Suit - - is an item of great moment to him.

—It must be strong, sturdy and durable and have lots of style—the sort the other fellows are wearing.

—It must reflect the care-free spirit of youth and the atmosphere of the thoroughbred.

Our Suits

are built for the boy in action.

Under the exterior—where the eye does not penetrate—is the skilled, substantial labor that makes for a life of hard wear.

Two Knicker Suits

$8.75 to $25

Our Boys' Shop

Our entire second floor is devoted exclusively to Boys' Clothing, Hats and Furnishings.

Thousands of mothers have found it a delightful place in which to shop, and have learned that the best costs less here than elsewhere. Come in and see.

The Heroic Deeds of American Boys in the Great Argonne Drive Will Be Perpetuated in Memorial Park

"For many years to come the soldiers who participated in the Argonne drive will celebrate it and perhaps their children after them."

"What they did was more than to win a battle."

"They showed to the world that the United States, while not a military nation * * *, is the world's most potent fighting nation and must be reckoned with in world's affairs when the sentiment of the American people is aroused."

"The men who laid down their lives in the Argonne have thus made a lasting impress upon the thought and action of the whole world, which shall last as long as this nation preserves its own spiritual power and has both the strength and the willingness to battle for the right."

PUBLIC SERVICE BOARDS CRITICISED IN REPORT

Civic League Makes Public Statement Following Survey Made in 1914.

In support of its contention that the control of the State Public Service Commission over the United Railways Co. and other St. Louis utilities should be abolished, the executive board of the Civic League yesterday made public the findings of the Minnesota Home Rule League in 1914, as a result of a country-wide survey of such State commissions' work.

The report is chosen, the league explains, because it covers the activities of the State commissions before the war, "when there was no excuse by reason of abnormal conditions for their pro-utility bias."

The summary of findings, taken from the Minnesota report, and which was sent to Gov. Gardner, Mayor Cowgill of Kansas City and all who attended the Mayors' conference in this latter city last year, is as follows:

"The evidence in its general application to the United States plainly clinches the following big facts:

"1. The latter day inspiration for state regulation comes from the public utility companies to be regulated, reinforced by an element of the so-called progressives in some states who have been made to believe that state regulation is a progressive institution.

Seek Men of "Right" Minds.

"2. That the public utilities have sought to write the laws and have done so in some cases, and modified the laws in others; have used their influence upon the appointing power to name men of 'right' minds on the commissions; have sought to influence the attitude and control the action of the commissions after appointment.

"3. That with few exceptions the men occupying positions on State commissions had no technical or special qualifications for the work, and in most cases were selected for services past or prospective to the appointing power, and in other cases were men with public utility or allied affiliations, or men known to have a strong corporation or property bias.

"4. That state regulation has not given the people the benefit of as favorable rates, or as good service as many cities with home rule powers have secured for themselves.

"5. That it has not eliminated the public utilities from local politics, but on the contrary has compelled them to become more active than before.

"6. That the effect on local citizenship has been disastrous, weakening the community in initiative, self-reliance and capacity for self-government.

"7. That in the valuation field, both for rate making and purchase, the state commissions have shown a strong leaning toward the interests of the utilities companies.

Serves Purpose Admirably.

"8. That the public utilities have found that state regulation serves their purpose admirably; that it protects them from unreasonable rates; assures them liberal dividends; imposes no unreasonable service obligations; by means of the indeterminate permit assures the permanency of the investment with opportunity to get out in the event of purchase by the city at a price considerably above the legitimate investment in property; increases the market value of their securities; and finally, in effect, guarantees the integrity of their securities.

"The above indictment is general against the result of state regulation when it has been fairly tried out, with reservations in the case of California."

In an analysis of the work of the Wisconsin Railroad Commission, the first state regulating body and one of the best in the country, the Home Rule League found that the commission had granted reduction to cities in but 7 per cent of cases coming before it for reduction, while it had granted the companies increases in 96 per cent of the cases requesting such increases. It had been found absolutely helpless in bringing about better service.

"This condition," the Civic League comments, "arises from the very nature of the State commissions. Not alone are these commissions as far removed from the people of the cities as is possible; but they are not even elected, as are the Judges of our Supreme Court. In Wisconsin an effort has been made to have the commissioners elected. The real way out is, as many states are now attempting, to abolish the commission's control of the larger cities, and place the regulating power where the franchise power is—in the hands of the municipality."

New Thought Convention Closes.

The Missouri convention of the New Thought League, which has been in session since Thursday will close today with three services in Westminster Hall, 3806 Olive street. Speakers will be T. J. Shelton, Emil Hartman and Mrs. Viola Kimmel. The hours are 11 a. m. to 2:30 and 8 p. m.

PROTECTION OF AMERICAN TROOPS IN ARMENIA ASKED

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Pleas for American military protection in Armenia were made before a Senate Foreign Relations Sub-committee today, by a commission of Armenians headed by H. H. Gulesian, of Boston. They appeared in support of a resolution by Senator Williams, Democrat, Mississippi, which would authorize the President to use troops in Armenia to protect the inhabitants from attacks by the Turks after the withdrawal of the British forces.

Spokesmen for the commission said it would not be necessary to send more than 20,000 men, as an adequate native force could be gathered about this nucleus. Miran Sevasly, who told of the outrages and indignities the Armenians had suffered at the hands of the Turks, suggested that the force might be made up largely of Americans of Armenian origin, 10,000 of whom served in the American army during the war.

Gulesiac, who was a student at the Plattsburg army training camp argued for the appointment of an American Governor-General of Armenia.

BILL WOULD PROTECT INLAND WATER BOATS

Measure Provides Transfer to U. S. Board of River Facilities and for Rate Protection.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Protection for the inland waterway carriers against unfair railroad competition after the roads are restored to private control, is provided for in a bill introduced by Senator Ransdell of Louisiana, one of the leading congressional advocates of waterway development. The bill would transfer to the United States Shipping Board all the canal and river facilities acquired by the Government under the Federal control act, including the boats constructed or authorized for the navigation of the Mississippi River above St. Louis.

The board is directed to carry out all waterway contracts entered into by the Railroad Administration, and to continue the operation of the water carriers for a minimum period of five years after the approval of the act. Authorization is given the board to use any funds allotted the Railroad Administration for waterway purposes, and to build additional boats for the development of transportation on any of the inland waterways of the United States. Cutting rates by railroads to meet the lower tariffs of competing water lines is prohibited unless the reduction shall be found by the Interstate Commerce Commission to be in the public interest.

Further Provision.

It is further provided that the commission shall not permit any railroad to reduce existing rates between points competitive with a water line, unless the road also maintain similarly reduced rates as the maximum at all intermediate points on its lines.

The bill instructs the Interstate Commerce Commission to require the building of connecting links between rail carriers and docks at which there is to be interchange of passengers or freight. Power is vested in the commission to determine on what terms these connections shall be built.

Upon the application of any responsible water carrier, the bill stipulates, the commission shall establish through routes and joint rates. Upon application, also, it shall establish proportional rates over rail and water lines, and in no case shall the proportional rate on a railroad be greater than the proportional rate upon through traffic carried entirely by rail betwen the same points.

Rates to Prevail.

All through routes and point proportional rates now fixed by the railroad administration between rail and water carriers are to be deemed reasonable, the bill provides, and they may not be withdrawn or advanced, or the differentials between water and competing all-rail rates be changed, except by order of the Interstate Commerce Commission after a hearing. The burden of proof, the bill provides, shall be upon the rail carrier to show that existing rates and differentials are confiscatory.

To the Interstate Commerce Commission the bill also gives authority to settle rate disputes between connecting water carriers, but in general the commission shall have no jurisdiction over port to port rates by water.

The bill directs the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce to encourage waterway transportation by making a study of water terminals and types of boats, and by cooperating with cities and towns in planning terminals and obtaining joint rates.

CITY WILL WRECK BUILDING FRONTS TO WIDEN STREET

Director of Streets and Sewers Talbert yesterday said the city would begin tomorrow to tear out the fronts of the buildings from 2942 to 2950, and at 2665 Washington avenue for the widening of the street, whether or not the tenants have moved out.

Owners of the buildings originally agreed to take the necessary ten feet off the front of each building at their own expense, but the work has not been begun and the city has decided to wait no longer.

In wrecking the fronts the city will proceed on the theory that the buildings are obstructing a public highway. The cost will be charged to the owners.

ALLIANCE WILL FIGHT SPREAD OF TUBERCULAR AFFLICTIONS

An alliance between the Missouri Women's Federated Clubs and the Missouri Tuberculosis Association to combat the spread of tubercular afflictions will be formed at a meeting of the chairmen of the various organizations at the association headquarters, 706 Pontiac Building, Friday afternoon.

Dr. Walter McNabb Miller of Columbia, Mo., executive secretary of the association, is fostering the plan of the combination. Dr. Miller, who has just returned from Des Moines, Ia., where he attended the conference of the Mississippi Valley Tuberculosis Association, will be in charge of the campaign here. The 1920 convention of the National Tuberculosis Association, which will meet in St. Louis on April 22, will hear the reports of the work of the two organizations.

To Acquire Curly Hair In a Single Night

Hair tortured with the hot curling iron is bound to become dry, harsh and brittle, as so many know from sad experience. It's far more sensible to use plain liquid silmerine, which can do no harm and which produces a curliness much prettier and more natural in appearance. This has the peculiar property of drying in the most beautiful waves and creases imaginable. It is also a fine dressing for the hair, preserving its texture and health, keeping it delightfully soft and glossy. A few ounces from the druggist will last for weeks, so it is not at all expensive.

Liquid silmerine is not sticky or greasy and it won't stain or streak hair or scalp. A convenient way to use it is to pour a little into a saucer and then with a clean toothbrush apply evenly to the hair from root to tip. If this is done before retiring the added glory to one's "crowning glory" will be quite in evidence in the morning. The hair will be nice and fluffy when combed out. —Adv.

METHODISTS HERE URGE LEAGUE RATIFICATION

Conference Votes in Favor of Early Signing of Treaty to Bring World Peace.

A resolution urging early ratification of the league of nations covenant by the United States Senate, as "vital to the peace and progress of the world," was adopted unanimously yesterday by a rising vote of the annual St. Louis Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in session at St. John's Church, King's highway and Washington boulevard. There was no debate.

The text of the resolution, presented by the Rev. C. W. Tadlock, pastor of the Centenary Church, Sixteenth and Pine streets, follows:

"Whereas, The proposed covenant for a league of nations is now before the United States Senate for its consideration, and,

"Whereas, Said covenant is the most important issue to be determined affecting international relations, be it resolved,

"1. That the St. Louis annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, now assembled in the city of St. Louis, hereby records its judgment that the early ratification of said covenant is vital to the peace and progress of the world.

"2. The said conference, representing a large constituency of the citizenship of Missouri, earnestly requests our representatives in the national Senate to vote for the covenant, and to use their influence to bring about the ratification at an early date."

The conference, besides representing St. Louis churches of the denominations, includes Southern Missouri. The clerk was instructed to send copies of the resolution to Senators Reed and Spencer.

A telegram of greeting was sent by the conference to a similar conference of the Methodist Church at Kansas City, but no reference was made at the session to a possible merger of the two branches.

Bishop W. B. Murrah will deliver the annual conference sermon today at St. John's, and visiting ministers will occupy pulpits of Methodist churches this morning and evening, as well as those of Southern Methodist churches. Appointments for the coming year will be announced this evening by Bishop Murrah.

Assignments for this morning and evening follow: In Southern Methodist churches, for the morning services: Arlington, Rev. C. J. Barham; Bellefontaine, Rev. J. C. Montgomery; Bridgeton, Rev. L. D. Nichol; Christy, Rev. W. A. Humpheys; Centenary, Rev. A. H. Barnes; Clayton, Rev. R. D. Kennedy; Cabanne, Rev. L. R. Jenkins; Ferguson, Rev. W. E. Judy; Grand Avenue, Rev. J. M. Henry; St. John's, Bishop W. B. Murrah; St. Paul's, Rev. F. M. Harvey; Scruggs Memorial, Rev. C. J. Dohn; Shaw Avenue, Rev. S. M. Robinson; University, Rev. John McCarthy; Vinita Park, Rev. Ola A. Bowers; Wagoner Place, Rev. W. A. Tetley; Stephan Memorial, Rev. J. A. Baxter; Lane Memorial, Rev. D. M. Margraves.

Evening: Centenary, Rev. R. A. Barnes; Ferguson, Rev. L. R. Jenkins; Mount Auburn, Rev. George Walker; Shaw Avenue, Rev. John McCarthy.

Revenue Gains over Corresponding Day in 1918 When 6-Cent Rate Prevailed.

Figures on the first day's operation of 7-cent street car fares in St. Louis have been compiled by the United Railways. An order for an 8-cent fare became effective Saturday, Sept. 20, but the company has been collecting only 7 cents because of lack of a sufficient number of tokens to permit their general circulation at 7 cents if bought in quantity.

The revenue of the company was increased 13.46 per cent over the corresponding day of 1918 when 6 cents was being collected. The number of passengers carried Sept. 20 was 11,162 greater than on the corresponding Saturday of September a year ago. Incomplete reports of later days under the new fare indicate that traffic is not falling off because of the higher cost of riding.

LOWDEN TO ADDRESS LAWYERS

Governor Will Speak at Annual Meeting of Missouri Bar.

Delegates from St. Louis will depart over the Missouri Pacific Thursday night.

FORMER KAISER SENDS AGENT TO LOOK AFTER HIS FORTUNE

Private Property of Hohenzollerns Said to Be $75,000,000; Wilhelm Owns 70 Castles.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 26.—The former Kaiser is said to be deeply impressed with the gloomy fate of the German people and to be looking very carefully after his financial interests. His representative in Berlin is negotiating with the Prussian Cabinet in order to obtain a solution of the question of his private fortune. The private property of the Hohenzollerns is estimated at 300,000,000 marks ($75,000,000) of which one-third is invested in shares and mortgages while a considerable part is placed in lands.

The payment of the crown rent offers some difficulty. In 1821 the Prussian state obtained possession of the crown demesnes, but has been obliged to pay the crown 2,500,000 marks ($625,000) annually. The ex-Kaiser's representative proposes that the crown be paid twelvefold of this rent in order to buy out the whole claim, thus saving 92,000,000 marks ($23,000,000).

Ex-Emperor William possesses in Prussia more than 70 castles and manors of which 25 are in or near Berlin. His representative wants to let the question of property rights in these remain unsolved as long as possible, while the Prussian state insists on a speedy solution as it is obliged to pay the costs of maintenance.

Coal Saver
Range

This new coal and wood range offers you the best way to offset the present high cost of fuel. It was built with that purpose in view.

Cooks and Bakes Quickly and Possesses Many Features Which Appeal to Every Woman

The most intense heat of the fire in the DETROIT JEWEL COAL-SAVER RANGE insures quicker cooking and baking, less fuel is consumed and less time is required, two advantages of exceptional importance.

But these advantages are not the only ones that recommend the purchase of this range. The entire body of this range is made from Kemi-Test iron—no steel is employed. It will not rust out. Lifetime durability is insured.

It is also an easily cleaned range. All parts are smoothly designed and free from dirt or dust catching projections.

Every modern and improved feature is found in this range. The cooking top is polished and is as smooth as glass.

The oven door panel and high closet-splashes are of the finest white procelain enamel. They wash and clean like a china plate. No range is more beautiful, convenient or easy to operate. It is a range you will be proud to own, and one that will repay its cost in fuel saved.

You Should See And Examine This Range.

MONUMENT TO BE UNVEILED IN MEMORY OF PRAGER

Body of German Lynched by Collinsville (Ill.) Mob Will Be Moved to More Prominent Grave.

A monument to the memory of Robert Paul Prager, German enemy alien and Socialist, who was lynched by a mob in Collinsville, Ill., April 5, 1918, will be unveiled next Saturday in St. Matthews Cemetery, Gravois avenue and Bates street, by Harmonie Lodge of Odd Fellows, of which he was a member. At the same time the body will be transferred from the present grave there, and reinterred in a more conspicuous place in the cemetery.

Members of the lodge will meet at its headquarters, 1508 Chouteau avenue, at 3:30 p. m., and go thence to the cemetery, where the exercises will be held. Friends and sympathizers with Prager have been invited to attend, as well as lodge members.

Although Prager was lynched ostensibly for disloyal statements, it never was shown convincingly that he had made any such remarks; on the contrary, he had bought Liberty Bonds and tried to enlist in the navy, and had caused the arrest of another man on a charge of disloyalty. Evidence subsequently obtained indicated that the lynching was the work of a mob of men and boys, the leaders of which had been drinking.

DATE IS SET FOR BIG MOTOR TRUCK PARADE

Minneapolis Had 1385 Trucks in Line in Similar Parade Recently.

At a gathering of St. Louis motor truck owners at the Chamber of Commerce last Thursday afternoon, at which P. W. Coyle, Traffic Commissioner of the Chamber of Commerce, presided, it was decided to hold the St. Louis "Ship-by-Truck day" on Thursday, Oct. 23.

Traffic Commissioner Coyle was elected chairman of a committee to supervise arrangements. Robert E. Lee was elected vice chairman and Roy S. Rauschkolb, manager of the "Ship-by-Truck" Bureau, secretary. The balance of the members of the committee are to be business men therefore should have between 1500 and 2000.

Rauschkolb told of recent parades in other cities, one of the most recent being held in Minneapolis, where, he said, 1385 trucks were in line. He predicted that St. Louis therefore should haxe been 1500 and 2000.

The parade will be for the purpose of demonstrating the growth of the motor truck as a means of transportation.

Those attending the meeting included L. H. Amrine, manager of Scudder Motor Truck Co., C. A. Bothell, manager of the motor truck department of the Packard Motor Car Co. of Missouri; J. H. Mack, manager of the Autocar Sales and Service Co.; Richard Shaul and L. J. Muren of the Timberlake Co.; J. H. Lauenstein, superintendent of Butler Brothers; G. N. Cox of the Coca Cola Bottling Co., W. W. Weigle of the dressed Beef plant of Swift & Co., Charles E. Jones, manager of the Popular Price Express Co.; Fred C. Engelhard, truck operator of 1106 Franklin avenue; John Niewoehner, secretary of the Ruemmeli-Dawley Manufacturing Co., and L. H. Beckman of 614 Olive street.

Chairman Coyle during the coming week will name subcommittees to arrange for registration of entrants, place of assembly and route of the parade.

1000 TEACHERS EXPECTED TO TAKE EXTENSION COURSE

Opportunity to Obtain A. B. Degree Upon Completing Program Appeals to Instructors.

Interest is being manifested in the extension course which will be offered at the Harris Teachers' College this winter in view of action recently taken by the Board of Education authorizing the award of the A. B. degree in education to those who satisfactorily complete the course of study. More than a thousand teachers are expected to enroll.

The object of the board in making provisions for this degree was to open the way for any teacher in the elementary schools to obtain a college education without being compelled to give up her position for a year or two. It will now be possible for teachers to pursue their professional training under a plan which provides co-ordination work extending over a period of six years leading to the A. B. degree in education with special emphasis on the following subjects:

(1) Teaching and supervision of such special subjects as drawing, music, physical education, household arts, etc., in elementary and high schools; (2) the teaching and supervision of the primary grades; (3) the teaching of elementary and secondary mathematical, physical, biological, and general sciences; (4) the teaching of history in English in the elementary and high schools; (5) elementary school supervision and administration; (6) departmental teaching in the upper grades; (7) the teaching in ungraded rooms and in special schools for feeble-minded, anemic, pre-tubercular, deaf, speech-defective and backward children; (8) psychology and the social sciences.

The first session will be held tomorrow. Regular teachers, substitutes and apprentice teachers, principals and supervisors in the public schools of the city may be enrolled without payment of tuition. Teachers who are not employed in the public schools may be enrolled in classes where there is room on payment of a tuition fee of $5. Sessions will be held after regular hours at the Teachers' College, 1517 South Theresa avenue.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—"A romantic story of a claim to a great fortune—estimated at more than $19,000,000—was related today by one of the claimants, Patrick Quinn," the Athlone correspondent of the Daily News telegraphs. "Quinn, who is nearly 80 years old, was, at one time, a member of the Athlone Council.

"According to documents which have arrived from America, it seems this amount was left by Patrick Quinn's uncle, Thomas Quinn, who was a British soldier. Thomas Quinn, it is stated, left Ireland 95 years ago, having joined the army. He lived for years in India, and shortly before the outbreak of the Indian mutiny he bought some land there. It is this land, it is said, which formed the nucleus of Quinn's huge fortune, because valuable minerals were found on it.

"Thomas Quinn returned to Ireland and settled at Miltown Malbay, County Claire, where he died, childless, 30 years ago. Those who are claiming a share of his wealth besides Patrick Quinn, the nephew, are the families of Thomas' two brothers who settled in Chicago, and the children of his sister named King of Kilmahil, County Clare. Patrick Quinn remembers his uncle, and kept up a rather infrequent correspondence with him when he was in India.

MISSOURIAN WON HONOR IN R. F. C.

Returns to Neosho (Mo.) Home Today With Nine Aerial Victories to His Credit.

After four years' service in the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, First Lieutenant Will Lee Dougan, Royal Flying Corps, who has nine aerial victories to his credit, will surprise his mother, Mrs. Ira M. Dougan, at her home in Neosho today, just one year after he crashed into a house near Ostend and was made a prisoner by the Germans. He visited his uncle J. E. Monegan, 6015 Pershing avenue, Friday, on his way home.

He enlisted in the Thirty-third Battalion, Canadian Infantry, at Windsor, Ontario, in September, 1915, and went overseas with this outfit. Two months later he transferred to the motor transport corps, with which he served two years. In 1917 he received his commission in the air service. Six weeks later he brought down his first German plane, when with the Second British army in Belgium.

One year ago, the first day of the "Big Push" by the allies, Dougan was brought down by a machine gun bullet through his right lung, his plane crashing through the roof of a house near Ostend, stopping on the second floor. The house was being used by the Germans as a hospital. The first German to arrive said "The war is over for you."

Dougan Sought Balloons.

Dougan had been detailed to destroy balloons near the house. He said he was flying about 500 feet from the ground when he was first struck in the leg by machine gun bullets. He circled around the balloon and was shot through the lung and become unconscious. His head struck the dash which restored him to consciousness and he shut off the motor, but was unable to handle the machine. It crashed into the house. An accompanying flier's plane was brought down in flames.

He was taken to the German hospital at Bruges and was later sent to Ghent and Antwerp. He was accorded good treatment, but was served only barley soup and black bread. He was discharged from the Prince of Wales Hospital in London May 1. He expects to receive his discharge shortly.

Dougan says he is about 29 years old, and was born in Salem, Mo., where he will go for a fishing trip after he sees his mother. He will visit his grandfather, Judge L. B. Woodsides, there. He wants to keep on flying, but has no definite plans. Previous to his enlistment he worked in Cedar Rapids, Ia., with an automobile company. To transfer to the air service he said he had to give his age as 22, because at that time only young men were wanted for fliers.

After his capture at Ostend, Dougan was listed as missing and no word was heard of him for three months. His family thought that he had been killed. He wears four wound chevrons.

Two Thousand House, Home And Real Estate Offers Are Advertised Today.

SCHMOLL WANTS PARK CLAUSE OF BOND MEASURE AMENDED

At a public hearing next Tuesday night on the bill calling for a vote on the proposed $22,000,000 bond issue for public improvements, Director of Public Welfare Schmoll will ask that two clauses of the measure be amended.

As the bill now stands it provides for an appropriation of $560,000 for new parks and playgrounds. Schmoll will ask that it be amended to that where necessary, part of this money may be expended for the improvement of existing parks and playgrounds.

The other amendment which he will suggest would increase the scope of the proposed municipal farm so that it would take care of the curable insane, feeble minded children and tuberculosis patients. In its present form the bill limits the farm to the care of habitual drunkards and other delinquents.

ALL OF TIPPERARY UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Police, Military and War Tanks Used to Prevent Gathering of Crowds.

THURLES, Tipperary, Ireland, Sept. 27.—All of Tipperary is now under martial law and soldiers who sang about it in the trenches are now "right there." The Tipperary variety is a medium dose. What is prohibited includes all assemblies of people except under a written permit from the authorities. Meetings and processions all come under the ban, whatever their purpose.

The prohibition extends to fairs and markets, and, as the population of Tipperary lives by fairs and markets and by little else, the restrictions hit all alike in that vital part—the pocket.

The first day the proclamation was enforced the military and police were posted at the various approaches to the town of Nenagh. People coming in were turned back unless they were bringing milk to the creamery. All vehicles but those belonging to the poorest peasants were searched and only empty vehicles were allowed to go through.

Here in Thurles people coming in with their produce to the weekly market are turned back and some of them searched after their names have been taken. No special notice has been given that the market is prohibited beyond the general terms of the proclamation. Armed police and military have occupied the wide market place of the town, which, by the way, is adorned with a monument to Theobald Wolfe Tone, Robert Emmet and the men of '98—and the spectacular effect supplied by a first-class tank.

Laffan's Bridge had announced a handball game and armed police and soldiers, this time with an armored car, turned up to prevent it. Though they would not allow the game as announced they would and did allow the players to hold a practice match and stayed to watch it.

The proprietor of the Central picture house in Roscrea had announced a screen version of Charles Kickam's famous Tipperary movie "Knocknagow," but was informed by the police that he could not exhibit without a permit. At the matinee many were turned away. Before the night performance the police thought better of it and there was no further interference.

The authorities who are imposing this say they are doing it for the prevention and detection of crime. On Sept. 2 two policemen on patrol duty were fired at and one of them was killed. This was at a place called Lorrha, just 30 miles' ride from here.

QUESTION OF DUES BEFORE LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

Issue Will Be Determined at State Convention to Be Held Here Oct. 15.

Whether the League of Women Voters shall be a dues-paying organization, or whether membership shall carry with it no definite obligations of a financial nature, will be determined at the convention to be held at Hotel Statler Oct. 15.

The present State Suffrage Association, which is on the program to be dissolved and succeeded by the League of Women Voters, is a dues-paying body, with a pro rata membership tax, paid to the state and national organizations by the different city and country Leagues.

The proposal to do away with the membership fees, and to open the membership lists on a basis of individual volition of the women concerned, rather than upon that of a readiness and ability to make monthly or weekly payments, large or small, meets with the approval of women generally, and it is the consensus of opinion that the open door policy will eventually be adopted by the convention.

In the event that dues are done away with by the suffragists, the budget system will be substituted, with annual expenses estimated in advance and each local organization contributing its quota towards the state and national operating expenses by voluntary contributions or whatever other form of money raising is settled upon by the individual chapters.

Since announcement has been made of the proposed change of name of the Suffrage Association to that of the League of Women Voters, city and country Leagues of Voters have begun to spring up all over the state. More than forty of these independent organizations have been formed during the past 60 days. Each League thus brought into being will be allowed a representation at the State convention of two delegates for each fifty of its membership.

"Snake Oil" Stops Pain

Wonderful Liniment—Pain Killer and Antiseptic Combined.

Prompt Relief for Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sprains, Swollen Joints, La Grippe, and All Aches and Pains Generally

Miller's Antiseptic Oil, formerly known as Snake Oil, is certainly the most remarkable liniment on the market. Over ten million bottles have been sold on a positive guarantee of complete satisfaction or money back and less than twelve bottles returned.

Miller's Antiseptic Oil (known as Snake Oil) is such a universal pain-killer that you can't afford to do without a bottle another day. Here are a few of the things it always helps surely and quickly: Rheumatism, lumbago, la grippe, colds, sprains, bruises, cuts, burns, neuralgia, headache, influenza, etc.

If you are suffering from any ache or pain, you will find that a few applications will fix you up in great style. The fine thing about "Snake Oil" is that it penetrates so quickly and gets such pleasing results so promptly. It actually goes through and through thickest sole leather in three minutes, which is evidence that it will penetrate right down to the center of any ache or pain you may have and bring gratifying relief. You don't have to rub it hard, and it positively will not smart, burn or blister in any way if you follow directions. Does not discolor the skin or clothing.

Get a 30c, 60c or $1 bottle today at any good drug store—use it thirty days. If not entirely satisfied at the end of that time your money will be refunded. Demand the genuine Miller's Antiseptic Oil, known as Snake Oil. Look for the yellow package printed in black and red. For sale by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and Enderle Drug Co., St. Louis.—ADV.

WOMAN TO CELEBRATE HER 100TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Neucity Enjoys Good Health, Eats Well and Likes to Drink Wine Every Day.

St. Louis Centenarian Tells Secrets of Long and Happy Life

MRS. ALICE SCHULMAN NEUCITY.

Mrs. Alice Schulman Neucity, who lives with her daughter, Mrs. Theodore Schiele, at 5800 Enright avenue, will celebrate her 100th birthday with a reception in the rose parlor of the Buckingham Hotel Tuesday afternoon from 2:30 to 5:30.

Born when the republic was still in its infancy, only a few years after the Louisiana Purchase, and 40 years before the Civil War, "Grandma Neucity," as she is affectionately known by her relatives and friends, still enjoys excellent health and retains all her faculties except for a slightly impaired eyesight and hearing.

Secret of Long Life.

Good and wholesome food, regular hours, clean living and a tranquil existence are the secrets of a long and happy life, Mrs. Neucity says. She eats three hearty meals a day, consisting of all varieties of food, and drinks plenty of water. She is especially fond of soups, all kinds of poultry, fish, fruits and cake. Early to bed and early to rise has been her motto for a lifetime. According to the custom of Bavaria, where she was born, she has always used wine in moderate quantities and even today she is fond of near-beer.

Living through an age which has witnessed great industrial and intellectual changes and conquest of air and water, Mrs. Neucity keeps informed on all current questions and is always interested in the newest fashions. Up to two years ago, before her eyes became impaired, she was an ardent movie fan and enjoyed the theater. Although born in Germany, she is an extremely patriotic American and during the war insisted that her own American flag be hung in the window and that she view all the military parades.

Takes Auto Ride.

Two or three times a week, she goes motoring with her daughter. About two years ago she went as far as Centralia, Ill., in a machine. Her favorite occupation is knitting.

About the only modern innovation that she does not approve is dancing the tango and foxtrot. "When I was young, I had just as much fun dancing as the young folks have today; and we did not have to go to extremes," she said.

Mrs. Neucity was born in Bavaria, near Munich, Sept. 30, 1819. Her father was a farmer. When she was 26 years old she came to New York with her brothers, who engaged in the shoe business. In 1850 she moved to Syracuse and shortly afterwards married Louis Neucity, a wholesale grocer. On his death in 1898 she came to St. Louis to reside with her daughter.

Mrs. Neucity has a sister, Mrs. Fanny Schiele, 85 years old, who resides at 5077 Washington boulevard. Besides Mrs. Theodore Schiele, she has another daughter, Mrs. Ludwig Straus of New York. She has four grandchildren, Mrs. J. W. Cohen, 5829 De Giverville avenue; Mrs. U. C. Weinstock of Centralia and Esther M. Schiele, 5800 Enright avenue. The late Henry L. Schiele was her grandson.

Enjoys Life.

Mrs. Neucity has never been seriously ill. She was formerly troubled a little with rheumatism, but of late has been in fine health. She enjoys life and loves to talk to her friends. She requires but little help in dressing and getting about the house.

When questioned concerning prices when she was young, Mrs. Neucity threw up her hands and said: "It costs just about five times as much to live now as it did then. Of course, we have many more comforts now. But we enjoyed life just as much, because we didn't know that there was any better way to live."

She declared that when she was young her mother often told her that if she lived a good life she would live to be 100 years old.

Mrs. Neucity is the oldest member of the Temple Israel, King's highway and Washington boulevard.

Services for Service Men.

Services in honor of the return of the 97 service men of the Emmaus Lutheran Church will be held at the church, 2243 South Jefferson avenue, at 9:45 a. m. today. The service flag will be lowered after the sounding of taps and a song written by the Rev. F. W. Herbberger, the city missionary, to the men will be sung.

MAN UNDER SENTENCE HELD ON THEFT CHARGE

Lee Turner, Arrested 17th Time, Was Working on Stolen Auto Under Stolen Light.

Lee Turner, 24 years old, of 4147 Laclede avenue, who is under two appealed penitentiary sentences of two years each for automobile thefts, was arrested at 2 a. m. yesterday in a garage in the rear of 2741 Locust street while working on a stolen automobile by stolen electric light.

Police records show he was arrested 16 times for automobile thefts between 1912 and 1915 and was twice convicted in that period and served terms in the workhouse and Boonville reformatory. Early this year he was found guilty at two separate trials, the penalty in each case being fixed at two years in the penitentiary. He appealed these cases and was out on bond.

Detectives suspected the garage was being used to rebuild and disguise stolen cars. When they went there yesterday morning they found Turner and his brother-in-law, Robert L. Sherry, also of 4147 Laclede avenue, working on a car which they identified as having been stolen from Walter H. Toberman, of 3439 Pestalozzi street. Toberman identified the body and engine, but said they had been placed on a different chassis. His chassis was found under another Ford body in the garage.

It was noticed that the garage was lighted with a 250-watt lamp and that the wire ran through the roof. Investigation showed there was no meter and a Union Electric wire had been tapped.

Acting on information that Turner had taken a stolen car to a garage at 3636 Page boulevard, the detectives went there and arrested Frank X. Doerer of 3428 Texas avenue and Paul Abeln, an automobile dealer of 3611 Cass avenue.

Doerer and Abeli had just arrived from Illinois with two automobiles which Abeln said he bought. A Ford sedan body resting on, but not fastened to a chassis, was found in the Page boulevard garage. Doerer, who rents the garage, said he did not know where the machine came from.

Concerts to Raise $55,000.

Concerts to raise money toward paying the debt of $55,000 on the House of the Good Shepard, 3801 Gravois avenue, will be given at the Odeon, Oct. 28 and 29. This is one of the enterprises planned by the Business Men's Advisory Board which is aiding in directing the work of the institution. The board has planned to extend this work in the future, which consists largely in rehabilitating women and girls.

CARDINAL MERCIER SENT LETTERS AS WRAPPERS ON DUTCH CHEESE

Belgian Prelate Foiled Germans During War by Unique Method of Distribution.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—Cardinal Mercier last night related a method he employed in circulating his famous pastoral letter of Christ in 1914, in which he defied Germany and bade his people be of good heart and fight on toward ultimate victory. The most successful method, he said, was through the medium of Dutch cheese.

"The Belgians like Dutch cheese," said the Cardinal. "There is frequent commerce between Holland and Belgium in cheese and I had a friend on the frontier who was making cheese. I asked him whether he would not use my pastoral to wrap his cheese in. He did and while the Belgians ate the cheese the Dutch had to digest my pastoral."

Postal Hearings Postponed.

Postmaster Selph received yesterday a telegram from C. A. Beasley, secretary of the Joint Congressional Commission on Postal Salaries, stating that the hearings which had been scheduled for Atlanta, Ga., Memphis, Tenn., and Kansas City, Mo., have been postponed indefinitely. The hearing in Kansas City was to have been held Thursday and Friday, and Postmaster Selph, with other Missouri postmasters and representatives of the various grades of employes in the St. Louis Postoffice, had arranged to attend.

The Autopiano

The Favorite Player Piano of the Army and Navy

NOTHING but the highest class construction could have stood the effect of every changing weather conditions and the tremendous wear and tear of the constant use to which these instruments were subjected, especially the Navy Autopianos.

The Autopiano is a great Player Piano, easy to pedal and always true to original sweet and singing tone. Sixteen gold medals have been awarded it from all parts of the world.

The Favorite Player Piano of St. Louis

There are over a million dollars' worth of Autopianos in the homes of St. Louis—three to one of any other make—that are furnishing the means of family unity and happiness, through the bond of home-played music.

See the Autopiano before deciding on a Player Piano, as there's no Player Piano made that equals it in value at the price—and you surely want the best for the money you are going to spend.

The New Autopiano, Fall 1919 Models, Are on Display

ONE PRICE ONLY and that price the lowest is the unchanging policy that has made it a pleasure for so many thousands to buy their Pianos and Players at Conroy's.

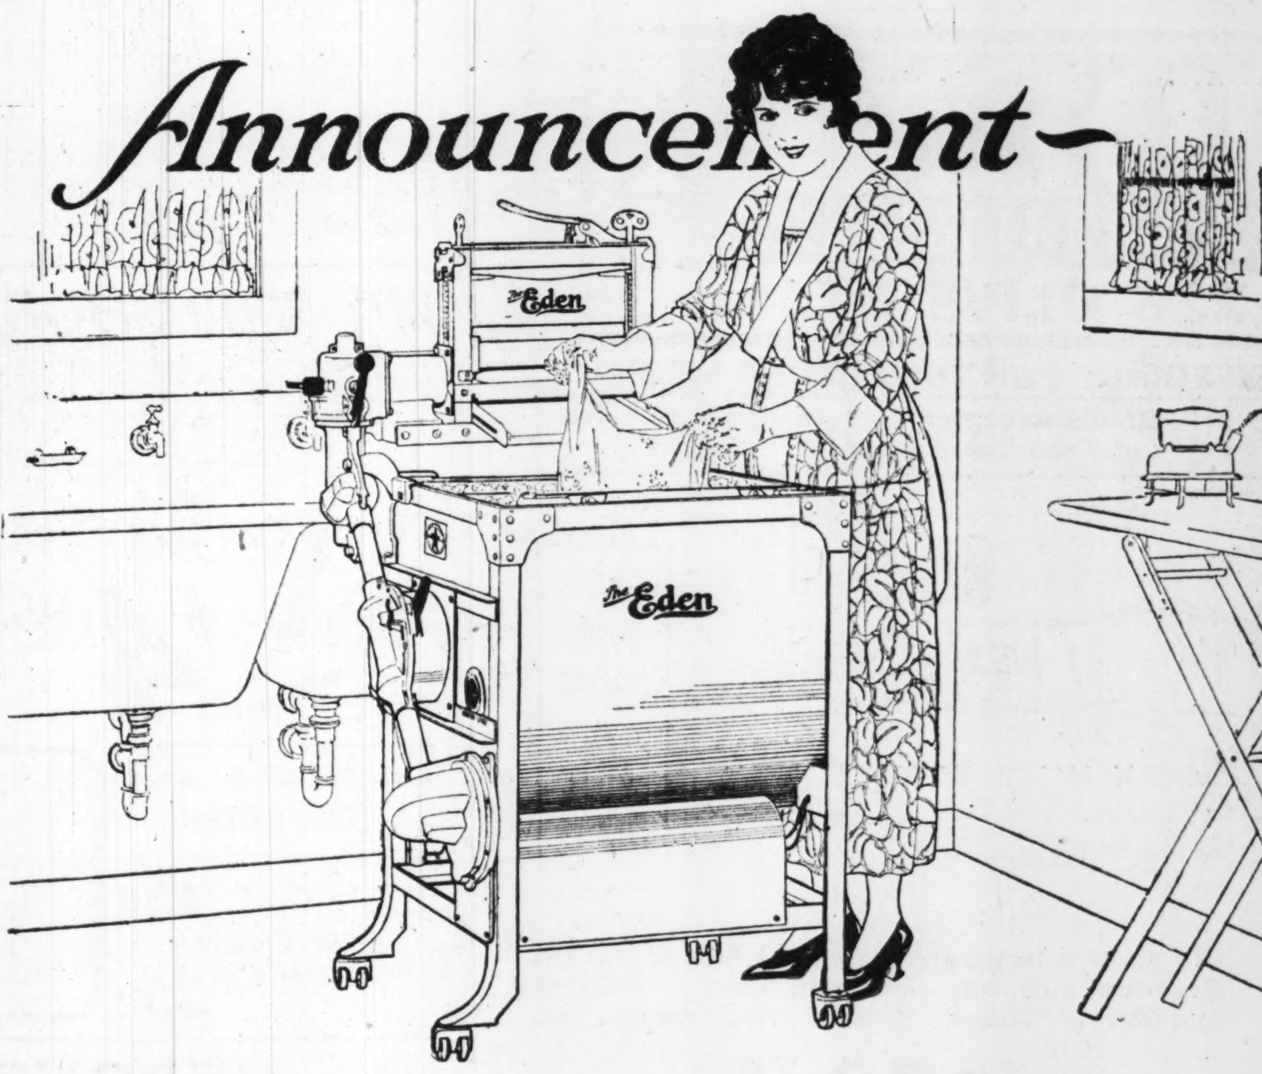
Announcement—



We have selected the Eden

The investigation conducted by this company to determine which model of electric washer is most suitable for use in St. Louis homes should be of particular interest to every housekeeper. The result of this investigation has been our selection of the Eden.

We recommend Eden washers to our customers because of the record they have made in thousands of homes over a period of years. They have been in every-week use so long that their satisfactory service is not problematical — but proved.

The ideal way of washing delicate things is the way the Eden washes everything. Blankets, linens, clothing and everything washed in the Eden last many times longer.

The Eden washes the same gentle way a woman dips a piece of lace in a bowl. Its big, electrically-operated cylinder lifts everything carefully up and down through hot suds until the clothes are as clean as new. There is no rubbing, or scrubbing, or friction about the Eden. It has no belts or bicycle chains. It is a simple, safe and economical machine which saves time, labor and money.

That every family—regardless of its income—may enjoy the savings which the Eden brings to the home, we will not only make free demonstrations of the Eden in any St. Louis home, but we will also sell Eden washers on the same kind of convenient monthly terms that Liberty Bonds were bought.

We can conscientiously recommend the Eden as the most modern machine on the market today — and as a real economical solution of washday problems — and invite the public to visit the Eden Exhibit in our store — or telephone us for free demonstration in the home.

Women's Suits

Special Offering $45

This is a splendid opportunity for 60 St. Louis women to secure a Suit of quality and individuality at the attractive price above quoted, for there are just about 60 of these Suits in the special offering.

Silvertone and Oxford cloth are the two popular materials employed in navy, brown and gun-metal shades. The models flare and are belted, the collar of fur or cloth is convertible and the back is paneled. They are finished with fine tucks, bone buttons and lined with silk.

One of the many models is man tailored—the short shoulder, close-fitting sleeve and arrow head finishing gives it quite a smart appearance. The skirt is made on straight lines with pretty pockets and belt.

Remember, if you want to be one of the fortunate 60, it is advisable to shop early.

WORK WILL BUILD UP GERMAN NATION, SAYS ERZBERGER

Finance Minister Believes Country Will Soon Prove Ability to Recover From Losses of War.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—When the German mark is worth only about 3 cents and the race between inflation of currency and cost of living is leading to the inevitable catastrophe; when speculation is rampant and capital is streaming out of the country, thus still more endangering the financial situation; when the only means of combating a financial crisis is restricted, first, by the lack of raw materials and by the lack of willing work on the part of German workers and, second, by the economic policy of the allies to diminish as much as possible their own imports; when at the same time the allied indemnity demands are growing to fantastic dimensions—one is interested in knowing what the German Finance Minister, Matthias Erzberger, thinks about the situation.

Most Germans are now downhearted, hopeless, desperate or panic stricken. Only the pan-Germans are, as usual, defiant. Erzeberger belongs to the third and, as yet, small category of those who have no time to lament and who know the situation too well to be defiant. He is aware that the only hope for Germany is work and that the only way to reconciliation lies through work.

"Theoretically," said the correspondent, "there are two possibilities: Germany will recover slowly by hard work or a new and more terrible crisis will ruin the country and recoil upon the rest of the world. Practically, however, only the first alternative remains. The will to work is awakening in Germany and she will soon prove once more that she is a working nation.

Want United State's Aid.

"Germany will recover more quickly if the outer world, and especially America, comes to her help. With or without that help she will recover.

"If we get her no raw materials," he continued, "then Germany must do as she did during the war—put all energy and all force into an increase of her own production and find substitutes for the old raw materials. It will be a terrible way for Germany, but it will also mean an enormous loss for the world, because once the German production is based on her own raw materials, Germany will cease to be a customer of America for the raw materials of today."

The pan-Germans assert that the fall of values is the result of Ersberger's policy especially in the proposed exchange of old banknotes for new. "This could not be true," said the minister, "because the fall of monetary values was still more marked after that project was given up. Do they not understand abroad," asked Erzberger bitterly, "that certain circles in Germany are attacking financial reform!"

Fall of Values.

"There are," continued the minister, "only two causes for the fall of monetary values—lack of imports and international bear operations 'au grand' style. General experience and financial history show that low monetary values make international speculation rampant. These speculations during the French revolution are classical. In Central Europe and indeed in the whole world of finance the monetary values question is one of great importance. The regulation of the German monetary standard is exceptionally important in the world's economy.

"After all, unfavorable exchange has the same effect as the highest protective duties and if the question is neglected will lead the world to an economic crisis amounting to a disaster."

The minister then explained that America could not trade in Europe until the monetary question was settled. He said the first thing to do was to allow Germany to develop all the forces of her industry by obtaining enough raw materials and export facilities; and secondly, by arresting the inflation of currency, which he was confident could be accomplished by a capital levy, and thirdly—probably the most important and speedy method—by arranging with America to give Germany a money loan.

Seeks Loan.

Such a loan, he said, would be of enormous importance to the United States itself, because Germany, to a very great extent, would become its debtor. What significance that would have to the commercial relations of the two countries, to America's position in the international money market, to the promotion of peaceful relations and to the strengthening of peace was, he said, hardly necessary to elaborate upon. The action must be on a great scale in order to have effect, and must, by no means, exclude private credits. If America gives Germany such a loan, then American merchants can at once send to Germany any amount of goods, because they can get the equivalent for them in their own securities. Such credit will at once prove of extraordinary value to the American trade. Private credit could not solve this question. Only a state loan quickly and substantially would put Germany on a paying basis and develop a healthy business.

Erzberger admits that the financial reconstruction of Germany is extraordinarily difficult. He thinks the public abroad knows little about Germany's miserable war finance.

Poor War Finance.

"How bad it was," he says, "will be shown. To cover 17,500,000,000 marks ($4,375,000,000), Germany had only 5,000,000,000 marks ($1,250,000,000), ordinary, and 2,500,000,000 ($625,000,000), extraordinary revenue. At the moment of the military breakdown German finances had a still worse collapse because the war loan policy could not be continued, and, therefore, the last nine months finance was based exclusively on the note printing press. From the first day of taking office I have applied myself with extreme energy to finding new sources of taxation. My July financial reform was only the beginning of a great attempt to bring about financial slovency. It has already resulted in new taxation of more than 1,000,000,000 marks yearly.

"The ready willingness with which the new Parliament has voted this enormous taxation shows that the new parliamentary majority is aware of the tremendous difficulties and is ready to put its whole energy into ameliorating the financial condition of the country."

ALL PHONE RATE INCREASES SOUGHT GRANTED KINLOCH

Public Service Commission, in Unanimous Opinion, Approves Application in Full.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 27.—The State Public Service Commission today approved in full the application of the Kinloch Telephone Co. for an increase in its rates, to take effect Oct. 1.

The new rates will be in effect for 13 months.

The new schedule affecting St. Louis and neighboring towns will be as follows:

ST. LOUIS—The rate on a direct business line is increased from $72 to $84 a year.

The rate on a direct residence line remains the same, $48.

Residence four-party line is increased from $24 to $30.

Two-party physician's line increased from $50 to $59.

CLAYTON—Direct business line is increased from $30 to $36; direct residence is increased from $18 to $21. The following new service also is asked in Clayton: two-party business line, $30; two-party residence line, $18.

KIRKWOOD—Direct business line is increased from $32 to $38; direct residence line is increased from $20 to $23; two-party business line is increased from $28 to $34; two-party residenec line increased from $18 to $21; four-party residence line is increased from $16 to $19.

St. Charles—Direct business line increased from $30 to $36, direct residence line increased from $18 to $21, two-party business line increased from $24 to $30, two-party residence line increased from $15 to $18, four-party residence line increased from $13.20 to $16.20.

Valley Park—Direct business line increased from $30 to $36, direct residence line increased from $18 to $21, two-party business line increased from $24 to $30, two-party residence line increased from $15 to $18, four-party residence line increased from $13.20 to $16.20.

Webster Groves—Direct business line increased from $32 to $38, direct residence line increased from $20 to $23, two-party business line increased from $28 to $34, two-party residence line increased from $18 to $21, four-party residence line increased from $16 to $19.

Ferguson—Direct business line increased from $30 to $36, direct residence line increased from $18 to $21. A new rate for a two-party business line is established at $30, and a two-party residence line at $18.

Florissant — Four-party business line is increased from $30 to $36, four-party residence line is increased from $18 to $21.

Small August Earning.

The opinion of the commission is unanimous and was written by Commissioner Noah W. Simpson. The rates in St. Louis apply to Maplewood and University City. In justification of the increase in rates, the commission finds that the contract of the Government with the company expired on Aug. 1, and that during August, the company earned only $1439 in excess of operating expenses, taxes, depreciation and interest. A saving of more than that amount was made in wages during the month, because of a three-day strike, so that if the business had proceeded in the regular way, there would have been a net loss on the month's business.

The estimated increase in gross revenue under the increase is $200,000 per annum. Of this amount $100,000 will be paid out in increased wages, the commission says, and $25,000 in increased taxes.

The net result, the commission finds, is that the new rates will pay only 3 per cent dividends on the outstanding capital stock of $2,790,000. The present rates, the commission says, have not been increased for 16 years, while the wages have been increased $230,000 within the last three years, and materials have increased in price from 15 to 220 per cent.

Valuation Not Fixed.

"The increased annual revenue to be derived from said proposed increased rates is necessary as emergency relief," the commission says, "until the system can make and file with the commission an inventory and appraisal of its property and make a formal showing relative to reasonable rates at the exchanges herein enumerated."

The commission does not attempt to place a valuation upon the property for the purpose of this rate increase, but grants it as "purely emergency relief," though the new rates will continue for 13 months from Oct. 1.

Kinloch Company Officials Give Reasons for Seeking Rate Increase.

At a hearing before Commissioner Noah Simpson in St. Louis last Monday H. Linton Reber, president, and William R. Orthwein, counsel for the Kinloch company, stated the company's reasons for asking for an emergency rate increase.

They said that when the Government took over the company's properties July 31, 1918, it agreed that $10,000,000 was a fair valuation of the property on which the company was entitled to earn 5 per cent. On this basis the Government assumed payment of all interest and taxes and agreed to pay the company $266,000 a year as the equivalent of its average net earnings when operated under private control.

When the Government turned back the property Aug. 1 this guarantee of $266,000 a year was withdrawn, they said, and the company faced the prospect of decreased earnings with larger expenses, some of which, especially the wage increase of $230,000 a year had been instituted by the Government during its period of control. Reber told Commissioner Simpson that in July of this year, the last month of Government operation, the company's revenue fell $20,000 short of the monthly revenue needed to assure the annual earnings guaranteed by the Government. With the withdrawal of this guarantee, he said, there was a prospect of a still further decrease in the earnings and emergency relief was asked for, pending a formal application to the commission for an official valuation of the properties. Reber said he believed this appraisal would be found to justify even a further increase in rates.

$2,790,000 Stock.

The Kinloch Telephone Co. has $2,790,000 of stock and $4,549,000 of 6-per-cent bonds outstanding. From 1912 to 1916, both inclusive, it paid 8 per cent dividends on its stock. In 1917 and 1918 it paid 10 per cent. This year it has paid three quarterly installments on an 8-per-cent dividend.

The stock is held at $140 a share and the bonds are quoted near their par value of $1000 each.

President Reber told a reporter the books of the company do not show the physical value of its plant and this could be determined only by an inventory. He estimated the value of physical assets to be $8,500,000 and the value of investment and other assets to be about $1,500,000.

ST. LOUIS ARTISTS ASKED TO SHOW THEIR WORK

Original Creations of Design or Workmanship Are Sought for Arts and Crafts Exposition.

Announcements have been sent out by the St. Louis Art League to all artists of St. Louis, inviting them to send their work to a jury of selection for a general contemporary artists' exhibit of St. Louis painters, sculptors, designers and applied art workers at the St. Louis Exposition of Industrial Arts and Crafts opening Oct. 15 for four weeks at the Southern Hotel Building.

Original works of art in all media are invited, including artist-wrought objects of design and workmanship from the artists' studios. A general committee for this exhibit is announced with Oscar E. Berninghaus as Chairman. Sub-committees are supervising the division of paintings, sculpture and arts and crafts. The sub-committee chairmen are: Paintings, Mr. Berninghaus; sculpture, Nancy Coonsman; arts and crafts, Mrs. Katherine E. Cherry. Entries must be delivered at the exposition in the Art League members' room on or before Wednesday, Oct. 8.

Besides the general contemporary artists' exhibit, the Art League will send to the exposition its traveling exhibition of St. Louis art, now on view in Mexico, Mo., and several other collections, which will be installed in the rotunda on the auditorium floor.

Folder Explains Exposition.

The Mining Congress, which is affiliating with the Industrial Arts and Crafts Exposition and will utilize its restoration, refitting and decorative arrangements in the Southern Hotel Building for a popular educational exhibition of mining appliances, processes and products, has issued a folder in which the national significance of the St. Louis art in industry exposition is set forth.

John A. Burns, secretary of the Mining Congress, has been in association with Secretary of the Interior, Franklin K. Lane; Third Assistant Secretary of State, Breckenridge Long, and others in Washington, in establishing important Government exhibits of the Arts and Crafts display, and with marked success according to a telegram from Breckenridge Long. Besides the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, the much desired Indian Art Exhibits, and others, previously mentioned, the Patent Office is to provide an interesting contribution, and the Congressional Library will be drawn upon, through the co-operation of the American Federation of Arts. Independent exhibits also have been inspired. A representative of the Exposition is in Chicago with Burns, who is also acting jointly for the Exposition and the Mining Congress, at the Exhibition of Chemical Industries now in the Coliseum and First Regiment Armory there. They hope to obtain an adequate display of the rich contributions to artistic manufacturing which recently have been made by American progress in the chemical industries, in dye and other products.

Retailers Take Space.

The Associated Retailers of St. Louis, through a committee headed by L. M. Monheimer, chairman, have taken an important space for a representative display which will be the center of attraction on the auditorium floor. The exhibit men of the big stores at a meeting after this space was taken by the association, considered ways and means to set forth the products in which they specialize, and make it clear to the public by comparisons that St. Louis provides really beautiful creations in many lines of design and workmanship. Fabrics of wonderful textures, colorings and designs, and finished productions of rare quality for which these textiles serve as material, will form a part of this collection.

Fine furniture and household fixtures, decorations and articles of almost infinite variety in beautiful design, will be drawn from to disclose the richness and attractive character of St. Louis stores. The success with which artistic taste enters into the provisions of the great department store to meet the requirements of the esthetic womankind of St. Louis, will be appreciated.

The wholesale merchants during the past week have become keenly interested in the Exposition. Big houses with distinctive lines are planning to set them out before the public and thus show that the aspiration to have an American Industrial Arts and Crafts Exposition was justified. In a large room taken by the Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co., by D. R. Calhoun, president, will be installed a notable exhibit of American textiles for the modern home. The shoe industries are another feature of St. Louis prominence to be illustrated.

The educational and entertainment sides of the Exposition are developing. In preparation for a strong program, a modern stage, 25 feet deep and with a full 30-foot opening, is being built in the large auditorium on the second floor of the Southern Hotel Building, and provided with a full equipment, through the co-operation of several organizations, for noteworthy presentations of the arts.

CAMPAIGN STARTED TO RAISE FUNDS FOR JUNIOR PLAYERS

St. Louisans Subscribe for Five Plays; First Will Be Next Month.

A subscription campaign has been opened for the five performances to be given this season by the Junior Players, the first of which will take place at the Artists' Guild next month, when "The Little Princess" will be the bill. A Christmas production of "Cinderella" is planned, and the other plays announced are: "Treasure Island," "Beauty and the Beast," and "Snow White." The children are being trained by Joseph Solari and Miss Alice Martin, and season tickets may be obtained at Miss Martin's Studio.

The success of the Junior Players was so great last year that the guarantors were assured that St. Louis needs and will support a children's theater with wholesome, appealing plays presented by children and for children. Clark McAdams is president of the board of directors and Miss Thekla Bernays is vice chairman.

A number of prominent St. Louisans have each subscribed $25 for the coming season.

EVENING CLASSES IN SOCIAL ECONOMY TO BEGIN TOMORROW

Evening courses of the Missouri School of Social Economy, 2221 Locust street, will begin tomorrow night. There will be a course every Monday night on methods of family treatment, by Mrs. C. M. Hubbard, which will deal with problems of broken and depressed families and methods of rehabilitating them. A Tuesday night course on industrial welfare will be presented by Dr. George B. Mangold, director of the Missouri School of Social Economy, dealing with topics of women and child labor, factory sanitation, factory welfare workers, occupational diseases, wages and wage laws, and prevention of accident.

The school opened last Tuesday with the enrollment exceeding any previous registration. A series of weekly afternoon lectures for men and women interested in social problems and reconstruction agencies will be given next month.

BUYING AND SELLING CLUBS TO CUT COSTS

Under New Law Any Town or City Can Have Co-operative Associations.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 27.—The high cost of living probably could be solved in some degree by organizing in every city and town of Missouri one or more community buying and selling clubs under a measure enacted by the Fiftieth General Assembly last spring and approved by Gov. Gardner.

An association of this character has the privileges and powers extended to a corporation, the personal property and other individual holdings of members in case of a financial mishap being exempt from seizure for debts or similar obligations.

One of the provisions of the new law, now effective, is that no two or three or four shareholders can own a majority of the stock and control the business transactions and policies of such an association. On this point is where an incorporated community buying and selling company society, association or community club differs from a regular corporation, chartered and otherwise privileged to transact business in Missouri.

Through one of the proposed community associations farmers can sell direct to municipal clubs of the same character or to wholesalers or retailers or to individuals, and gather in the top market prices without paying the commissions or profits exacted by local buyers and shippers and city commission men, or losing through the manipulations of the men to whom they consign products for sale. Merchandise and other necessities the farmers need, in turn, can be purchased in carload lots through such an agency from manufacturers and other producers at the lowest figures, there through saving the profits of all middlemen and local retailers.

The new law provides that anywhere in Missouri any number of persons, not less than 12, are privileged to form a co-operative association, society or exchange with the powers and privileges of a corporation to conduct any agricultural or mercantile business and to manufacture on the co-operative plan. Included are the powers of buying, selling, manufacturing, storing, transporting, handling or dealings in any agriculture, dairy or similar products, groceries, provisions and all other ordinary merchandise.

State Exacts Tax.

The State exacts an incorporation fee of $50 for the first $50,000 of the capital stock or any portion thereof, of each association, and the further sum of $5 for each additional $10,000.

Ten per cent of all annual net profits of each co-operative buying and selling association are to be regularly set aside for a reserve fund until an amount has accumulated equal to 50 per cent of the paidup capital stock. With this requirement fulfilled yearly, from the net profits remaining a stockholder's dividend not to exceed 10 per cent, if sufficient earnings are at hand, can be declared.

The new law in no way affects the standing or legality of co-operative companies, similar in nature, in existence before it became effective, providing that such associations file with the Secretary of State a written declaration, sworn to by the president and secretary of each, that its shareholders, by a majority of votes, decided to accept the benefits and be bound by the provisions of the new act.

ETHICAL SOCIETY MEETS TODAY

Leader Will Speak on Current Issues at Sheldon Memorial.

Meetings of the Ethical Society at Sheldon Memorial, 3648 Washington boulevard, will be resumed this morning when Percival Chubb, the leader, will make an address on "The Supreme Ethical Issues of the Hour: How Shall We Meet Them?" Enrollment of the Children's Sunday Assembly will precede the meeting.

Chubb has sent a pastorial letter to members of the Society, pointing out that there was never greater need for constructive moral work in the community, and that the members should be eager to perform their special task of applying sound ethical ideals to life.

JAZZ IS NOT MUSIC; IT IS JUST NOISE, MUSICIAN SAYS

Girl Pianist, Discharged Because She Would Not Play Jazz, Awarded Damages Against Former Employer.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—'Annie Laurie,' with variations, and the sextette from 'Lucia' are real music, a jury decided in court yesterday, when Miss Mildred Appleton, a pianist, was awarded $1250 for which she sued Joseph Loseff, a ballad player, who discharged her because she would not play "Jazz."

"'Jazz' isn't music, it's just noise," Miss Appleton told the Judge.

"She didn't want to play anything but 'Annie Laurie,' with variations, and the sextette from 'Lucia' and that is not music either,' Loseff countered. "It's too common and ordinary."

Both sides brought musical experts to prove that "jazz" is and is not music and that "Annie Laurie," with or without variations, also is and is not.

Asks to Pay Loan After 12 Years.

About 12 years ago, John Franke, 3945 Easton avenue, an engineer, loaned $100 to John Boute of the Salvation Army to purchase some musical instruments. Franke had forgotten the matter entirely until yesterday, when the police informed him that they had received a letter from Boute, who is now at Columbia, Ohio, asking them to locate Franke so he could repay the loan.

BANKERS TO ASK FOR HEARING AT LABOR MEETING

Association Which Opens 4-Day Conference Here Tomorrow to Take Action Regarding Washington Convention, Oct. 6.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL AND OTHERS TO TALK

Probable Attendance at Sessions Estimated at 6000, Which Will Include 1000 Wives and Daughters of Members.

The American Bankers' Association, which begins a four-day program in St. Louis tomorrow morning, will be asked, by some of its leading members, to take action toward requesting representation in the national industrial conference, to be held in Washington beginning Oct. 6. President Wilson did not invite the association to send representatives to this conference, and this is criticised by some of the bankers as an oversight which should be remedied.

Richard S. Hawes of St. Louis first vice president of the association, who is scheduled for election to the office of president at Thursday morning's session, said yesterday that he considered it strange that the bankers, who finance business and are the trustees of the savings of the working classes, were not asked to send representatives to the industrial conference. He said he believed the organization should demand a voice in the conference.

6000 Expected to Attend.

The probable attendance at the convention is estimated by local bankers at 6000, of whom 1000 are wives and daughters of the bankers. The general sessions will be held in the Shubert-Jefferson Theater, while the Jefferson, Statler and Planters hotels will be headquarters for the meetings of different sections.

A. Mitchell Palmer, Attorney-General of the United States, is scheduled to deliver an address Thursday morning. Other speakers of prominence include Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury; United States Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma; David R. Francis of St. Louis, Ambassador to Russia; Dr. P. P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education; John Barrett, Director-General of the Pan-American Union; Dr. Irving Fisher, professor of political economy, Yale University; John Skelton Williams, Comptroller of the Currency; George M. Reynolds, president of the Continental & Commercial Bank of Chicago; George E. Roberts, vice president of the National City Bank of New York; Robert S. Lovett, president of the Union Pacific Railroad and Samuel Rea, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Robert F. Maddox of Atlanta, president of the association, arrived last night, and will preside over a preliminary administrative meeting at the Statler this afternoon. A preliminary meeting on the convention's finances will be held at Hotel Statler tonight, with Vice President Hawes in charge, and at the same time the Executive Committee of the Savings Bank Section, of which V. A. Lersner of Brooklyn is chairman, will meet at Hotel Jefferson.

Meetings of sections and commissions will begin at the hotels tomorrow morning, and the State Bank Section of which C. B. Hazlewood of Chicago is president, will meet in the Shubert-Jefferson Theater at 2 p. m.

First General Session Tuesday.

The first general session of the convention in the theater, will begin at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday. After the invocation by the Rev. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt of St. John's Methodist Church, the address of welcome will be delivered by Frank O. Watts, president of the First National Bank, who is a former president of the association. The response will be made by John S. Drum, president of the Savings Union Bank and Trust Co. of San Francisco, second vice president of the association.

Reports of officers will be followed, at 11 o'clock, by the addresses of Senator Owen of Oklahoma, on "Stability," and Director-General Barrett of the Pan-American Union, on "Pan-American Financial and Commercial Relations, America's Great Future Opportunity."

Wednesday morning, Archbishop Glennon will pronounce the invocation, and reports of committees and commissions will be received. Ambassador Francis is to speak at 10:30 on "Russia, Its Future." The committee reports will be on such subjects as co-operation with the United States section of the International High Commission, and co-operation with the Chamber of Commerce of the United States regarding foreign exchange.

Palmer to Speak Thursday.

Thursday morning, following the invocation by Rabbi Leon Harrison, reports and the election of officers, Attorney-General Palmer and Prof. Fisher of Yale will speak. Palmer's subject has not been announced. Prof. Fisher will speak on "The Monetary Remedy for the High Cost of Living."

Thursday afternoon, the place of the next convention will be determined, and Dr. Claxton, Commissioner of Education, will make the chief address.

Secretary Glass and Comptroller Williams will speak before the National Bank Section Wednesday afternoon, in the Planters Hotel ball room.

The entertainment program will begin at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon, with a general automobile ride starting from Hotel Jefferson, and stopping at 4 at the City Art Museum in Forest Park, where tea will be served by a committee of women.

Tomorrow night the women will attend the American Theater, the

RICHARD S. HAWES SLATED FOR PRESIDENCY OF BANKERS

St. Louisan to Succeed Robert F. Maddox, Who Is Head of Institution at Atlanta, Ga.

Robert Foster Maddox, president of the American Bankers' Association, is 49 years old, and is president of the Atlanta National Bank. He is a native of Atlanta and studied in the University of Georgia and in Harvard. He was Mayor of Atlanta in 1909 and 1910, and is a director of the Seaboard Air Line Railroad.

Richard S. Hawes of St. Louis, who is scheduled to be advanced from the office of first vice president to the presidency of the association, is 45 years old, and a native of Kentucky, being a grandson of a former Governor of that State. He went to work in a Kansas City jewelry store at the age of 15, and was later employed by the Mississippi River Commission, and in railroad offices.

He entered the employ of the old Chemical National Bank in 1892. This bank was absorbed in 1897 by the Third National Bank, with which Hawes remained in various capacities until the bank was merged recently into the First National Bank. He is senior vice president of the First National. He served as president of the Chamber of Commerce in 1917, and he had charge of the finances of the Home Guard organization. He was prominent in Liberty Loan campaigns and other war movements. He is married, has two sons and two daughters, and lives at 27 Windermere place.

play being "A Tailor-Made Man," and the men will have a smoker in the Statler ball room. Concerts of 45 minutes each will be given at Hotel Jefferson, beginning at 6 p. m., at the Planters at 7, and at the Statler at 8, by Banda Roma, under the direction of Giuseppe Sirignano.

Tuesday night a "mammoth indoor circus royal, hippodrome and dansant" will be given in the Coliseum beginning at 8:15. Dancing will continue to 1 a. m. Special street cars will run from the hotels for the guests, who will be admitted by card only.

Wednesday afternoon, a lawn fete for the women will be held at the Country Club, automobiles leaving the hotels at 3 o'clock. Wednesday night there will be a dance at the planters, with card parties and refreshments.

A card party and afternoon tea will be given for the women at 5 p. m. Thursday at the Statler.

Golf Tournament Friday.

A golf tournament at the Bellerive Country Club will begin at 10 o'clock Friday morning, and will last all day.

The use of clubhouses and grounds has been tendered to delegates by the Algonquin, Bellerive, Bogey, Forest Park, Log Cabin, Midland Valley, Normandy, Ridgedale, Triple A and Westwood Clubs. F. K. Houston is chairman of the Golf Committee.

Heads of Committees.

J. L. Johnston is chairman of the General Arrangements Committee, and Breckinridge Jones heads the General Reception Committee. Edwards Whitaker heads the Information Committee, A. C. White the Hotel Committee, B. F. Edwards the Automobile Committee, F. O. Watts the Speakers' Reception Committee, Edward Buder the Entertainment Committee, M. E. Helderness the Publicity Committee, John F. Lonsdale the Halls and Registration Committee, and William H. Lee the Club Committee.

The women's committees are headed as follows: Executive, Mrs. F. O. Watts; reception, Mrs. David C. Biggs; golf, Mrs. William G. Lackey; automobiles, Mrs. Oliver Richards; information, Mrs. R. F. McNally; hotels, Mrs. A. C. White, and entertainment, Mrs. John T. Davis.

Special Parking Space Reserved Here for Cars to Entertain Bankers

TOMORROW and Wednesday from daylight to 2:30 p. m., automobile parking space on Twelfth street and on Washington avenue will be reserved for cars which are to be used in entertaining delegates to the convention of the American Bankers' Association.

Tomorrow both sides of Twelfth street, from Washington avenue, from Twelfth east to Ninth street, will be reserved for the bankers' cars, which will be designated by cards with the letters "A. B. A." on the windshields. This parking space will be vacated at 2:30, when a drive through the city will begin.

Wednesday, the same arrangement will prevail, except that the Twelfth street parking space will extend only as far south as Olive street. A ride for women of the convention, to the Country Club, will take place that afternoon.

Director Talbert of the Street Department announced yesterday that he would issue taxicab permits to banks, to keep standing, near the banks, as many cars as are needed for entertainment purposes during the four days of the convention, beginning tomorrow. These permits will exempt such machines from the one-hour parking limit.

WARRANT SERVED ON MILLIKEN

Millionaire's Son Charged With Driving 70 Miles an Hour.

A warrant charging careless and wreckless driving and speeding Friday evening near Valley Park was served on John T. Milliken Jr., son of the late millionaire chemical manufacturer, yesterday by a constable of Justice Sturdy's court at Valley Park. It was charged Milliken drove at a rate exceeding 70 miles an hour and narrowly averted striking several farm wagons and a girl, who was forced to leap across a ditch to avoid being run down.

Milliken denied the charge. He said he had driven to Valley Park with Henry Frazier of Crescent, Mo., where Milliken also resides, at a rate not exceeding 20 miles an hour, and stopped in Valley Park 15 minutes while a train was passing. He said he was the victim of a case of mistaken identity.

Postoffice Prepares for Prophet.

In preparation for the Veiled Prophet parade and Fall Festival the outer walls of the Postoffice Building at Eighteenth street and Clark avenue have already been washed. The streets about the building have been cleaned and will be kept so until after the festival.

GARDNER, ON AUTO TOUR DENIES HE IS CANDIDATE

But Politicians Are Unable to Give Other Explanation to Present Speaking Trip.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 27.—Gov. Gardner, who is making an automobile tour of Southern Missouri counties, spoke in Springfield last night to members of the Missouri Press Association. His tour is generally looked upon as an advance campaign by the Governor for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, though he has not yet said that he is a candidate.

The Governor's entry into the business section of Springfield yesterday afternoon aroused unusual interest. Attracting particular attention was a large sign on the windshield, reading "Gov. Gardner's car." The sign was painted in letters about three inches tall and extended the length of the windshield.

It has been on the car since the beginning of the trip at Jefferson City three days ago, and has served the purpose of informing the residents of the rural communities through which he passed that the Governor was in their midst. Reports which have reached here are that the Governor has met with flattering receptions all along his route, and that he has been repeatedly saluted and cheered from farm houses and from people on both sides of the country roads, and as far back from the roads as the sign could be read.

After a speech in Mt. Vernon he plans to take a two days' float on the White River. He expects to visit with fishermen and residents in the Ozark Mountains and really to explore a part of the State he never has been in. He is the second Missouri Governor to "discover" the Ozarks, former Gov. Hadley having made one float of several days on Current River.

In his speech here the Governor repeated in most positive language that he would not be a candidate for United States Senator or for any other office. He has repeatedly made the same statement, but politicians have been unable to account for his speaking tour of the State in any other way than that he is laying his lines to seek the senatorship.

Nothing About Politics.

In his opening remarks last night he said: "There have been many stories circulated that I will seek the nomination for United States Senator. Now that you are all here I am going to make myself plain. I will not be a candidate for Senator or for any other office, but at the expiration of my term will retire to private life, satisfied in having been able to do something as Governor for the benefit of the State."

The Governor's speech last night was purely descriptive of the resource and grandeur of the State of Missouri. He did not mention politics and said nothing about the league of nations. At Lebanon Thursday night he devoted the greater part of his speech to a strong indorsement of the league. As the press association membership includes both Republican and Democratic editors, the Governor's friends said he feared he would be charged with injecting politics into the non-partisan press association meeting if he mentioned the league. He had an audience of about 200.

Mrs. Gardner accompanied the Governor as far as Springfield. Others traveling with him are Representative Frank H. Farris of Rolla, Charles L. Woods of Rolla, Chairman W. R. Rainter of the State Prison Board, State Oil Inspector Omar D. Gray, W. W. Ellis of the Missouri Fish Commission and Tim Birmingham, State Game Commissioner.

The sessions of the press association yesterday were occupied with technical business discussion of method of increasing circulation and advertising of newspapers, and methods of reducing costs.

WOMEN, DRY CLEAN THINGS AT HOME

Save five to ten dollars quickly by dry cleaning everything in the home that would be ruined by soap and water—suits, coats, waists, silks, laces, gloves, shoes, furs, draperies, rugs—everything.

Place a gallon or more of gasoline in a dishpan or wash boiler put in the things to be dry cleaned, then wash them with Solvite soap. Shortly, everything comes out looking like new.

Nothing fades, shrinks or wrinkles. No pressing needed. Do not attempt to dry clean without Solvite soap. This gasoline soap is the secret of all dry cleaning.

A package of Solvite soap containing directions for home dry cleaning costs little at any drug, grocery or department store. Dry clean outdoors or away from flame.—ADV.

CHAUFFEUR PAYS LIFE FOR WAVE TO FRIEND

Louis H. Rickenberg Fatally Injured When His Truck Collides With Broadway Car —Five Others Hurt.

Louis H. Rickenberg, a chauffeur, of 4818 Michigan avenue, was fatally injured at 6.30 a. m. yesterday when an automobile truck he was driving collided, head on, with a Broadway street car, as a result of Rickenberg turning to wave at an acquaintance. He died half an hour later at the city hospital.

The truck was going south on Broadway between Osceola and Chariton streets, in the southbound car tracks, at high speed. The street car was northbound. As they neared, persons on the front platform of the car saw Rickenberg turn and wave at a man on the sidewalk. As he did so, the truck swerved from the southbound tracks, and plunged into the northbound car.

Rickenberg was hurled from his seat against the car, falling then to the street. He never regained consciousness.

The impact caved in the vestibule of the car, and Patrolman Sidney Reeder and John Gruhalla and the motorman were among five men who were cut by broken glass. The truck, owned by John Shulde, a sheet metal contractor, of 2016 Cherokee street, was demolished. Rickenberg had been employed there a year.

His death was the sixty-sixth automobile fatality in St. Louis this year.

SISTINE CHAPEL CHOIR OF 60 WILL SING AT THE COLISEUM

Singers Are Engaged in Controversy With Soloists From Eternal City.

A controversy between the American managers of two bodies of Roman singers now touring in this country has been in progress for several weeks, over the credentials of a quartet of singers advertised as "Sistine Chapel Soloists."

It began with an announcement in America, a Jesuit organ, that no portion of the Sistine Chapel Choir would appear in this country during the present season. The Society of St. Gregory of New York, which is promoting the tour of a choir of 60 singers from the Sistine Chapel and the Roman Basilicas, replied that America's announcement was made before it was known any Vatican singers would come to the United States, and added that the rival body, the quartet of "Sistine Chapel Soloists," which had arrived in the meantime, had no right to that title.

The Sistine Chapel Soloists, Messrs. Gabrielli, Gentili, Cecchine and Dos Santos, now come forward with testimonials from church dignitaries guaranteeing their authenticity. Dr. Ernest Boezi, musical director of the Capella of St. Peter in the Vatican, certifies that these artists have sung "as soloists at all the functions of the Sistine Chapel for many years." Lorenzo Perosi, perpetual director of the Sistine Choir, is quoted as affirming that the four singers have "for years and years sung in the Sistine Chapel." Other guarantors are Archbishop Paul of Montreal, Cardinal Vicarius of Rome and Signor Ferrante of the Chancery Office of the Archbishopric of New York.

The choir of 60 is announced for a concert at the Coliseum on Oct. 30.

INJUNCTION GRANTED AGAINST CROP INSURANCE COMPANY

110 Missouri Farmers Ask Order to Prevent Concern From Paying Out Funds.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 27.—Judge William O. Thomas of the Assignment Division of the Circuit Court yesterday granted a temporary injunction preventing the Missouri Farmers Mutual Crop Insurance Co. from disposing of any of its property or paying out any of its funds until a further order of the Court.

The order wos granted upon a suit brought several days ago by a committee representing 110 farmers of Montgomery County, who hold insurance policies in the company. The petition asked a receiver by appointed, and that an accounting be made.

In granting the injunction Judge Thomas gave the plaintiffs until next Tuesday to file a bond for $5000. The application for a receiver was continued for hearing until Oct. 6, in order that both sides may have time to file affidavits.

FRENCH CHAMBER IS HARD TO REACH

Admission to Scene of Legislators' Activities Is Gained by Long and Tiresome Proceeding.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—When you read a dispatch saying "the French Chamber of Deputies today resumed debate on the peace treaty," get this picture in mind:

An oblong room, scarcely as long as the Senate chamber at Washington, illuminated none too brilliantly from a pale yellow skylight. One side of this room decorated by panels of some dark hue, between brown and purple, with here and there a statue. In the center, on this wall, an enormous Gobelin tapestry, "The School of Athens," after Raphael. Below the painting the dais on which sits M. Paul Deschanel, President of the chamber. He is in evening dress, although the hour is but 3 in the afternoon. A slender, square-shouldered man is M. Deschanel, with gray hair and moustache, and great ease and refinement of bearing. He sits composedly in a mahogany chair whose arms are gilt and scarcely stirs, save when the buzz of talk grows too loud. Then he raps sharply on his desk; or, if this warning fails, he seizes a large silver bell, shaped like a locomotive bell, and dingdongs lustily for silence.

Bell's Effect Brief.

But the silence lasts scarcely until the notes of the bell have ceased. Here, as in our own House of Representatives, none except a few persons in the galleries listens to an ordinary speaker. The unfortunate orator of the day, who stands just below the President's seat, on a tribune ornamented by beautiful bas reliefs, toils on amid a murmur and clatter discouraging enough. On the steeply inclined rows of benches, with crimson backs, the Deputies are whispering, squirming, shuffling. These Parliaments are all alike in inattention—yet the Chamber of Deputies is a trifle more dignified than the House of Representatives. They throw paper wads in Washington, and I don't think they would quite dare do it in the Palais Bourbon.

Boyish Exuberances Absent.

Anyhow, the Deputies are for the most part older and more sedate than our Congressmen. There are many who seem more than 60, very few whom appear younger than 40. The boyish exuberance we know is not here. As a whole they are a body of tired-looking elderly men.

Behind and surrounding the members' benches are the galleries—a double tier, broken by numerous marble pillars and the seats covered with crimson cloth. The effect is that of the boxes at a theater. From these boxes, as it were, the spectators peer forth, straining to catch something of the speaker's elaborately worded assaults upon the peace treaty. These spectators, who are not numerous, deserve something for the trouble they have had getting in.

Yes, getting in is the thing—the process is almost as wearing as having a passport vised or finding one's seat in a French theater.

Soldiers Guard Entrances.

In the courtyard of the old palace which was built for the Duchess of Bourbon, morganatic wife of Louis XIV, there are alert soldiers guarding every entrance. They exhibit practical bayonets and refer the visitor to an anteroom which is outside the seven or eight other anterooms leading to the chamber. Arrived in this outer apartment, one is in the midst of an impatient and anxious throng. They scribble notes to Deputies, imploring admittance, and hand them to one of several intellectual looking bailiffs, who wear brilliant uniforms with scarlet vests. The bailiff disappears. After an hour—no exaggeration—he reappears with a handful of O K's. He calls out names, sharply. Some lucky ones struggle through the crowd, flushed with triumph. Another half hour and the Deputy one has called from the debate to extend his favor appears. He is courteous and cheerful. All the French are courteous and cheerful.

"Charmed," he says, or words to that effect.

Smoke Fills Foyer.

He bustlingly leads the way through various corridors and round innumerable corners. One has a glimpse of a foyer filled with smoke and politics—and here we are at a place—anteroom No. 17—where one writes his full name, address, by whom introduced and other particulars. The card is handed to a red-haired, voluble bailiff in the brightest scarlet vest and gilt cuffs of all. He punches the ticket like a gateman at the La Salle Railroad Station, and now all one has to do is to ascend a few flights of winding stairs, pass successfully the gilt and scarlet being who hangs up one's hat and numbers it, and then—and then one pushes open a swinging door and is at last in the gallery.

It's a long, hard road, but, judging from the crowd clamoring for passes—old men, women in mourning, priests, soldiers with every medal there is, and portly persons in broadcloth—there must be a fascination about this waiting, this journeying through endless corridors.

Perhaps these local politicians and "constits" go through the agony to see if their Deputies are on the job. Or perhaps they are enfevered to get in only because it is hard to get in. The French, it seems to me, exhibit a passion for laborious and complex processes. Entering the Chamber of Deputies is one of the best things they have in that line.

TARKINGTON AT LAST TRIUMPHS IN DRAMA

Novelist's New Comedy, "Clarence," Whimsical Masterpiece, Says New York.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Booth Tarkington, as a playwright, has been long on the way, but by general consent he has arrived at last, with the thoroughly delightful comedy, "Clarence," which vastly amused its first New York audience at the Hudson Theater last Saturday night. Critics have proclaimed "Clarence" as "a little masterpiece," and as "being fresh and unspoiled and deftly artful as a Barrie comedy."

Clarence is a soldier who saw service in the trenches—of a Texas training camp, and who was wounded—at target practice. A gabby American family condescendingly takes in the dilapidated hero to be the handy man around the house, and he shows equal efficiency as a piano tuner, plumber, saxaphone player, philosopher, comforter and friend. The distracted father has hired him on the theory that a man who can exercise persuasive influence over an army mule without swearing—as Clarence has boasted he did—must surely prove serviceable in some way in so fractious and stubborn a family.

Once settled in his new job, the usefulness of the mysterious and variously accomplished Clarence, about whose pre-army career nothing is known, instantly asserts itself. The two children, a boy and a girl, as whimsically drawn as the tormenting youngsters in "Seventeen," forget their tragedies in their growing adoration of Clarence. Even the servants fall under his benign influence. He is more than a match for them all, individually or collectively, in whatever droll complications his presence creates. Finally Clarence extracts his back pay from a reluctant government, casts off his ill-fitting, shoddy O. D., and emerges, stately and distinguished, in civilian clothes.

Clarence Reveals Himself.

"Who are you?" cries his exasperated host at last, when his wife, his daughter and the latter's governess have all grown addled over Clarence.

"I supposed you knew," replies Clarence, withdrawing, hurt and dignified, to repair a leak in the basement heater. "I supposed you knew that I was the foremost coleopterist in this country." It appears that his drafted service in the cause of Mars has temporarily deprived him of a professorship in the idiosyncracies of the potato bug.

The part of Clarence was created by Tarkington especially for Alfred Lunt, who will be remembered in St. Louis for his playing of the snobbish "Gawge Tewksb'r'y, Thud," in the Tarkington-Julian Street comedy of last season, "The Country Cousin." He acts the role of Clarence with an unflagging sense of unconscious humor, and makes it a thoroughly fresh creation. John Flood as the father is humorously splenetic. Cora, the daughter, who is a Jane Baxter grown to 16, is played by the beguiling Helen Hayes; and as the boy, Glenn Hunter is equally successful in suggesting the amusing vagaries of adolescence—in voice, in ungainly gesture, and in ludicrous self-importance.

It has been proclaimed that Booth Tarkington could not write a good play, that he could never write as well for the theater as for the library. "But," confesses Alexander Woolcott, "in humor, in characterization, in wise and amused observation of American life, 'Clarence' is certainly on a par with Ramsey Milholland' and 'The Magnificent Ambersons.' It is as American as 'Huckleberry Finn' or pumpkin pie. It is as delightful as any native comedy which has tried to lure the laughter of this community in the last ten seasons."

Cosmo Hamilton's New Play.

Four other new plays, two with music, form the theatrical grist of the week ending tonight. One of them, "An Exchange of Wives," which opened at the Bijou last night, is from the prolific pen of Cosmo Hamilton, perpetrator of "Scandal." In his latest play certain problems of married life are dealt with, and the story revolves about the adventures and vicissitudes that befall two "model" couples, the Armitages and the Hays, seven years after their respective marriages.

Placing the quartet in the same abode at a fashionable suburban resort, the author furnishes one of the wives and the husband of the other an opportunity to ruffle the calm waters of social convention, but thoughtfully succeeds in saving the characters from what seems an inevitable tragedy. Crystal Herne, Margaret Dale, Miriam Doyle, Lee Baker, Forrest Winant and Stanley Harrison comprise the cast.

Incidentally, Hamilton has " 'fessed up" concerning his "Scandal," which has been protested for its remoteness from reality. "Some of the critics," said the author in an interview a few days ago, "have said that Beatrix and Pelham are not real people, not true to life. Well, the feminine character was taken from a personal acquaintance, and the man is none other than Cosmo Hamilton. Pelham Franklin talked and acted just as I would have done under the same circumstances."

"Thunder" Follows "Lightnin'."

The new plays of the week began Monday night at the Criterion Theater with "Thunder," a comedy of the Blue Ridge Mountains in North Carolina, which was presented by John Golden as a sort of afterclap to "Lightnin'," a play of last season by the same producer, which is still running at the Gaiety. "Thunder" was fabricated by Miss Peg Franklin out of stories by Elia Peattia, both young women being dramatic dark horses.

Burr McIntosh gives a capable performance of a strenuous highland preacher nicknamed "Thunder," who approaches the throne of grace in his shirt sleeves with the aid of a megaphone, and who resolutely lies on occasion in order that good may come. The drawling speech, the ever impending feud, the religion and the maladies of the mountain folk are brought into droll and picturesque view. Sylvia Field plays the heroine—who has been a circus performer—with girlish charm. Much of the laughter is provoked by the uncouthness and indifference of Liela Bennett as the sullen girl of the vendetta. The bearded father, grasping his shooting irons, is ominously portrayed by Charles McDonald. In the plot are a miser's fortune and a suspicion of theft, but the story is not deeply interesting. The real object of "Thunder" is to depict the mountaineers and their singularities.

Another Biggers Musical Comedy.

A musical comedy, "See Saw," adapted from "Love Insurance," a successful novel by Earl Derr Biggers, was presented at the Cohan Theater Tuesday night by Henry W. Savage, after a Boston engagement. The tuneful but familiar music is by Louis A. Hirsch. We have a titled Englishman chasing an American heiress from New York to Palm Beach, where there is found opportunity for scenery and pretty girls. The principal charm of the performance is provided by Elizabeth Hines, who sings and dances delightfully. Charlie Brown is thoroughly likeable and convincingly English as Lord Horrowby. Dorothea Mackaye is the heiress, with nimble toes and a throaty soprano; the best dancing is by Jimmy Parker as a negro bellboy, after a crap-shooting song by melodious porters.

The fourth new offering of the week is a musical comedy, "Roly-Boly Eyes," a John Cort production, which opened at the Knickerbocker Theater Thursday night, with Eddie Leonard as the chief source of giggles. He has the part of a young man who runs away from home and makes his bid for the hall of fame as a minstrel. Edgar Allan Wolff is responsible for the lines, while the music is laid at the doors of Eddy Brown and Louis Gruenberg.

DRESS SUITS FIGURE IN PLOTS AT TWO THEATERS THIS WEEK

Borrowed Clothes Play Important Part in "A Tailor-Made Man" and "Seventeen."

Two momentous dress suits figure in the week's offerings at the American and Shubert-Jefferson. One is the borrowed swallow-tail which raises John Paul Bart from tailor's apprentice to Napoleon of finance in Harry James Smith's comedy, "A Tailor-Made Man," which opens tonight at the American. The other is the claw-hammer garb, also borrowed, in which "Silly Billy" Baxter wooes the "baby-talk lady," Lola Pratt, and which draws upon him the persecution of his terrible little sister, Jane, in Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen," which comes to the Shubert-Jefferson tonight.

Both plays are making return engagements. Harold Vermilye has the principal role in "A Tailor-Made Man," and Gregory Kelly, whose portrayal of William Sylvanus Baxter is one of the juvenile triumphs of the theater, will be seen once more as the love-sick lad in "Seventeen."

George MacFarlane, popular baritone and actor, who is spending his first season in vaudeville, is one of the headliners at the Orpheum this week. The other is Frank Dobson in "The Sirens," a musical tabloid. Additional numbers will be given by Bradley and Ardine, in "Follies of Song and Dance;" James Thompson, in "The Camoufleurs;" MacRae and Clerg in "The Intruder;" Rockwell and Fox, Al Petrie and "Friscoe," exponent of syncopation.

The perennial "Pollyanna," with Viola Harper as the "glad girl," returns to the American next week. The Shubert-Jefferson's offering will be "Lombardy, Ltd."

The week's offerings at other theaters are: Columbia, Ralph Dunbar, as headliner, in "Nine Royal Hussars;" Gayety, "The Bon Ton Girls," and Standard, Stone and Pillard, formerly of musical comedy, now of burlesque.

AUNT AND NIECE LIVE TOGETHER WEEK, THEN FIND RELATIONSHIP

GRAVETTE, Ark.—After living together for almost a week Mrs. William Frazier of Gravette and Mrs. Allie Campbell, Buffton, Kan., Saturday discovered they were aunt and niece. They had been endeavoring to find each other for 45 years, having last seen each other in Tennessee in 1874, when Mrs. Frazier removed to Arkansas.

A week ago Mrs. Campbell and her husband came to Gravette to purchase real estate. They could find no accommodations at the hotels and took rooms at the Frazer home. During the course of conversation they told of their childhood and discovered they were relatives who had spent almost a half century in trying to find each other.

The "how" of "better Americanism"

for OCTOBER

The "how" of being a better father or mother is told in an inspiring article on "Theodore Roosevelt, the Father." Roosevelt's boys thought him "the most wonderful father in the world," and you'll understand why when you read this story.

The "how" of better schools for our children is told in a wonderful description of "The School That Everybody Wants" by Angelo Patri, New York's most famous schoolmaster, who is working every day to achieve the school he pictures.

The "how" of getting a Dollar that won't shrink is told by Irving Fisher, Professor of Political Economy in Yale University, in a wonderfully interesting article that is going to be much talked about.

The "how" of ending industrial strikes and lockouts is told in a truly remarkable article explaining John Leitch's successful plan of Industrial Democracy—a plan that works.

The "how" of better health is told by Charles Phelps Cushing in an article that explains how the Army taught our four million boys to live properly, eat properly, dress properly, exercise properly and keep fit in every way.

The "how" of making a population of 50,000 aliens into a big family is told in an article describing Governor William Cameron Sproul's plan of community service, as worked out in Chester, Pa.

And besides these "how" stories, you'll find, among the other good things, a humorous story by Ellis Parker (Pigs is Pigs) Butler and a vision of the city of the future by Dr. Frank Crane, and a remarkable interview, with Paul Dwight Moody, Assistant Chief Chaplain of the A. E. F., and a newsy department, "The March of The Red Cross."

On the news stands or direct—20 cents the copy. See special $1.00 subscription offer below.

WHAT is this "better Americanism" that we hear so much about these days?

Is it something BIG and GLORIOUS and AWE-INSPIRING? No; not to start with, it isn't.

Better Americanism is a very simple matter of beginning right where you live and work—

To be a healthier, happier self
To be a better mother or father
To be a better worker—a better employer
To be a better neighbor—a better citizen

And then it means getting together with the folks around you and helping them to help you to get better things for your street, your district, your town or city, your county, your state, and OUR country—America!

It is when we all "get together" and make things happen—big, important things like raising a giant Army and Navy to fight for human liberty—that better Americanism becomes something BIG and GLORIOUS and AWE-INSPIRING.

But it has to begin right in our own hearts and minds.

We all mean to be better Americans—to make our homes and our neighborhoods and our cities better, brighter, healthier places. But most of us are so busy at our daily tasks that we can't spend the time to find out just "how."

That's the new job of The Red Cross Magazine—to search everywhere to find the "how" of better Americanism for all of us and then to tell us about it in interesting stories and pictures and newsy articles—actual word and camera pictures of the "how" of getting what we all want.

For instance—

When a man works out the "how" of getting Capital and Labor to work together harmoniously—

When a community in Pennsylvania discovers the "how" of solving some problem that faces thousands of other communities in the country—

When a city discovers the "how" of getting more practical schools, or better health or slumless slums, or more good wholesome fun for its citizens—

Why then it's the new job of The Red Cross Magazine to tell about it. Not in a sober, high-brow way, but simply, practically, entertainingly—and even humorously at times, for smiles are often more effective than sermons in getting across ideas.

To boil it all down, "better Americanism" means a better, healthier, happier, more progressive, you and me and US. That's why we say that The Red Cross Magazine is your magazine—my magazine—OUR magazine.

It is the common monthly meeting ground for all of us, regardless of race, class or creed—the get-together magazine of America—"the heart of America in print."

Don't miss it for a single month.

HOLY NAME SOCIETY WILL PARADE TODAY

6000 Catholics Expected to March; Rally Will Be Held at St. Alphonsus' Church.

An open-air rally of the Holy Name Society, an organization of the Catholic Church for men and youths, will be held this afternoon in the grounds of St. Alphonsus' (Rock) Church, Grand and Finney avenues, folowing a parade. Archbishop Glennon, Rev. Father N. L. Franzen of St. Alphonsus' Church, Father S. J. Brady and Joseph Kane will be the speakers.

The Holy Name Society has for its chief purpose the prevention of the sin of profanity.

The parade will start at 3 o'clock from Grand and Natural Bridge avenues, opposite Fairground Park. Andrew O'Leary will be grand marshal, and it is expected that 6000 marchers will be in line. Each parish branch will carry its society banner and two large American flags.

The parish branches in line will be: St. James, Notre Dame of Wellston, Sacred Heart, St. Michaels, St. Pius, Holy Name, St. Patrick's, St. John's, Epiphany, Immaculate Conception, New Cathedral, St. Teresa's, Nativity, St. Rose's, All Saints', St. Malachy's, Holy Rosary, St. Hedwig's, St. Ann's, Sts. John and James, of Ferguson, Blessed Sacrament, St. Bridget's St. Charles Borromeo (Italian), Our Lady Help of Christians (Italian), St. Lawrence O'Toole, Immaculate Conception of Maplewood, St. Matthew's, Corpus Christi of Jennings, St. Agnes, St. Casimir's (Polish), St. Luke's, of Richmond Heights, St. Ann's, of Normandy, St. Catherine's Assumption, St. Rita's, All Souls of Old Orchard, Mo.; St. Edward's, St. Leo's, St. Joseph, of East St. Louis, St. Philip Neri, St. Alphonsus and St. Paul's of Pine Lawn.

SQUIRREL PINE CONE CACHES SOUGHT BY U. S. FORESTERS

Seeds Are Thus Obtained, Planted in Nursery and Later Removed to Forests.

By the Associated Press.

MISSOULA, Mont., Sept. 27.—Squirrel caches of pine cones are sought each year by foresters in Montana in gathering cones for planting purposes. The work this year will begin about Oct. 15.

Sometimes a single squirrel's cache will yield as high as 15 or 20 bushels, though usually the yield is about five bushels. The squirrels store the cones in damp places to prevent drying and the seeds falling out.

About 100 pounds of Douglas fir seed and 50 pounds of larch seed will be gathered this year.

Plans which had been made to gather about 4000 bushels of white and yellow pine cones were given up when scouts sent into the district reported there would be no crop. Most of the larch and fire cones will be gathered near Haugan and Libby, Mont.

Larch and fir cones are much harder to gather than other kinds because they are so small that as a rule the squirrels will not store them for the winter, preferring the larger white and yellow pine cones.

After the cones are gathered they are taken to the seed plant, where they are dried in a kiln for two days and two nights. They are then run through large drums, which shake out the seeds. The largest seed plant of the entire forest service is located at Priest River, Idaho. The cones gathered this year will be taken to a small seed plant near Iron Mountain, Montana.

The seeds are finally taken to the Savenac nursery of the forest service at Haugan and planted there. When about three years old they are removed to the forest for planting.

CANADA'S PRESENT WAR BILLS ESTIMATED AT $500,000 A DAY

Dominion Buys American Currency at Loss to Pay Debts in United States.

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Sept. 27.—Official estimates show that Canada's present war expenditures, exclusive of pensions, total about $500,000 a day. The Dominion debt has mounted to more than $1,500,000,000.

Total war expense for August was $14,087,000, a reduction of about $4,500,000 from August of 1918. Since the end of March, the beginning of the fiscal year, capital expenditure for war purposes has totaled $121,487,189, almost double what it was for the same period last year.

Revenue receipts have increased notably this summer. Current revenue for August was $32,204,000, compared with $26,395,000 for the previous August.

Depreciation of the value of Canadian currency is receiving constant attention from Treasury officials. It has been pointed out that the condition probably cannot be remedied until part of the heavy trade balance against Canada in the United States is met. These debts have to be paid in bullion or American currency and for some time Canadian banks have been buying American currency with Canadian currency, paying an average premium of 8 per cent.

Church Holding "Mobilization Day."

Today is "Mobilization day" at Compton Heights Christian Church, California and St. Vincent avenues. Morning services will be under the auspices of the Bible School and evening services in charge of the Women's Union. Graduates from all departments will receive diplomas. The speaker for the evening is Maj. Norman B. Comfort.

"The Coat with Lungs"

Air-in in fair weather is a smart topcoat of finest fabric. When wet weather comes, Air-in affords complete protection from the elements, keeping you dry and comfortable in the hardest rain.

We have termed Air-In "the coat with lungs" because there is a special arrangement in the back which permits a continual circulation of air. This ventilates the coat and eliminates that uncomfortable, unhealthy stuffiness found in ordinary raincoats. Every Air-in coat actually breathes as you walk.

DON'T WEAR BUST PADS

—unless you wish to permanently reduce the size of your busts. Hot, sweaty pads or ruffles break down the delicate tissues and should never be worn. STOP wearing them if you value your figure.

USE THE NATIONAL

to enlarge your busts to their natural size and beauty. EXPANDS BUST INSTANTLY, bringing quick results where all other methods have failed. No matter what the cause of retarded development, THE NATIONAL is the only rational method that will ever restore the size and beauty of the busts.

DEVELOPS "ONE" TO "FIVE" INCHES

This remarkable woman's invention WILL EXPAND ANY BUST to its fullest proportions in a remarkably short time. Even five minutes' use will surprise and delight you. Use the NATIONAL a few minutes daily until your bust measurement is what you desire. That's all. If you want greater development any time, use it a little longer. It expands the bust as long as used, and results are natural and permanent.

REPORTS AFTER USING THE NATIONAL

Five Inches—
"Your National in my case has not merely developed a bust that disappeared from some sort of illness, but has actually developed a bust which has never been larger than a child's. Five inches' development seems almost untrue in such a short time, but nevertheless it is absolutely true in my case, which the photo shall prove to you."—Mrs. Allendorf.

Three Inches—
"In the three weeks' use of the National I have increased THREE INCHES in size and am delighted."—Mrs. T. A.

Three and One-Half Inches—
Dr. Swarthout says: "The first three weeks bust developed 3½ inches."

No Pads and Ruffles Now—
"No amount of money could buy my National. I have laid aside the pads and ruffles I have worn ever since I can remember."—Mrs. D. R.

The National is the special developer Dr. C. S. Carr formerly recommended in the "Physical Culture Magazine" as the only safe, reliable method known for enlarging the bust in a natural way. Of this method, Dr. Carr said: "Indeed, it will bring about a development of the busts quite astonishing."

WRITE FOR VALUABLE FREE BOOK

If you want a beautiful, plump, full bust of real firm flesh and blood write us at once. DON'T WAIT! OUR VALUABLE BOOK, containing full information by Dr. Carr, telling how the busts of any woman, whether married or unmarried, may be quickly enlarged to their normal size and beauty, will be sent FREE to everyone in need of development. Spent Money Foolishly

"I have been a great sufferer from stomach trouble and gall stones. No one knows the pains I have suffered. Since taking the first dose of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy am feeling fine, can work all day and eat anything I want. Have no more distress or palpitation of the heart from gas on my stomach. I have spent a great deal of money on doctors and medicine, but got nothing to help me." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammtion which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. TODAY'S BEAUTY HINT

It is not necessary to shampoo your hair so frequently if it is entirely and properly cleansed each time by the use of a really good shampoo. The easiest to use and quickest drying shampoo that we can recommend to our readers is one that brings out all the natural beauty of the hair and may be enjoyed at very little expense, by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox which can be obtained from any druggist, in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just to the top of the head. This, when rubbed into the scalp and onto every strand of hair, chemically dissolves all impurities. It is very soothing and cooling in its action, as well as beneficial to both scalp and hair. After rinsing out the lather so created, you will find the scalp is fresh, clean and free from dandruff, while the hair dries quickly and evenly, developing a bright luster and a soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy.—ADV.

EXILES HAPPY TO SEE HOME IN POLAND AGAIN

Wanderers and Refugees From All Over the World Are Reaching Danzig.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

DANZIG, Poland, Sept. 21 (by courier to Paris).—Homeward-bound Polish wanderers, exiles and refugees from all parts of the world are pouring into this city, landing on the docks which for months have been loaded with the food brought to save the people of Poland from starvation. British, Danish and Norwegian vessels have been the first to come, carrying masses of humanity, every individual member of which presented an example of the suffering and tragedy caused by foreign rule in Poland.

Hundreds of men, women and children landed from the British steamer Willich which was the first to come from Archangel. These people who formed part of the army of refugees and exiles assembled in Northern Russia. Among them were men and women who had lived the greater part of their lives as political prisoners of the old Russian regime while others were victims of the later Bolshevist rule. They told many stories of their privations and prison camp experiences while waiting for the dawn of freedom in Poland. They described conditions in various parts of Russia and said that though Bolshevism was proclaimed as an advanced idea it was in practice proving to be the worst form of despotism.

Some of the refugees said that even during the sea voyage Bolshevist agents worked among the refugees offering them money as they were about to reach their longed-for goal if they would foment discord and trouble in Poland. While answering questions about their experiences all reverted to the realization of their hopes of seeing Poland again and also of the fact that hard work lay ahead of every man, woman and child in Poland if the efforts of Poland's enemies to destroy the republic were to fail. Some of the boys and girls accompanying their parents said that they were born in Siberia, to which their fathers had been sent by the stern edict of the Czar. These only knew Poland from description and from the heart yearnings of their parents but declared that they wished to go and live there to work and serve.

The Danish steamer St. Croix brought another group of homeward-bound Poles, including 109 who had been forced into the German army service because they lived in German Poland. They had been captured and interned as prisoners in England during the greater portion of the war. They were not in a physical condition to join the Polish army when it was formed and remained in England until they had the first opportunity to return home. They had the warmest words of praise for the treatment received from the British, declaring that they preferred the British prison camps to fighting against their will under German officers who before the war were among the officials conducting the pan-German policy of trying to denationalize the Polish nation. These homeward-bound people were heartily received by the Polish colony in this city.

One veteran of the Polish insurrection of 1863 with tears streaming down his cheeks said that he was willing to end his days on earth as soon he he reached his old home in the free Polish republic.

RED CROSS RELIEF WORK GOES FORWARD RAPIDLY IN EUROPE

Paris Headquarters Explains That Reports Have Exaggerated Sales of Material and Equipment.

PARIS, Aug. 26 (By Mail).—Because inaccurate reports of large sales of American Red Cross merchandise have appeared in the past few weeks, Red Cross headquarters in Paris has issued a statement explaining that the only materials which have been sold are perishables, secondhand equipment, surplus stocks and articles no longer needed for direct relief work, in France or in Eastern Europe.

The total sales of surplus and secondhand material by the Red Cross in Europe will aggregate not more than 30,000,000 francs, says the Red Cross, while the value of the relief material distributed during July and August alone will be more than 100,000,000 francs.

The American Red Cross is now conducting operations in 17 European countries. The relief material distributed in France, mainly in the devastated districts, since the armistice, is valued at more than 125,000,000 francs, while in the same period other European countries have received more than 200,000,000 francs' worth of supplies, including medical and surgical material, clothing, food and barracks.

Such sales as have been authorized in France have been conducted through the Red Cross Liquidation Board. The official statement says regarding this material:

"Unexpectedly heavy expense of work in Poland and the Balkan States, and the beginnings of new relief activities in Western and Southern Russia made it advisable to turn these stocks into cash to assist the relief programs, as well as to save certain of the accumulated stocks from total loss."

Whatever You Do Don't Neglect Your Eyes, Says Dr. Lewis, Who Tells How to Strengthen Eyesight 50% in One Week's Time in Many Instances.

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. He says neglect causes more eye troubles and poor sight than any other one thing. Many whose eyes were failing say they had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses, and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time, and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two or four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start, and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist, and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in this city by the Enderle, Johnson Bros., Pauley, Judge & Dolph, Wolff-Wilson and other druggists.—ADVERTISEMENT.

To Keep Seborrhea Away Use Famo Every Day

It may seem a strange thing to say, but it is a fact, that people are too enthusiastic about FAMO.

They see the signs of seborrhea, which kills the hair, disappear after one, or at most, two or three applications.

They note that the hair takes on a new sheen—that it grows soft, and wavy, and looks better and healthier in every way.

The change is so marked, and they hear such wonderful stories of new hair grown by FAMO, that they argue that frequent applications are not necessary.

This is wrong, all wrong. FAMO is a medicine for the hair, and should be used as a medicine, faithfully and continuously.

New hair will not grow otherwise. The seborrhea bacillus will attack again.

Seborrhea is as dogged and persistent as pyorrhea and pyorrhea is treated daily.

If you do not keep it away it will kill the roots of the hair, just as pyorrhea kills the roots of the teeth.

We know of no medicine save FAMO that will kill seborrhea, and we know of no other that will prevent the return of seborrhea.

But even FAMO cannot safeguard your scalp unless it is used faithfully.

You should no more think of using FAMO only once a week, than you would think of using your tooth-brush once a week or using the dentists prescription for pyorrhea once a week.

FAMO is as necessary, every day, as your tooth-brush is necessary, every day.

When you use it that way you are doing the best thing you can do to assure beautiful hair and a scalp free from dandruff.

It takes but a few minutes every morning to use FAMO.

It requires no rubbing in or massaging.

Be sure of your hair. Be sure by using FAMO every day of your life, wherever you are and whatever you do.

FAMO is sold at all toilet goods counters, in two sizes—$1 and 35 cents.

Seborrhea is the medical name for a morbidly increased flow from the sebaceous glands of the scalp. The seborrhean excretion forms in scales or flakes and is commonly known as dandruff.

RHEUMATISM LEAVES YOU FOREVER

Deep Seated Uric Acid Deposits Are Dissolved and the Rheumatic Poison Starts to Leave the System Within Twenty-Four Hours.

Every druggist in this country is authorized to say to every rheumatic sufferer in this vicinity that if two bottles of Allenrhu, the sure conqueror of rheumatism, does not stop all agony, reduce swollen joints and do away with even the slightest twinge of pain, he will gladly return your money without comment.

Allenrhu has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and piteous and where the patient was helpless.

Allenrhu relieves at once. Immediately after you start to take it the good work begins. It searches out the uric acid deposits, dissolves the secretions and drives rheumatic poison out of the body through the kidneys and bowels.

It's marvelous how quickly it acts. Blessed relief often comes in two days, and even in cases where the suffering is most painful all traces disappear in a few days.

Mr. James H. Allen, the discoverer of Allenrhu, who for many years suffered the torments of acute rheumatism, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless Allenhu decisively conquers this worst of all diseases, and he has instructed your druggist to guarantee it in every instance.—ADV.

FIVE "DOUBLE STAR" RECITALS PROMISED

Ysaye and Elman, Gluck and Zimbalist, Ponselle and Jacobsen, in Joint Concerts.

A novel series of concerts is announced for St. Louis this season by the Central Concert Company of Detroit, a newcomer in the managerial field. Each concert, or "musical evening," as the company phrases it, will be a joint recital, on the theory that if one artist is interesting two will be twice as much so. Elaborate stage settings are promised for each event, in the belief that the eye should have its pleasure as well as the ear.

The first concert is to be given at the Odeon on Oct. 11, and the soloists will be Rosa Ponselle, dramatic soprano, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Sasha Jacobsen, Russian violinist. Miss Ponselle, who is 22 years old, was born at Meriden, Conn., of Italian parentage. The story is told that she was singing in vaudeville one night in New York, and that Director Gatti-Casazza happened to hear her. A month from that night she made her debut at the Metropolitan with Caruso, in "La Forza del Destino." Last year was her first season with the Metropolitan, and St. Louis is said to be one of three cities which will hear her recital this year.

The most momentous offering of the series will be a recital by two great violinists, Eugen Ysaye and Mischa Elman, at the Coliseum. The two masters have appeared together in the East, playing not only solos, but double concertos for the instrument, which are rare compositions in violin literature.

Homer Family for One Concert.

The Homer family—Mme. Louise Homer, Miss Louise Homer and Sidney Homer—will provide another interesting evening. Miss Homer, who is a soprano, sang here at the Woman's Club last year. Sidney Homer, husband of Mme. Homer, is an eminent song writer, and has hitherto been represented only by proxy before the public, his wife and daughter always including a group of his lyrics in their programs.

Efrem Zimbalist, violinist, and Mme. Zimbalist, who is Alma Gluck, will appear together at the fourth concert. The fifth one will be given by Riccardo Stracciari, star baritone of the Chicago Opera Co.; and Margaret Romaine, of the Metropolitan Opera. Miss Romaine was born at Ogden, Utah, and comes of a musical family. One sister, Hazel Dawn, is a musical comedy star; another, Nannie Traut, is one of the leading operatic singers of Italy. Miss Romaine at first studied to be a violoncellist, but took up singing in Paris and London. She joined the Chicago Opera Co. in 1917, and last year was added to the Metropolitan forces.

WILSON SAID TO DESIRE CASTS OF PEACE DELEGATES' FEATURES

Paris Wonders How Clemenceau Will View Idea; Balked Once While Under Artist's Hands.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 30.—The report from New York that President Wilson has expressed a desire to have casts of the features of all the principal delegates at the peace conference, is causing much speculation in the Parisian artistic world as to the probable reception which Premier Clemenceau will make to the request.

Ten years ago, when the late Rodin was working on his famous bust of the "Tiger," which Clemenceau says looks as much like him as he looks like Joan of Arc, Rodin asked and obtained permission to make a cast of Clemenceau's features.

Clemenceau submitted to the application of layers of paraffin, oil, soap and plaster to his face, fiddled nervously for 10 minutes while Rodin was massaging his features, then suddenly asked: "How much longer are you going to manhandle me in this way?"

"Another half hour," replied Rodin carelessly.

Clemenceau leaped from the chair, rushed to the nearest washstand and proceeded to erase all traces of the cast from his face. He then gave Rodin his photograph.

PERSHING'S MEN THE PREY OF GUIDES ON ROME VISIT

"Itching Palms" Throughout "Eternal City" Deplete Purses of American Doughboys, in Wholesale Graft.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

ROME, Sept. 1.—"Itching palms" were extended to the enlisted personnel attached to Gen. Pershing's staff during the American Commander in Chief's visit to Rome. Cab-drivers, professional guides, professional beggars, novelty vendors and guidebook sellers preyed upon the American doughboys with avidity. One soldier paid $5 to be driven from the station to St. Peter's, a trip ordinarily costing 40 cents or, by trolley, 4 cents.

Professional guides reaped a harvest at the Coliseum and at St. Peter's, where they played the part of "confidence" men by offering to take the soldiers to parts of these monuments not ordinarily open to the public. A guide at the Coliseum exacted $4 for taking three privates and a Sergeant through the upper tiers, while another guide at St. Peter's demanded $7 for taking two boys through the Vatican museum, both of which are free to the public.

A cab driver agreed to take three privates over the ancient Appian way for $6. He took them on a trip of the city of Rome for about an hour, told them they had seen all and demanded his fare, which they paid.

DETROIT TO KEEP EASTERN TIME

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 27.—Detroit's official timepieces will tick along without interruption when the clocks of the remainder of the country are set back one hour on Oct. 26, in conformity with the provisions of the expiring daylight savings law.

The City Council, under the terms of an ordinance just adopted, has decreed that Eastern standard shall be retained as the official time for the city.

Some confusion is expected to result for a while owing to the fact that railroad time and that throughout the State will be one hour slower than official time here. Detroit, however, instituted Eastern standard time some years before the Federal daylight saving law was enacted, and its proponents declare the confusion will be short lived.

THE "BLUES"

Caused by

Acid-Stomach

Millions of people who worry, are despondent, have spells of mental depression, feel blue and are often melancholy, believe that these conditions are due to outside influences over which they have little or no control. Nearly always, however, they can be traced to an internal source—acid-stomach. Nor is it to be wondered at. Acid-stomach, beginning with such well defined symptoms as indigestion, belching, heartburn, bloat, etc., will, if not checked, in time affect to some degree or other all the vital organs. The nervous system becomes deranged. Digestion suffers. The blood is impoverished. Health and strength are undermined. The victim of acid-stomach, although he may not know the cause of his ailments, feels his hope, courage, ambition and energy slipping. And truly life is dark—not worth much to the man or woman who has acid-stomach!

Get rid of it! Don't let acid-stomach hold you back, wreck your health, make your days miserable, make you a victim of the "blues" and gloomy thoughts! There is a marvelous modern remedy called EATONIC that brings, oh! such quick relief from your stomach miseries—sets your stomach to rights—makes it strong, cool, sweet and comfortable. Helps you get back your strength, vigor, vitality, enthusiasm and good cheer. So many thousands upon thousands of sufferers have used EATONIC with such marvelously helpful results that we are sure you will feel the same way if you will just give it a trial. Get a big 50 cent box of EATONIC—the good tasting tablets that you eat like a bit of candy—from your druggist today. He will return your money if results are not even more than you expect.

1918 OUTPUT OF COAL RECORD ONE FOR STATE

Missouri Produced 5,667,730 Tons, Worth $17,126,498—9590 Miners Employed.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 27.—Missouri's coal production in 1918, totaling 5,667,730 tons, chiefly from the counties north of the Missouri River, but also including the output of Barton, Bates, Cooper, Johnson, Henry, Lafayette, Vernon, Cole and Moniteau and other producing counties which lie south had a total mine value of $17,126,498, breaking when it comes to aggregated worth, all previous records, announces advance information from the 1919 Red Book of the Missouri Bureau of Labor Statistics, promulgated in a bulletin today by Commissioner William H. Lewis.

While the 1917 output of coal was slightly more than that of 1918, totaling 5,670,549 tons, the mine worth was only $12,768,735, or $4,367,763 less than the total realized from this source by mine operators last year. In comparison with the record breaking years, 1917 and 1918, are the 1916 production figures, the output of Missouri's coal mines that year totaling 4,742,146 tons and the worth $9,044,505, the highest figures for both value and production until then.

New Law Helps.

That the 1919 Missouri production of coal will exceed that of either 1918 or 1917, both in quantity and value, is apparent at the present writing, announces the Bureau of Labor Statistics, bulletin which was prepared by Supervisor of Statistics, A. T. Edmonston, one reason being that to further boom and boost this already extensive and valuable State resource and industry, the Fiftieth General Assembly through the suggestion and with the approval of Gov. F. D. Gardner, inserted in one of the 1919-1920 appropriation measures, now a law, a clause reading: "Missouri coal preferred—In the purchase of coal herein provided for, quality and cost considered, preference shall be given to coal mined in Missouri."

Coal Producing Counties.

The heavy coal producing counties of Missouri, beside those already enumerated are: Adair, Audrain, Boone, Callaway, Clay, Dade, Platte, Grundy, Harrison, Sullivan, Linn, Macon, Putnam, Randolph, Ray, Livingston, Montgomery and Ralls, counties all north of the "Big Muddy." Barton County generally leads all other Missouri coal producing counties in annual production and total worth. Lafayette County is a good second in this respect and Macon County generally ranks third.

The average mine worth of Missouri coal in 1918 was $3.02 a ton, as compared to $2.25 a ton in 1917, and $1.91 a ton in 1916. Missouri coal mines during 1918 gave employment to a total of 9590 miners and laborers who averaged 235 days of work, each during those 12 months, and received, approximately, $11,268,250 in wages that year. The work day was 8 hours. The average yearly earnings of each miner that year is placed at $1175. Each averaged 131 days of idle time including Sundays and holidays during the year under consideration.

The first official record of coal being mined in Missouri and sold goes back to 1840 when the output is recorded as being only 9972 tons. Missouri coal mines have had an output which totals 143,996,470 tons worth in excess of $305,000,000.

90 PER CENT OF RAILROAD CARS REMOVED BEFORE REDS' ADVANCE

Rolling Stock Gotten Out of Districts in Russia That Are Overrun by Bolsheviki.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

OMSK, July 20, via Vladivostok, Aug. 12.—Ninety per cent of the railroad rolling stock in the Perm, Ekaterinburg and Cheliabinsk districts was pulled out before the territory was given over to the Bolsheviki, according to Gen. Jack of the Inter-Allied Technical Committee, who assisted in the evacuation. More than 30,000 freight cars and approximately 600 locomotives were saved.

The railroad bridge over the Kama at Perm, 970 yards long, was put out of commission by the Siberian military before leaving. It is not so seriously damaged, however, that it cannot be easily repaired. One complete span was dumped into the river.

The Kama fleet of 39 vessels, several of which had been converted into gunboats, but later dismantled, was accidentally burned.

Gen. Jack left Perm four hours before the Bolshevik shells began to fall in the town. With him went Otto T. Glaman, American vice consul, who had been asked by the Russian authorities to remain at his post as long as possible for the moral effect of his presence on the population. Gen. Jack praises Glaman for assistance in keeping trains moving.

The peasant population, as well as the bourgeoisie, fled before the Bolshevik advance. Families loaded their possessions onto carts or boxcars and took the road east. Every country road leading out was filled with these carts moving in caravans, leading cows and horses, often carrying pigs and fowls. It was not unusual to find a family of four or five crowded into a boxcar with all their domestic animals and household goods, bound eastward with no fixed destination.

Virtually no stocks of merchandise were moved. The railway machine shops were left intact, as were factories of all sorts, no efforts having been made to destroy them.

Put Post-Dispatch WANTS to work for you, Mr. Employer, in gathering together a sales organization that will win.

New Method of Reducing Fat

A news item from abroad informs us that the American method of producing a slim, trim figure is meeting with astonishing success. This system, which has made such a wonderful impression over there, must be the Marmola Prescription Tablet method of reducing fat. It is safe to say that we have nothing better for this purpose in this country. Anything that will reduce the excess flesh two, three or four pounds a week, without injury to the stomach, the causing of wrinkles, the help of exercising or dieting, or interference with one's meals is a mighty important and useful addition to civilization's necessities. Just such a catalogue of good results, however, follow the use of these pleasant, harmless and economical little fat reducers. We say economical because Marmola Prescription Tablets (made in accordance with the famous prescription) can be obtained of any druggist or the makers, the Marmola Co., 864 Woodward Av., Detroit, Mich., for one dollar the large case, which is a decidedly economical price considering the number of tablets each case contains. They are harmless.—ADV.

Kansas City Chiropodist Discovers Remarkable Compound to Remove Corns.

B. E. Hixon, a well known Kansas City Chiropodist, explains his wonderful method whereby any one can remove corns or calluses at home as follows:

"Merely go to a drug store and get a small package of Cactus Corn Compound, which costs only a few cents. The bottle is sufficient to remove dozens of corns. All you do is to paint the corn with the compound and shortly it is off entirely. No pain and you continue with your work as usual."

Hundreds of people in this city have tried Mr. Hixon's method and found it effective—no pain or danger.

Cactus Compound can be procured at any drug store, and your money will be refunded if you are not satisfied.—ADVERTISEMENT.

BERNSTORFF BOOK OUT JAN. 1

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—Count von Bernstorff, former German Ambassador to the United States has returned to Berlin after two months spent in Bavaria. He said he had been working on his book, which he hopes will be published about the first of the year.

Just what part Count von Bernstorff will play in politics is not clear. His work in connection with peace matters is rather a nonpartisan business but his strength among Democrats is a factor to be reckoned with.

IF YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES

If you have roaring, buzzing noises in your ears, are getting hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength) and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal trouble of the ears, is hard of hearing or has head noises should give this prescription a trial.—ADV.

TRY THIS IF YOU HAVE DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it quickly. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid avron, apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.—ADV.

THE MOTOR BUS FOR CITY SERVICE

Sections of New York Opened to Public Travel Otherwise Unreached Except by Private or Hired Conveyances.

The motor bus, the outgrowth of the American "jitney" with the adoption of certain principles of the English omnibus, is growing in importance as a public carrier. Its services are inter as well as intra-urban. The irresponsibility and lack of business methods of the pioneer "jitney" operators, has given way to the carefully and efficiently conducted operation of the motor bus of today. The latter is as different from the "jitney" of 10 years ago, as the railroad of today is from the railroad of 50 years ago. No longer is there ignorant rate cutting, inferior equipment and reckless operation. These features in recent times have been in a large measure completely reversed.

Every new transportation agency sooner or later meets antagonism from the older transportation agencies. When the subway in New York was first proposed it was argued that it would so materially decrease the number of passengers using existing public carriers as to make their operation unprofitable. This argument has long since been disproved.

Motor bus lines are not direct competitors of a city's public carriers. Motor bus lines operate over routes that have no other kind of public transportation and at rates which, until recently, were double that of a city's ordinary public carriers. The motor bus differs in so many respects from the elevated train, the subway and the surface car that with its advantages, it has come to stay.

Business and Pleasure Combined.

What type of carrier could secure a franchise to operate on such thoroughfares as Fifth avenue, Riverside drive, Seventh avenue or Fifty-Seventh street of New York City? Certainly not an electric surface car for it would mean laying tracks, a nuisance that would not be tolerated. The motor bus permits hundreds of thousands of persons to utilize these streets both for business and pleasure where formerly they could not, except possibly at considerable inconvenience or cost. These thoroughfares which only a few years ago were used almost exclusively by those who could afford a private or hired conveyance, are now, through the medium of the motor bus, conveniently and inexpensively available to everyone in the city. The motor bus functions as efficiently as the surface car, at the same time eliminating the necessity of tracks and noise, attendant to surface car operation.

When a car or train develops a mechanical difficulty which prevents its further progress, all the succeeding cars or trains are delayed until the disabled car is repaired or removed. Not so with the motor bus—a breakdown only ties up the one bus. Succeeding busses merely pass around the disabled bus and the schedule suffers but little.

Advantages of Motor Bus.

The most prominent advantages of the motor bus are:

1. Greater mobility.
2. Absence of tracks.
3. Ability to continually extend routes to meet newly developed needs.
4. Ease with which routing can be shifted without loss of equipment.
5. Confining of service delays to the one vehicle affected when there are mechanical troubles.
6. Possibility of maintaining better schedules and intensive service.
7. Less weight of vehicle per passenger as compared with common electric carriers.
8. Greater efficiency for certain kinds of traffic.
9. Admission to residential thoroughfares closed to the common electric carriers.
10. Service as feeders to more rapid and long electric carriers.

NEW MODEL

NEW CHANDLER

The latest series of the Chandler in a four-passenger coupe has made its appearance in St. Louis. The body is finished in a dark blue with fenders, hood and running gear in black. The wheels are painted blue on all the latest models except the roadster which are cream color.

Improvements include a metal-covered body which replaces a roof of wood and canvas construction formerly used. The body design is of the stream-line effect with beveled edges. Doors are full length with all hinges enclosed. The windows are of heavy plate glass and may be lowered away entirely or adjusted to any desired position by an automatic lift. The lower windshield panel is curved to harmonize with the high rounded cowl.

A windshield cleaner to improve the driver's vision in inclement weather is part of the regular equipment.

The seating arrangement is staggered, the driver's seat being set forward of the wide rear seat. An auxiliary seat equipped with a spring cushion is built alongside the driver's seat and may be folded away when not in use. The upholstery is a very attractive ribbed plush. Interior metal trimmings are of oxidized silver. Oversize 34x4½ tires are part of the regular equipment. The other models in the new Chandler series include seven-passenger touring car, four-passenger roadster, four-passenger dispatch car, seven-passenger sedan and a limousine seating five persons in the inclosed compartment.

PRACTICAL PARAGRAPHS

Short Circuited Plug.

The short circuiting of a spark plug that causes misfires is seldom at the spark gap. Oily surfaces of the porcelain collect and retain metallic wear products which invite the current to avoid the gap and prevent the spark jump that is needed to get ignition. The quality of spark plug makes no difference. The surfaces must be cleaned to restore proper action.

A Dust Cover.

A dust cover made of unbleached muslin, large enough to cover the car with the top up, is a good investment. When proper shelter cannot be obtained you can depend upon this cover to protect the car from rain, scum or dust. It may be folded and placed under the rear cushion.

Spots on Varnish.

The best substance with which to remove spots from varnish, such spots as are made by road oil or tar, is butter. The stronger the butter the better. It should be laid over the spot and be permitted to stand for half an hour, when it will soften the material and allow it to be removed with a piece of cheesecloth.

Keep the Hands Clean.

A little vaseline rubbed on the hands before commencing any machine work will greatly facilitate cleasing the hands with soap and water when the job is done.

Radiator Leaks.

Radiator leaks are often very hard to locate, especially when they are little ones. In these circumstances empty the radiator completely and blow smoke into it through a jeweler's blow pipe. This will discover the location of the leak. A little soft solder on the end of a wire will enable you to reach places where common soldering cannot be carried out.

USE COCOANUT OIL FOR WASHING HAIR

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—ADV.

LEGION TO HELP MEN GET LIBERTY BONDS

Post Adopts Resolution Urging U. S. to Take Action in Getting Securities Paid For.

The Richard Anderson Post No. 54 of the American Legion, which meets at the Cabanne Branch Library, Union and Kensington avenues, is taking steps to help soldiers and sailors obtain the Liberty Bonds they purchased while in the service which they have not received, and to give advice regarding the transfer of life insurance.

A resolution was adopted at a meeting of the post last week which stated that the Quartermaster and the Treasury Departments and the Liberty Loan Committees have "passed the buck" in these matters. The post adjutant has been instructed to send copies of the resolution to the President and to Congress. The delegates to the State Convention will urge that body to indorse and take action on the plan. The post has a membership of 120 and plans to have 200 before the State Convention meets in Jefferson City, Oct. 6.

The resolution follows:

"Whereas, it has come to the attention of the members of this post that there are many instances among the members of the legion and other army men as well as other persons, who subscribed for Liberty Bonds at the solicitation of the Government, that, although they have paid for them, they have never received them; and further, although they have repeatedly made efforts to locate and get them, they have been unable to get any satisfaction from the United States Quartermaster Department, or the United States Treasury Department, or the Liberty Loan Committees who handled the transactions, as to where or how or when they can obtain them, but that each department has passed the buck to the other departments on these matters, so that it has become apparent that there is no machinery provided for remedying this situation, so that these persons can obtain these bonds without long and expensive litigation, even if then,

"Now Therefore, be it resolved by the Richard Anderson Post No. 54, of the American Legion, of 1652 Pierce Building, St. Louis, Mo.,

"That it is the sense of this meeting that the President and Congress of the United States of America ought and should adopt such measures or legislation as may be necessary to provide for a prompt and simple method by which such bond claimants may prove their claims and obtain the delivery of their bonds.

"It is further resolved that the adjutant of the post be instructed to send copies of this resolution to the President and Congress, and that our delegates to the State Convention present same to the State Convention for indorsement and action by that body."

SMUGGLERS AT DETROIT CAUSE BIG LOSS ANNUALLY TO CANADA

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 27.—Merchandise valued at $4,000,000 annually is smuggled across the Detroit River front in the American side at this port, according to estimates by business men of Windsor, Ontario, the thriving and growing Canadian town opposite this city.

The smugglers cause the Dominion Government an annual loss of $1,500,000 in revenue from customs, figuring on the basis of 42 per cent Canadian tariff, it is stated.

It is said that Canadian customs officials have been unable to check the smuggling supposedly carried on by "shoppers" from the Ontario town. Some time ago Windsor merchants enlisted the aid of the Government in building up their business and checking smuggling and a woman inspector was added to the customs force. It was her duty to inspect suspected persons among the average of 1500 women ferry passengers each day.

This station, it is stated, drew protest in the way of boycott for the Canadian merchants, who have since refrained from public protest against smuggling.

American customs officials declare there is little smuggling from the Canadian to the Michigan side of merchandise although it has been suspected that opium and other drugs have been brought in in considerable quantities. United States officers have for some time been working on the opium trade.

KING GEORGE IS PROHIBITIONIST

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—Everybody knows that King George is one of the most abstemious of men with respect to alcoholic beverages. Yet a list of royal warrant holders published in the London Gazette the official organ of the Government, shows that 11 distillers of whisky are entitled to call themselves purveyors by appointment to the King. Nineteen brewers, or dealers in beer, may claim the same distinction. In respect of wines the King's official record is in most striking contrast to his well-merited reputation for abstemiousness. Something like 50 wine producers and wine merchants can boast of receiving his patronage.

It may be taken for granted that King George never even samples most of the brands of strong drink which his name is used to advertise.

PRESIDENT OF MUSIC CLUBS TO SPEAK AT WEBSTER GROVES

Mrs. Joseph H. Rodes Will Address Chaminade Club at 10 O'clock Wednesday Morning.

Mrs. Joseph H. Rodes, president of the Missouri Federation of Music Clubs, will speak before the Chaminade Club at the Monday Club, Webster Groves, at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. An informal program will be given.

Mrs. Rodes addressed a gathering of musicians, teachers and presidents of music clubs Thursday morning at the studio of Miss Alice Petingill, Musical Art Building, on the federation's plans for holding a mammoth song festival in St. Louis next year. The aims of the federation are to educate the public in music, spread love of the art through community singing, encourage American composers and establish state orchestras, a national conservatory of music and a ministry of fine arts at Washington.

How to Instantly Have a Beautiful White Skin

A Free Prescription Does This for You. You can Prepare It at Your Home.

New York: It is my own discovery and it takes just one application to get such marvelous results, says Mae Edna Wilder, when her friends ask her about her wonderful white skin and the improved appearance of her hands and arms. You can do the same thing if you follow my advice, she says. I feel it is my duty to tell every girl or woman what this remarkable prescription did for me. Just think of it. All this change in a single application. I never tire of telling others just what brought about such remarkable results. Here is the identical prescription that whitened my skin and removed every defect from my face, neck, hands and arms. Until you try it you can form no idea of the marvelous change it will make. The prescription which you can prepare at your own home is as follows: Go to any grocery and get 10 cents worth of ordinary oatmeal, and from any drug store a bottle of derwillo. Prepare the oatmeal as directed in every package of derwillo and apply night and morning. The first application will astonish you. It makes the skin appear white, transparent, smooth and velvety. I especially recommend it for freckles, tan, sun spots, coarse pores, dark, sallow, rough skin, ruddiness, wrinkles, and in fact, every blemish the face, neck, hands and arms are heir to. If your neck is dark one application of this Derwillo-Oatmeal combination will make it look as white as a lily. It is absolutely harmless and will not produce or stimulate a growth of hair. No matter how rough and ungainly the hands and arms, or what abuses they have had through hard work and exposure to the sun and wind, this prescription will work a wonderful transformation in 12 hours at the most. Thousands who have used it have had the same results as I have had.

NOTE—To get the best effect be sure to follow the complete directions contained in every package of Derwillo. You have only to get derwillo and oatmeal. You need nothing else and it is so simple that anyone can use it, and so inexpensive that any girl or woman can afford it. Druggists and department stores guarantee that there will be a noticeable improvement after first application or they will refund the money. It is sold in this city at all toilet counters under a money-refund guarantee by all department stores and druggists, including Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Johnson Bros. and the Enderle Drug Co.—ADV.

Copyright, 1919, by the Press Pub. Co. (New York World).

LONDON, Sept. 27.—American business men who have traveled extensively on the Continent, report that British business interests are preparing the ground work for a great trade offensive, not only to meet American competition but to try to maintain the status which British trade held before the war.

Although America had secured many contracts, aggregating millions of dollars, because of the disturbed condition of the British industrial world, these Americans say that the shrewd heads of big business in Great Britain are figuring on a time of stability in the near future, when the network of trade communications will serve well the purpose for which it is being laid.

One example of this business foresight is seen in the arrangement which it is reported has been made with the German Government. By this agreement Germany is expected to take 50 per cent of British manufactures along with quantities of raw materials.

Britishers who talk about "never-ending enmity" for the Teutons decry early trade relations with Germany. But this is not deterring long-headed business men from reaching after trade with former enemy countries. It is only a few weeks ago that some London newspapers pointed scornfully at Americans for seeking trade with Germany. These newspapers today feature with large headlines the latest developments in Anglo-German trading relations.

Americans report that American business has an enviable position in European countries, principally because of the possibility of delivering goods on contract time. Inability to do this is still Great Britain's biggest handicap, and it will be a handicap in the British trade effort.

What big business is doing to perfect trade communications is further shown in the scheme of the Federation of British Industries to have trade consuls at the world's chief trade centers, who will keep British manufacturers informed on market conditions.

American business men have got away to a fine start, but they report the necessity of consolidating their gains. Some who have returned here from Scandanavia assert that American boots and shoes can be sold in Sweden for $2 a pair less than British goods, despite high freights. At present British interests are not counting on the industrial unrest in America as a big factor in their favor because there is no evidence of its immediate spread nor of any curtailment of output because of it.

SIX AIRPLANES WILL ATTEMPT FLIGHT FROM ROME TO TOKIO

Arrangements Are Being Made for 10,000-Mile Trip With Stops at Eight Cities.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

TURIN, Aug. 25.—The airplane flight from Rome to Tokio, planned by Gabriele D'Annunzio, the Italian poet-aviator, is being arranged in this city. The trip will be undertaken by six fast machines. Each machine will carry a pilot and a mechanician.

Stops will be made at Saloniki, Adalia, Aleppo, Bagdad, Delhi, Azra, Benares, Rangoon, Bangkok, Kanoi Canton, Kiauchau and Tokio. The distance to be traveled will aggregate nearly 10,000 miles. It is planned to fly an average of between 800 and 900 miles a day.

SEARCHERS HAVE FOUND GRAVES OF 143 SLAIN AMERICAN FLIERS

Burial Places of Only Seven Airmen Killed in Combat Are Still Unknown.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 30.—Of the 150 American aviators who met death in aerial combats there are only seven whose graves have not been found. The search for the burial places is being conducted by an army officer and a representative of the American Red Cross and thousands of kilometers have been covered in France and Germany.

The 143 graves have been decorated according to the rules of the American Expeditionary Force and photographs have been sent to the relatives of the dead.

COURSE IN INFLUENZA NURSING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANKAKEE, Ill., Sept. 27.—In anticipation of another influenza epidemic this winter, Dr. Eugene Cohn, Superintendent of the Kankakee State Hospital, has prepared for a school of instruction for nurses. This training course for elementary work in nursing will be open to women of Kankakee beginning Tuesday and will continue five days. Three classes will be given, one in the forenoon, one in the afternoon and one in the evening.

The work in every way will be practicable and is intended to fit women sufficiently to look after cases of sickness not too serious for requiring specialized training. The course is given to prepare the community for another possible epidemic of influenza.

Grapes Sell for $100 a Ton.

TOLEDO, O.—Grapes in this district are selling for $100 a ton, as against $30 at this time last year, due, growers say, to prohibition. It is said that people are making grape juice who never attempted such a thing in other years. The demand has caused the price to more than treble.

Cure Your Sick Stomach

Little pleasure you can have with a sick stomach. You don't feel well. You don't look well. Appetite is gone. Sleep is broken. Everything you do is an effort.

What your stomach needs is help. It is tired, overworked, abused.

And the surest and quickest relief you can give it is Eupepsia Tablets.

For Eupepsia is the greatest stomach strengthener known. It contains just the properties that a sick stomach wants and must have to get well.

THIS IS WHAT
Eupepsia Tablets Do

They relieve the stomach almost immediately by digesting completely all the food there is in it. And their action is easy and natural. No forcing. No irritation.

But Eupepsia Tablets do more than aid the digestion. They restore the digestive organs to perfect health. After a few doses of Eupepsia Tablets your digestion is as strong as nature intended it should be.

If you take Eupepsia occasionally you will never know the misery of indigestion and dyspepsia.

Heaviness after eating, nausea, foul breath, bloated stomach, heartburn and biliousness permanently disappear after a few doses of Eupepsia.

Eupepsia will restore your appetite, soothe your mind, clear your complexion, give you sound, refreshing sleep.

Do not be without this unfailing stomach remedy another single day. Even one dose will do wonders for you.

THE TEST IS FREE

Go to your druggist today. Get a 50c treatment of Eupepsia. If you are not relieved of dyspepsia or indigestion in any of its forms after taking this treatment, we will at once pay you the full cost of the treatment. We will not let you risk one cent when you put to the test this positive guarantee that Eupepsia will make you well.

If your druggist does not carry Eupepsia Tablets, send 50c to us direct. Our guarantee holds good, however you purchase. A trial treatment and booklet on Stomach Trouble mailed free.

18,500 WOUNDED MEN AWAIT BOARD'S AID

Federal Vocational Training Body Already Has Placed 1500 Incapacitated Soldiers.

The Federal Board for Vocational Training in the Ninth (St. Louis) District, with offices in the Chemical Building, has placed almost 1500 incapacitated soldiers in training in schools and colleges throughout the district since Oct., 1918, and about 100 men now are being placed in schools weekly. There are 18,500 men still on the district's waiting list, according to Ç. E. Partch, district vocation officer, but the work is being expedited as much as possible.

When the office was first opened only Partch and T. L. Johnson, supervisor of training, were in charge. Now the office occupies 23 rooms on the eighth floor and employs more than 100 persons, more than 60 per cent of whom are former service men. The list of applicants was at first only 200. The Ninth District is composed of Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and two counties in Illinois.

Partch yesterday described to a Post-Dispatch reporter the manner in which the men are placed. There is a representative of the board at each army hospital, and as the men are discharged as patients, they are interviewed by these representatives with a view to discovering for what each is best fitted. His previous education, his occupation before entering the service, the extent of his physical disability, and his desires are learned, and if he desires the aid of the board his case is sent to a district medical officer. There are five such offices here, at Kansas City, Wichita, Kan., Des Moines, Io., and Lincoln, Neb.

"Brief" Is Drawn.

The officer here is G. C. Skinner, a former Captain who was himself disabled in France. If it is determined the applicant is qualified, his case is then sent to the office of the chief adviser in St. Louis. This office will decide for what he is best fitted and recommend to the supervisor of training, who draws up a "brief" of the case, telling where the applicant is to be sent and for what course of training. The District Case Board, composed of J. W. Williams, secretary of the Carpenters' Union; Robert L. Lund of the Lund-Mauldin Shoe Co., and Dr. G. Canby Robinson, meet once a week and decides upon the merits of each case. From there the cases are sent to the Central Case Board at Washington, where final action is taken.

The entire process takes from two to three weeks, depending upon the nature of the application and the physical condition of the applicant. Although the capacity of the office is only 100 a week now, the number of cases decided upon is increasing weekly.

The board at Washington recently sent out "rehabilitation leaflets" to all District Boards to be distributed to the wounded men. The leaflet, entitled "Uncle Sam's Proposition," tells the soldier that if he was sick or wounded in the service of the country either abroad or on this side and has a disability that prevents him from returning to his former job, it is his right to take advantage of the Government's offer. Former students unable to earn a living are also included.

All Disabled Men Eligible.

Under "Who is Eligible for Training" the pamphlet states: "Any man discharged under honorable conditions since April 7, 1917, from the military or naval forces of the United States, having a disability incurred, increased, or aggravated while a member of such forces, is entitled to training if the disability is such that, in the opinion of the Federal Board, the man needs training to overcome the handicap of his disability."

When the man is sent to school, the paper states, he will receive $80 per month from the board if he is single without dependents. If he is married and has no children, he will receive $115 a month, or if he has children or other dependents his allowance can reach a maximum of $150. The money will be received in two monthly payments, but no war risk insurance will be paid during the time of training. After the training is completed the allowance will continue until he is placed in a permanent position, after which his war risk insurance alone will be paid.

Evening courses and correspondence courses will be given to men whose injuries do not seriously handicap them. The Government in such cases will not pay for the man's support, but only for his training.

Thus far about 300 men have been sent to Ames University, at Ames, Io. Most of these have chosen the agricultural course. More than 100 have been sent to Missouri University, and 40 are attending Washington University. Many are being sent to the Ranken Trade School and to the Junior High School for mechanical training.

LINDENWOOD COLLEGE GIRLS TAKE SETTING UP EXERCISES

If a doughboy should pass Lindenwood College at St. Charles, any morning at 6:45 o'clock these days, he probably would stop, whistle in astonishment, and exclaim, "Boy, Howdy!" for there on the campus he would see 300 young women going through the identical setting up exercises that prevail in Uncle Sam's Army. There is nothing optional about it for the students. The exercises are obligatory, just as they are in the army.

Other athletic sports are in favor at the school this year. More than 100 students are taking swimming lessons, and a meet will be held next month. There is a "hikers' club" and a class in roller skating. Miss Lucille Wingate is athletic director.

CONGREGATIONALISTS WILL MEET TOMORROW

Missouri Conference to Hold 55th Annual Gathering in Webster Groves Congregational Church.

The Missouri Congregational Conference wil hold its 55th annual meeting in the Webster Groves Congregational Church, beginning tomorrow night and closing Wednesday night.

Following a reception to visiting pastors and delegates, the conference sermon will be preached tomorrow night by the Rev. Robert Porter of St. Joseph, upon the theme, "The Cross Our Supreme Symbol." The Lord's Supper will then be observed, with the Rev. Fayette Hurd and the Rev. Arthur H. Armstrong as the officiating clergymen.

Reports of the churches and educational institutions will be received Tuesday morning, President T. W. Nadal of Drury College presenting the report of that institution. In the afternoon the work of women's societies will be outlined by Mrs. F. A. Hall and Mrs. H. M. Pflager of St. Louis, and a memorial service for the war dead will be conducted by Rev. F. J. Hart of St. Louis. H. M. Beardsley of Kansas City will present the claim of the Pilgrim Memorial Fund, which is to be raised in observance of the 300th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth, this anniversary occurring next year. The fund is to be for the benefit of aged ministers.

Dr. Ernest Bourner Allen of Chicago will speak Tuesday night on "The Time-Table of the Almighty."

Mission fields, the every-member movement and the Inter-Church World Movement will be topics of Wednesday morning. The Rev. Dr. Morris H. Turk of Kansas City and the Rev. Arthur Buckner of Kansas City will be among the speakers. Wednesday afternoon's session will be continuous, with a brotherhood banquet at 6 p. m., and an address by the Rev. Dr. Charles F. Aked of Kansas City at 7:45.

TITLES FOR FRENCH ARMY'S LEADERS URGED BY WRITER

Frenchman Who May Become Member of Chamber Wants More Honor for Generals.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—When the new French Chamber assembles after the coming election, it is expected that 60 per cent of the Deputies will be veterans of the great war. Everyone is looking forward to a horizon-blue chamber.

Binet-Valmer, a writer who rendered such eminent services with the tanks in the last two years of the war, expects to be returned to the Chamber. He has written that one of the first measures that he will try to have passed will be the rewarding by titles of the victorious French Generals. Commenting upon the title granted by the King of England to Gen. Byng, making Lord Byng of Vimy Binet-Valmer writes:

"I shall ask the new house that the names of great battles be added to the names of our great Marshals and Generals. For a tentative list I propose the following. Marshal Joffre, Duke of the Marne; Marshal Foch Prince of the Yser (the title of Prince has to be a foreign one), Duke of Saint-Gond and of the Aisne; Marshal Petain, Duke of Verdun; Gen. Castelnau, Duke of Nancy; Gen. Mangin, Duke of Villers-Cotterets, Gouraud, Duke of Chalons; Debeney, Duke of Montdidier.

EXPLORER TO MAKE 750-MILE AIRPLANE DASH FOR SOUTH POLE

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—John L. Cope, leader of the expedition to the South Pole to start next June, says his airplane flight to the Pole will be about 750 miles. The base from which the airplane will start is about that distance from the Pole. The airplane will be heavily loaded.

"We shall be compelled to take a sledge with us and extra provisions to enable us to return in case the airplane breaks down," said Mr. Cope. "Because of this additional weight it will be necessary to cut down our fuel to the minimum, for taking off will be very difficult, and it will be impossible to lift the machine for crossing the mountain ranges.

"We propose to set off with as much petrol as we can and then, half way on the outward journey, just before we get to a range of mountains that we have to cross, to dump half of it and to pick it up on the way back."

K. OF C. CELEBRATION OCT. 9

Archbishop Glennon Will Speak at 20th Anniversary of Council.

The twentieth anniversary of St. Louis Council, No. 453, Knights of Columbus, will be celebrated with a dinner dance at Hotel Jefferson Oct. 9. The principal speaker will be P. J. McArdle of Chicago, who instituted the council. Others who will speak are Archbishop Glennon, Luke E. Hart, state deputy, Knights of Columbus, for Missouri; J. S. Leahy, grand knight; Pierce D. Killian and Grand Knight-Elect James M. Rohan. Dr. R. Emmet Kane will be toastmaster.

The St. Louis Council was the first Council of the Knights of Columbus west of the Mississippi.

Tenth Ward Women to Be Honored.

A reception in honor of the Tenth Ward Women's Organization and the members of the Improvement Association connected with the Tenth Ward food store will be given at the Chippewa Theater, 3811 South Broadway, tomorrow evening.

ROXANE
THE whole Wheat BLEND

These Whole Wheat Blend Pancakes Are Best For Everybody

The body contains minerals and requires a constant supply of them. Every doctor says that to be healthy we must eat minerals. Nature provides all the minerals our bodies need in WHOLE WHEAT. That is why WHOLE WHEAT is the most nourishing food there is. That is why

ROXANE
THE whole Wheat BLEND

makes the most nourishing and finest pancakes possible. They have all the strength-building minerals, proteins and vitamines that growing children and grown up boys and girls, too, need.

Roxane is the ONLY pancake flour we know of that has these essential elements. That is the reason that Roxane pancakes are so digestible. The bran and mineral salts of the WHOLE WHEAT make digestion easy.

Delicious Cakes

The melting lightness and delicate flavor of Roxane pancakes are due to the Roxane blend. To the foundation of soft winter WHOLE WHEAT, our own secret proportions of corn flour and rice flour are added. The WHOLE WHEAT gives the golden brown richness and body-building nourishment. The corn and rice blend makes melting lightness and the wonderful you-simply-must-have-more Roxane flavor. Roxane pancakes are self-rising—you can serve them in 5 minutes for tomorrow's breakfast.

MICHELIN
The All Season Tires

THE tires you buy at this season of the year should be suitable for use on roads of every kind and condition.

Winter, with its skiddy, slippery streets is just around the corner. Yet ideal fall driving conditions may continue for quite a while.

We recommend, therefore, the one all-season tire—the Michelin Universal.

Its broad flat traction-surface makes it ideal for hard dry roads; yet its non-skid tread is the most effective we know of for wet, icy or rutty highways.

Buy Michelin Universals for all-around service and satisfaction. They are not high-priced. Come in and let us show them to you.

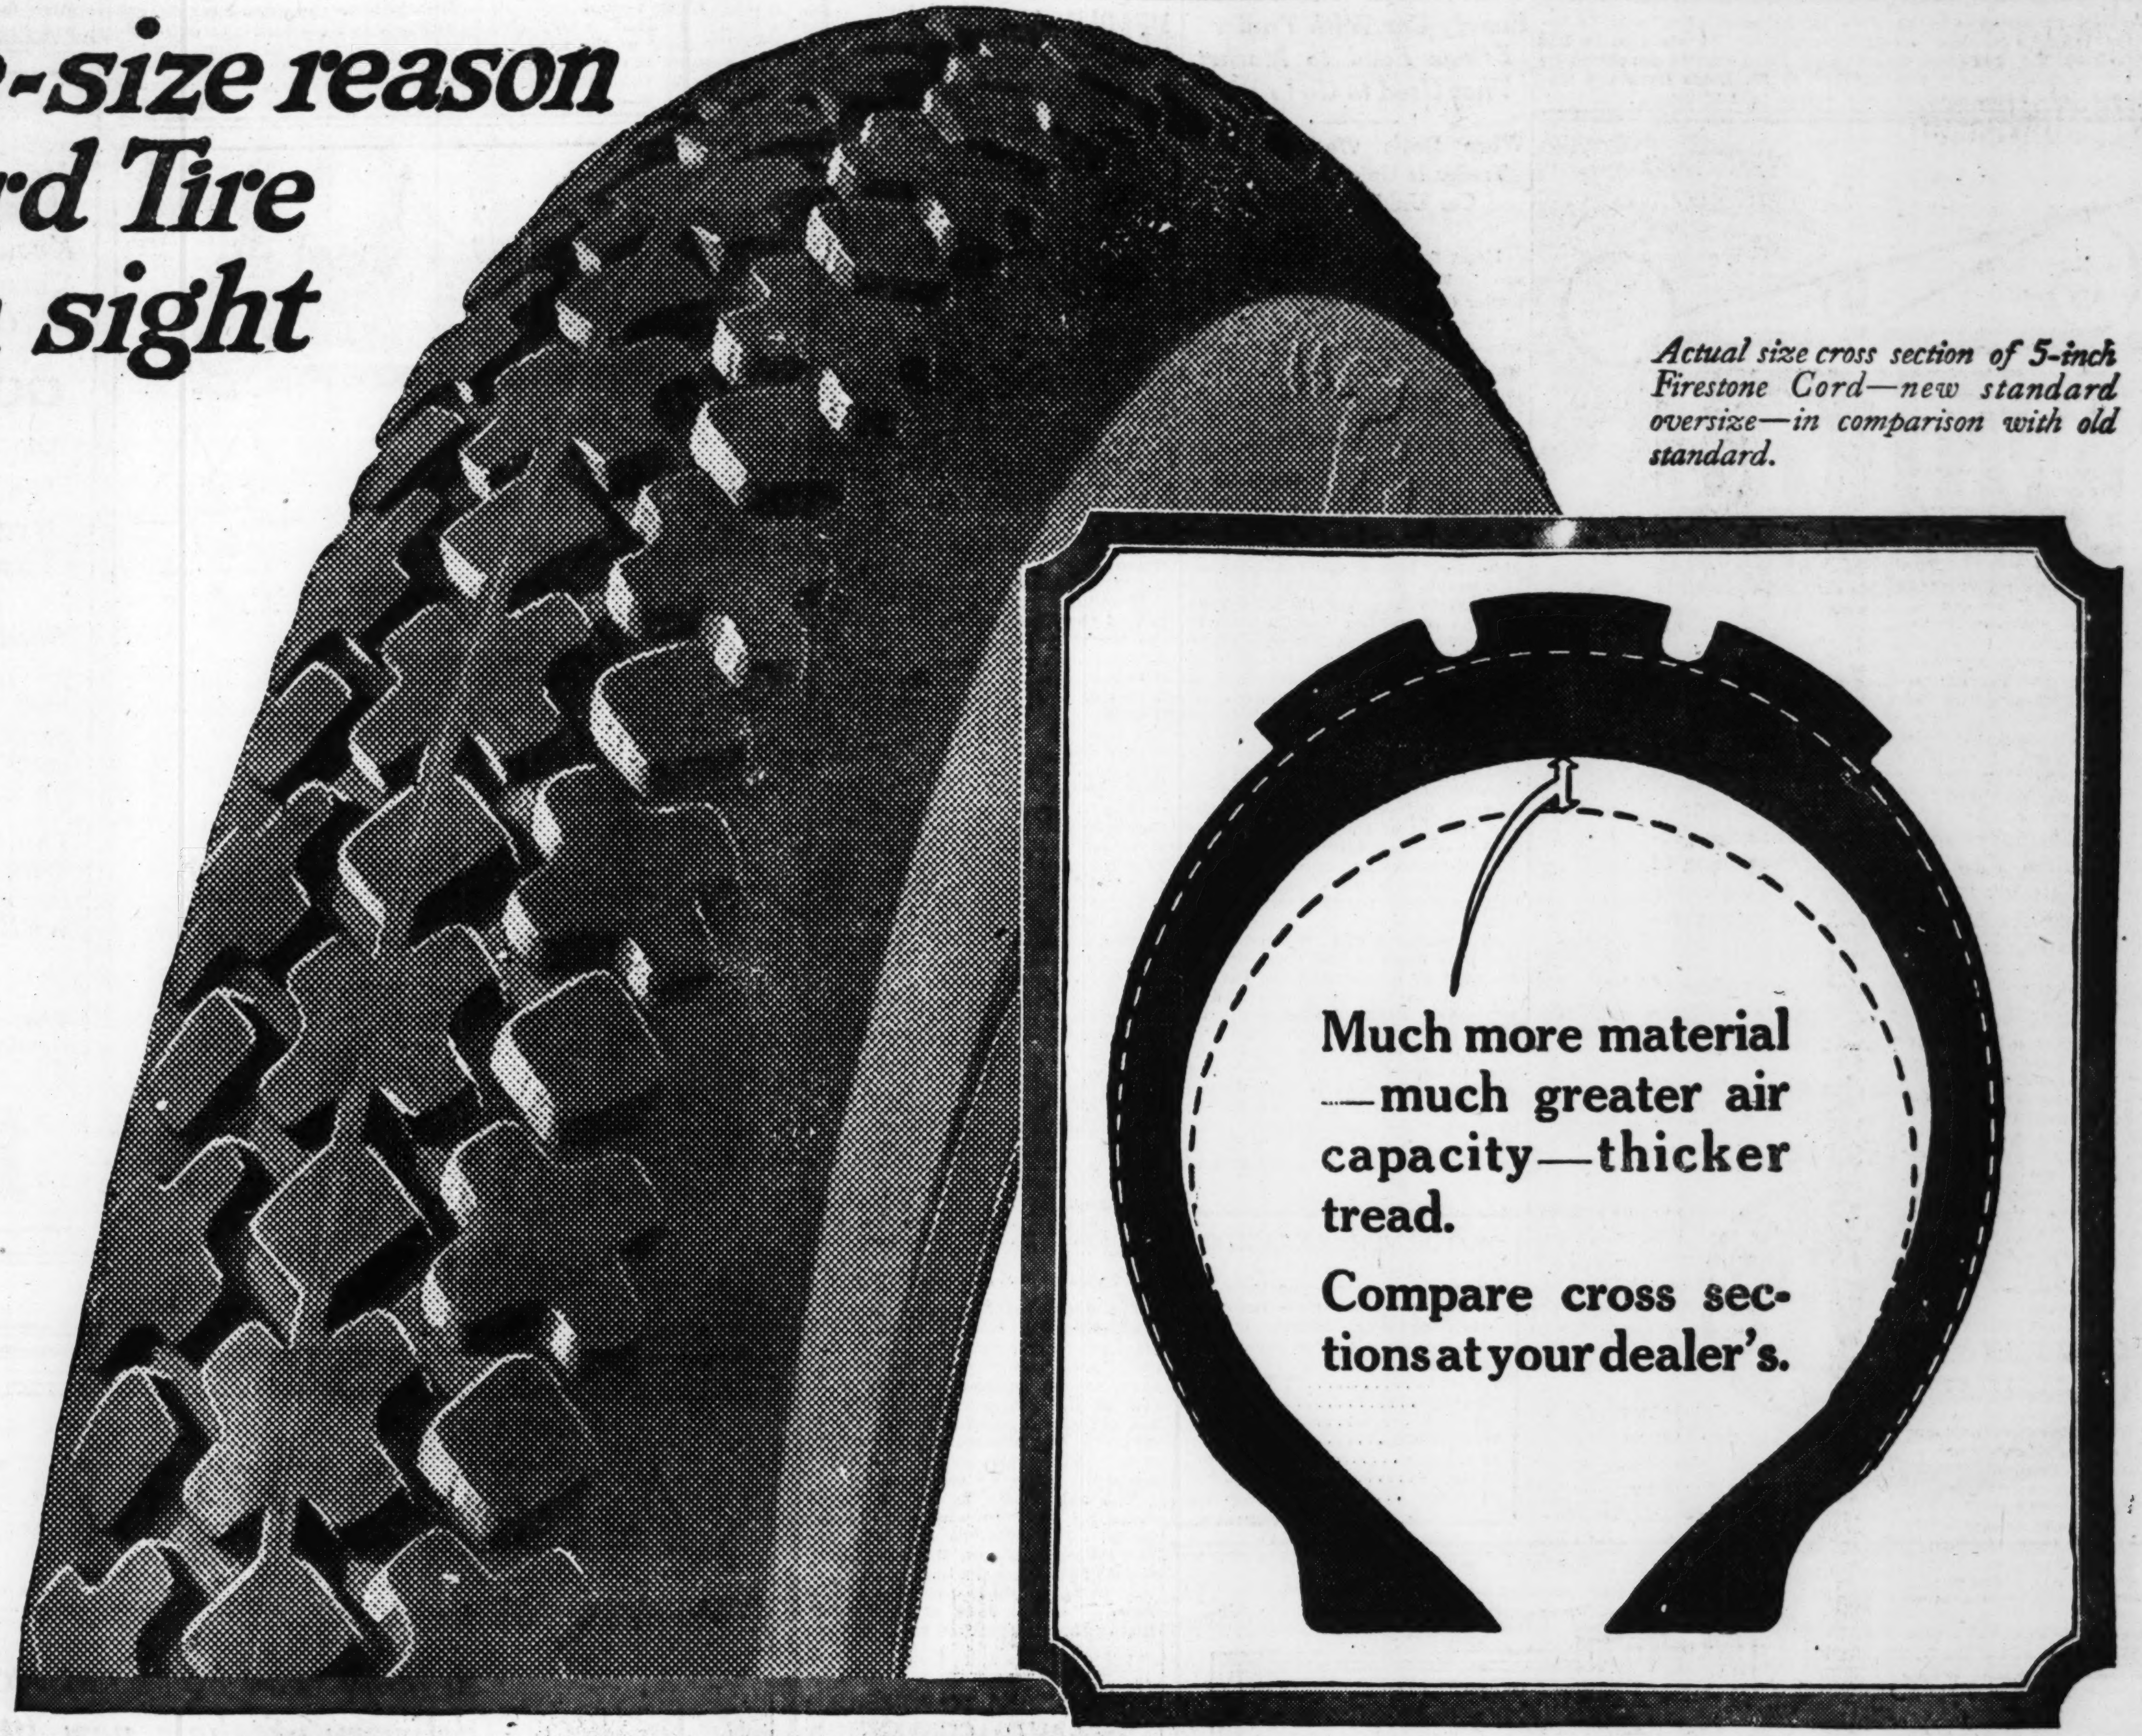
One Life-size reason This Cord Tire Sells on sight



Actual size cross section of 5-inch Firestone Cord—new standard oversize—in comparison with old standard.

The New Standard Oversize Cord Tire with extra heavy Non-Skid Tread

This is called "the Firestone year" in the tire business because Firestone has accomplished so many things that mean better tire service and more mileage per dollar.

The illustration above shows what Firestone has done for users of cord tires, for instance.

The Firestone Cord is built to the largest size established by the industry.

It is so much bigger than usual standards that there is no comparison. Dealers everywhere say "it sells on sight."

And it is just as big in service as it is in size.

The mileage adjustment basis on this tire has been raised to 8,000 miles, but that is still only a starting point—a minimum from which to begin to figure your extra mileage.

Examine the new non-skid tread. Note the extra volume of rubber and the quality of it. The unusual thickness of tread and toughness of rubber means extra mileage.

More fine rubber combined with greater air capacity gives this tire added resiliency. This means fullest comfort. It means more car protection. It means less drag on the engine. It means less gasoline per mile.

The new non-skid design is another superior feature. It does prevent skid or spinning of wheels. Yet it has no suction to retard speed, waste power or create noise. For the same reasons this tire makes steering easy and true.

Put this tire on every wheel. You will save tire money, your gasoline will go farther, you will be more comfortable, confident and safe. There is a Firestone dealer near you.

This is the Firestone year

Frank Martin, president of the Martin Motor Truck Co., has received word from the Diamond T motor truck factory that there will be an advance of approximately $200 in the price of all models beginning Oct. 1. Martin said he has arranged for a limited supply to be shipped to St. Louis from the factory before next Thursday.

Family Car With Trailer Brings Food to Market That Used to Go to Waste

When Day's Work Is Done Trailer Is Unhooked and the Car Used for Pleasure.

Many farmers and fruit growers are finding the trailer and semi-trailer one of the most useful pieces of farm equipment. The light two-wheel and four-wheel, high speed trailer is used with runabouts and touring cars for hauling small quantities of farm products to market which otherwise would go to waste or be fed to livestock. Too much time would be lost if these small lots were taken to market with horse and wagon, but a round trip to town with the family car and a trailer loaded with a few hundred pounds or half a ton can be made in a couple of hours or less. Produce handled in this way includes milk, butter, eggs, live poultry, fruit, vegetables and even live pigs, calves and cows. The car is used at other times without the trailer for all customary purposes.

This use of trailers appeals to the women members of the farmer's family because it avoids the loading of boxes, crates, cans, etc. in the tonneau of the car, with consequent marring of the finish, scratching and tearing of the upholstery and soiling of the interior generally.

Semi-trailers are used extensively where there is more and heavier hauling to do. Loads of two to three tons are carried on semi-trailers with runabouts and touring cars. The rear deck of the runabout or the body of the touring car back of the front seat is removed and a fifth-wheel device bolted into the frame over the rear axle. The front end of the semi-trailer is attached to and supported by this fifth wheel. Weight of the load is thus divided between the automobile and the two wheels of the semi-trailer. The trailer is detached whenever desired and the car used alone for errands or pleasure driving.

NEARLY A BILLION OF GOOD ROAD WORK

$283,000,000 in Good Road Bonds Already Voted With 17 States to Vote This Year and Next on $664,000,000 More.

Of all the states voting for big bond issues for good roads building and maintenance only two have turned down their projects. Eleven States have voted a total of $283,000,000 for highway expenditures during the next few years, according to statistics gathered by the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co.

Seventeen States will vote on bond issues this year and next to a total of $664,000,000, and at least a dozen more States are contemplating bond issues.

The States which have already approved their highway measures and the amounts are:

Arizona	$ 4,200,000
Arkansas	50,000,000
California	40,000,000
Illinois	60,000,000
Maine	10,000,000
Michigan	50,000,000
Nevada	1,000,000
New Mexico	5,000,000
Oregon	10,000,000
Pennsylvania	50,000,000
Wyoming	2,800,000
Total	$283,000,000

States to vote on highway bond issues follows:

Alabama	$ 5,000,000
Colorado	5,000,000
Georgia	40,000,000
Kansas	60,000,000
Minnesota	100,000,000
Mississippi	20,000,000
Missouri	60,000,000
Montana	15,000,000
North Carolina	25,000,000
North Dakota	50,000,000
South Carolina	25,000,000
Tennessee	50,000,000
Texas	75,000,000
Utah	4,000,000
Washington	30,000,000
West Virginia	50,000,000
Wisconsin	50,000,000
Total	$664,000,000

The people of Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Washington and West Virginia will vote on their bond issues in November, 1920, at the national election. A few of the States mentioned have not actually approved their bond measures but sentiment is so strong it is predicted the issues will undoubtedly come up for vote.

The only States to reject bond measures were Arizona and Oklahoma, for $30,000,000 and $50,000,000 respectively. In these States it is said that State finances were such that the good roads measures would have to be deferred at this time rather than jeopardize more urgent appropriations.

ST. LOUISANS TO ATTEND AUTO CONVENTION

F. W. A. Vesper and Harry G. Moock to Be Among Principal Speakers.

By the Associated Press.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Sept. 27.—More than 800 automobile men are expected to attend the annual convention of the Rocky Mountain Trades Association, which is to open here Oct. 6 for a three-day session, according to F. L. Rouse, president of the Colorado Springs Automobile Dealers' Association. Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho, Texas, Kansas, Utah and Nebraska will be represented at the gathering.

One of the features of the convention will be an automobile truck train of 30 units, all of different makes, and all carrying loads. The train is to make a tour of northern Colorado, and will be under the supervision of an army officer. During the gathering, the train will be parked at the local hotel where the business sessions are to take place.

Chief among the entertainment numbers will be an event staged at a theater here on one night of the convention. The association will take over the entire theater, including a vaudeville show, for the evening. A surprise program will also be staged.

A visit to the Pike's Peak region, and an elaborate social program for the visiting women, have also been arranged.

Among the speakers to address the convention are Edward S. Jordan, president of the Jordan Motor Car Co., Cleveland, Ohio; Mark Skinner, of the United States Internal Revenue Service, Denver; Ray Sherman, editor of the Motor World; F. W. A. Vesper, president of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, and Harry G. Moock, secretary and business manager of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, both of St. Louis.

Transcontinental Jitney.

Roy Reignon of Lowell, Mass., has just completed a cross-country trip to California with 10 passengers, in a light truck, at $100 fare each.

WATCH YOUR TIRES.

Prevent blowouts by avoiding severe jolts and by maintaining full air pressure.

Overheating Preventive.

In cars that use thermo-syphon cooling, the water system should always be kept completely filled. If the water level drops considerably, the circulation of the water will be reduced and may even be stopped altogether. With a pump system the pump continues to force the water through the system, regardless of how much or how little of the liquid there may be, but the circulation of the syphonic system is simply a natural flow and this is interrupted in case a considerable portion of the outlet pipe is empty, resulting in overheating of the engine.

Clear Vision.

To secure a clear view ahead through the glass of the windshield in rainy weather is vitally important to the safety of the motor car and its occupants. Many schemes are used to keep the glass clear in wet weather, but perhaps the old-fashioned alcohol and glycerine mixture which is carried in a small bottle and rubbed on the glass as needed is best. If the bottle containing the solution is wrapped in a cloth and stowed in the side pocket it will always be ready for use and a cloth to apply it with will be at hand.

Steadiness on the Road an Elgin Virtue

Elgin SIX

The test of a car's steadiness and smooth riding is its ability to travel at a merry clip over rough roads.

Under such conditions you feel a sense of security and safety in the Elgin Six—no "nerves" or worry—no jouncing about or side sway—no fear that the car will slide off the road.

Improved cantilever spring suspension of exclusive design and perfect balance throughout make the Elgin Six ride straight as an arrow under all conditions.

These outstanding features help to give Elgin Six its place as the supreme motor car value in its price class.

Take a demonstration as our guest and find out for yourself.

AN OPEN LETTER to those who have not secured immediate delivery of their new 1920 Haynes cars

By A. G. SEIBERLING, Vice-President and General Manager
The Haynes Automobile Company, Kokomo, Ind., U. S. A.

IT is a matter of great regret to us that thousands of people have been unable to get immediate delivery of the new 1920 Haynes. The fact that we have succeeded in increasing production to the point where we may soon be on a greater delivery basis is encouraging to us. But we feel that an explanation is due all of the good friends of the Haynes who have waited so patiently and so expectantly for their cars.

During the war our plant was converted into one to serve our government. Our engineers and designers went ahead with their work and produced the new 1920 Haynes. Its tremendous appeal at the opening of the year is a matter of history, and orders continued to come from all parts of this country as well as from abroad.

Our dealers have done their best to take care of their patrons. We realize, however, that even when the situation was understood every one who ordered a new Haynes was more and more anxious to receive it.

We could not "rush" production. Even had it been mechanically possible there remained the fact that no Haynes is allowed to leave our plant until it has satisfied the rigid inspection tests of our engineers and designers.

Each Haynes car must exemplify the four essential factors of character—beauty, strength, power and comfort—before it can go to its future owner. This extra care on our part is a tangible benefit to the owner, but we know how anybody feels about it when he has ordered a fine new car and cannot get it.

But the orders continue to come in. The new 1920 Haynes is actually an advance model. It is what, in ordinary times, would have been expected of this organization next January. Naturally, every time one is driven from a Haynes dealer's establishment it awakens in the mind of every beholder the desire to own one. Thus the orders show no indication of abatement.

We are doubling the capacity of our plant; we have increased our production. Those who have waited have profited, because they are getting Haynes cars which are wonderfully improved.

The new 1920 Haynes, therefore, is a car worth waiting a little while for. Whether it is the seven-passenger touring car, the four-door, four-passenger roadster, the seven-passenger limousine, the seven-passenger sedan or the four-passenger coupé, we know that it comes fully up to the Haynes standard of a car of character.

Our earnest recommendation is that you place your reservation with your Haynes dealer now. You may have to wait a short time before receiving your car, but the value of your investment will more than offset the slight delay.

We have promised your dealer to do our best to fill his orders with the least possible loss of time, and that every car we send him shall measure fully up to the standards created and perfected by the Haynes organization in all the twenty-six years since Elwood Haynes thrilled this country with his invention—America's First Car.

A. G. Seiberling

The Haynes, AMERICA'S FIRST CAR, now exhibited by the government at the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C., was invented, designed and built by Elwood Haynes, in 1893.

TRAFFIC OFFENDERS TO BE REPORTED BY COMMITTEE OF 200

Membership of Automobile Vigilance Committee Doubled at Meeting During Week to Curtail Accidents.

To further the suppression of reckless driving that automobile accidents may be decreased the Automobile Vigilance Committee, an auxiliary of the local Safety Council of the Chamber of Commerce at a meeting Thursday afternoon decided to increase the membership to 200. Heretofore the membership has included but 100 business men. At the meeting John A. Bruner was elected chairman and Secretary Fellmer of the Safety Council appointed secretary.

The work of the members of the Vigilance Committee is to report infractions of the city traffic laws that they observe. The vigilants are provided with report blanks on which they designate any law violation which they may have personally seen. These are sent to the City Complaint Board and Secretary Marsh of that board writes a letter to the violator of the law saking for his explanation.

Marsh exhibited several hundred letters he had sent traffic law violators on reports made by the vigilants and answers he had received in return. In every instance but one the letters were courteous and made some sort of assurance that the offense would not be repeated. In one case a defiant letter was written by an offender and on advice of Judge Mix of the City Court who was at the meeting by invitation a summons is to be issued against this particular offender and the vigilant who made the complaint will appear as prosecuting witness.

Names of the members of the Vigilance Committee are not made public except in cases where they are called on to appear as prosecuting witnesses. Offenders as a rule, Secretary Marsh said, most always promise good behavior in the future.

1920 TRAILS CONVENTION SOUGHT FOR ST. LOUIS

Judge Samuel Hodgon of the St. Louis County Probate Court and [illegible] elected president of the St. Louis county division of the Ozark Trails Association, left last week for Roswell, N. M., where he will attend the annual convention of that association to be held there Oct. 1, 2 and 3. The St. Louis party of motorists headed by Judge Hodgdon, which was to leave St. Louis last Sunday, was halted by the bad weather. Judge Hodgdon is making the trip by rail.

An effort will be made to have the headquarters of the Ozark Trails Association established in St. Louis as well as to bring the annual convention for 1920 here.

W. H. Harvey is president of the Ozark Trails Association, and the headquarters are now located at Monte Ne, Ark., where he resides.

NEW BUILDING TO HOUSE AUTO SERVICE CONCERN

The foundation of the new building which will house the St. Louis branch of the United Motors Service Inc., on the southeast corner of Locust and Leonard streets has been completed and work has begun on the upper structure. J. L. Elwood, general manager of the company whose headquarters are in Detroit said the building is expected to be completed by Dec. 1.

The building, which will be a four-story one, will contain a total floor area of 55,800 square feet. The location is particularly prominent as it is at the head of the Lindell avenue cutoff, where it connects with Locust street.

The first floor of the new building will be devoted to a large store, including the service and supply sales section with a first aid service for cars. The second floor will be used as offices, service stock and shop, and shop for radiator repairs. The general stock room for supplies sales, together with the service hospital will be located on the third floor. The fourth floor is provided for future expansion and will be used temporarily for storage.

There's a Touch of Tomorrow COLE INDIANAPOLIS in All That Cole Does Today

The Vital Importance of What is to Be

THE Delphian oracle exercised its mighty influence over the ancient Greeks, not because it interpreted what had happened—but because it prophesied what was to come.

In this day and age, there's nothing more obsolete than yesterday's newspaper, but there's always a crowd around a bulletin board!

The world moves irresistibly forward—onward. There's no standing still. Those who do not progress fall behind.

What is to be—not what has been—commands our attention. Interest centers in the future—not in the past.

For ten years the career of the Cole has been characterized by big undertakings.

It was one of the first two American-built eight-cylinder cars. It was the first automobile to which the principles of aerotype construction were applied.

But, if the Cole company had stopped there—if it had not built a structure for future achievement on this foundation of past accomplishment, it could not have progressed.

Cole's Latest Creations Herald Future Progress

COLE contributions have been significant. Season after season, year after year, they have given the motoring world things that were new, original and a bit in advance of the times.

The Aero-EIGHT was the sponsor of a new fashion in motor cars. The open models came as a complete innovation in body designing and performance efficiency.

The new Aero-EIGHT all-season cars, which have just appeared, are, likewise, exclusively new and advanced conceptions. Their flush panel construction is an advantageous and pleasing departure in coach building.

Their restful comfort, their easy riding qualities, their wide range of performance is not to be compared with any previous attainment in the development of enclosed equipages.

The vacuum, full-vision windshield of the Tourosine and Toursedan, is a significant improvement.

The care and taste evidenced in the exterior finish, the selection of the velvety fabrics within, and the completeness and dignity of the minor refinements with which the Aero-EIGHT all-season cars are adorned, bespeak the fine workmanship they embody.

Inspired by a single aim—to anticipate the trend of the future and be the first to give it tangible expression—Cole is now universally recognized as the creator of advanced motor cars.

That is why—when a distinctively new type of car appears—the public anticipates finding the Cole nameplate on it.

300,000 Maxwells Precede This Post-War Car

More miles per gallon
More miles on tires

FOR five years the talent of great engineers was devoted to the Maxwell chassis, and as that is now a work of rare mechanical excellence through magnificent Post-War improvements, the Maxwell has been improved wonderfully in appearance.

Perhaps you have seen this Post-War Maxwell and, like so many others, have stopped short in your hurry and given it a good looking over. Its simple beauty, its delightful grace, its clean cut, sincere appearance, its daring simplicity you noted, and your respect for Maxwell became more definite.

But you did not know, unless you sat behind the wheel, how easy it drives, what a comfortable castering effect there is in the front axle, how snugly it clings to the road with its heavy rear axle, how decisive and sure is the emergency brake, now located on the transmission shaft!

Unless you have sat behind the wheel of the Post-War Maxwell you know but little, for there is a new lure about this car that, once experienced, impresses you beyond words.

There are 300,000 Maxwells before this—all able cars. This is greater in many ways except in price—only $985 f. o. b. Detroit.

ALABAMA WILL VOTE ON $25,000,000 ISSUE

Plans Special Heavy-Duty Truck Road Near Birmingham.

The Alabama Legislature at its next session will submit to the electorate of the State the question of issuing $25,000,000 bonds for the improvement of existing roads and the construction of new model highways in various parts of the State. Instead of leaving the road problem up to the various counties, as has been done with extremely unsatisfactory results, the State will vote on the bonds, and the work resulting will be distributed in all parts of Alabama.

One of the principal roads to be constructed will be a wide concrete or brick highway from the Birmingham steel district to connect with the barge line on the Warrior River. This road will be for heavy duty especially, and will be built to deliver pig iron and steel and coal to the barges for shipment to Mobile and New Orleans.

RELIEF SOUGHT IN FREIGHT CAR SHORTAGE

F. W. A. Vesper, president of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, during the last week sent a letter to Walter D. Hines, Director General of Railroads at Washington seeking relief in the matter of freight car shortage. Vesper in his letter said it had come to the attention of the dealers' association that freight cars especially built for transporting automobiles are being used for hauling every kind of freight, and are not being returned to automobile factories for reloading.

As automobiles must be loaded in specially equipped freight cars, the dealer situation is extremely critical because the railroad equipment is unavailable at a time when deliveries must be made to consumers, he says. Vesper suggests the extension of the Chicago regional order permitting the return of empty automobile equipment to the factories within that region to take in all parts of the country.

DRIVE TRUCK 372 MILES FOR DELIVERY TO BUYER

Loaded with merchandise a new Keldon truck left St. Louis for Kansas City early last Tuesday morning and arrived at its destination late Wednesday night, having made the trip of 372 miles in two days and a night. The truck was delivered to a purchaser in Kansas City.

The Keldon is as near a St. Louis made product as is possible; all of the parts being manufactured in the city with the exception of the motor, rear axle and various other minor parts.

Talbot A. Kelly, secretary and treasurer of the House Cold Tire Setter Co., which firm is manufacturing the new Keldon truck, was in charge of the trip to Kansas City. Production of the Keldon truck is well under way.

LOUISIANA RAISES MONEY FOR HIGHWAYS

Campaign for Funds Is Carried on Successfully.

The Motor League of Louisiana, of which P. M. Milner is president, is laying plans for a campaign to raise and expend $20,000 for good roads publicity and development during the next 12 months. Twenty-seven parishes are now engaged in improving present roads or building new ones. The Motor League is in favor of the vitrified brick or concrete highway as against the gravel or shell road, which, Mr. Milner declares, "is out of commission before the people complete paying for the bond issue which built it."

PRIZES ARE OFFERED COUNTIES IN ROAD RACE

EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 27.—Each county in Arizona and New Mexico through which the El Paso-Phoenix road race is routed will get a chance at the two bronze plaques which the automotive trades and highways department of the El Paso Chamber of Commerce is offering. One plaque will be awarded to the county through which the racers make the best time per mile. The other will be awarded to the county through which the racers make the second best time per mile. Referee Robert H. Rinehart will be the judge in the contest, and will base his decision on the figures of the official times in each county.

TO BUILD TWO TYPES OF CARS AT OUTSET

But two styles of cars will be produced at the outset by the Gardner Motor Car Co., it was announced last week by Russell E. Gardner, vice president of sales. These are to be the touring car and roadster models, to accommodate five and three passengers, respectively. Full production of the new Gardner car is scheduled to start the first of the year. Gardner said the closed models will be produced in time for the spring and summer demand. The factory output is to be 125 cars a day.

MANUFACTURER SENDS OPEN LETTER TO PUBLIC

In an open letter to the public, A. G. Seiberling, vice president and general manager of the Haynes Automobile Co., Kokomo, Ind., explains the reason why prospective purchasers have been unable to get deliveries on Haynes cars and tells of the steps being taken to increase production facilities to relieve the condition.

In part he shays: "We are doubling the capacity of our plant; we have increased our production. Those who have waited have profited, because they are getting cars wonderfully improved. The 1920 Haynes is worth waiting for."

Make The Tires Now On Your Car Last Until Spring

The motoring season is about at an end.

And your tires, more than likely, have given all the service you can safely demand of them.

Doubtless, right now, your greatest dread is the purchase of expensive tires—tires that will deteriorate during the winter months even though you make little use of your car.

But there is a way of avoiding this dreaded expenditure as the experience of over 750,000 motorists proves.

From 5,000 to 15,000 miles can be added to the tires now on your car, provided the fabric is still serviceable.

A new principle of construction, invented by Charles C. Gates, E. M., which incorporates your worn casing in a brand new factory built tire gives you double fabric strength and double cushion resiliency as the illustration to the left clearly shows.

And at the beginning you save half what you would have to pay for new tires—because Gates Half-Sole Tires cost only half as much as ordinary tires of corresponding size—and are guaranteed puncture-proof besides.

Worn piston rings waste power and money

You can't afford to have them in your car. You want all the power your motor can develop.

McQuay-Norris Leak-Proof Piston Rings increase motor power. Not in any mysterious way—but because their exclusive two-piece design produces equal action all around the cylinder walls—preventing gas from escaping. This insures full compression and consequent power.

These rings have increased power, saved fuel and decreased carbon for nine years. They are made in every size and over-size to fit every make and model of motor. Your repair man has them or can get you proper sizes promptly from his jobber's complete stock.

SPEED TITLE TO BE REVIVED NEXT YEAR

The national automobile racing championship, discontinued in 1917 and 1918 because of the war and allowed to lapse this year for no particular reason, will be revived in 1920 by the contest board of the American Automobile Association. Richard A. Kennerdell, chairman of the board, has issued a call for a meeting of representatives of all the speedways, to be held in New York in January. At that time details of the championship award will be arranged and dates allotted for the various contests.

In 1916, the only year in which the official award was made, Dario Resta took first honors with 4100 points out of a total of 23,332. The late Johnny Aitken ran second, Eddie Rickenbacker third and Ralph de Palma fourth.

POST-DISPATCH TOUR SUGGESTION NO. 17

AN all season drive of several hours' duration that takes in some of the best roads afforded the motorist either in the city or county is a short tour over Grand avenue, south to Gravois road, west to Denny road, north to Olive street road, east to Westgate avenue, south to Delmar avenue, then east to the heart of the city.

From the Post-Dispatch building the total mileage of this trip is ap- approximately 40 miles. The roads are hard-surfaced all the way and are in very good condition except for a short stretch on Gravois road and another on Denny road, but crews who were at work on both stretches last week should have the rough spots ironed out at least by next Sunday if not today.

Golden rod is now in bloom in the fields along the roads in the county having made its appearance but recently and the leaves of trees have started to change. The turning of the leaves is particularly noticeable along Denny road near Chaminade College where the green has already turned to numerous shades of brown and red.

Along Denny road too just after turning off Gravois road with the Sunset Hill Country Club grounds on the left there is a beautiful view to the west of a broad valley extending back for miles. At one point where a view of the horizon is had perhaps for 20 miles farmhouses and barns in white and red and tall water tanks may be seen against the green background far into the distance.

AUTO NOTES and GOSSIP.

J. O. Tinsley, general manager of the American Automobile and Supply Co., distributors in Missouri and Illinois for the Dixie Flyer report the sale of four cars to trainmen of the Frisco lines during the last 10 days. They were J. D. Cook and J. L. Johnson, engineers, and William Gregory and Ben Hubbard, both conductors.

Another damper was placed on the automobile thief last week with the opening of offices at 3200 Locust street by A. W. Burnitt, who will handle the Monarch automobile lock as distributor for Missouri. This lock is attached to the steering post and by the use of a Yale key the steering wheel is disconnected, making it impossible for a thief to drive or tow the car away.

Henry Borbein, president of the Borbein Automobile Co., who has been in the business in St. Louis since its inception, has retired and has turned his business over to his son, Alfred H., and H. M. Young, two young men who have been raised in the business.

W. C. Markham, formerly manager of the Victoria Theater, has been made district representative for the Moerschell Electric and Auto Supply Co.

Herbert A. Steinmeyer, manager of the tire department of the Niese Grocer Co., has been notified by the manufacturers that the guarantee of service on Columbia tires has been raised to 6000 miles. The Niese Grocer Co. is general distributor for this tire, with a number of local dealers handling it for the company.

From photographs that have been received of the new Paige five-passenger coupe by the Newell Motor Car Co., it is as attractive as predicted. Advices accompanying the photographs assured early deliveries for St. Louis.

A new member has been added to the sales force of Newell Motor Car Co. in the person of J. Van Walshauser, who served during the war as a Lieutenant in the air service.

S. W. Ramsey, vice president of the Southwest Nash Motor Car Co., returned last week from a visit to the Nash factory at Kenosha, Wis., where he inspected a model of the new four-cylinder Nash car. He said models of the new car have been built for display at the national show in New York and the St. Louis automobile show to be held in the spring of 1920, though production would not start until next June or July.

ST. LOUIS CAR ATTRACTS ATTENTION IN THE EAST

A great deal of interest has been attracted among New Yorkers of late by the Dorris car built in St. Louis.

During the last few weeks a stripped Dorris chassis has been on exhibition in the showroom of the Carlton Motors Corporation at Park avenue and 53rd street, New York, and word comes back that experts there say it represents one of the finest examples of design and assembly.

The chassis exhibited has the Dorris six-cylinder valve-in-head motor with a "super heater" on the intake manifold for the use of low grade fuel, a recent improvement. The motor otherwise is the same that has been used for the last five years. The channel steel in the frame construction tapers from 8 to 10 inches in breadth to safeguard rigidity of the body. The platform spring formerly used has been discontinued in their latest series and long underslung, semi-elliptic springs are now used in the rear.

The models include, seven-passenger touring car; four-passenger tourist, four-passenger coupe and six-passenger sedan. The colors in which they appear are Milori green, Cobalt blue and Maroon.

Detecting Manifold Leaks.

A new way of detecting leaks in the inlet manifold is found in the employment of a bit of Japanese incense, or punk, that frequently is used as a protection against mosquitoes. The lighted punk is moved around the manifold while the engine is running. If there is a leak, no matter how small, the smoke will be drawn into the manifold when the punk is brought near the leak.—Kansas City Journal.

MOTOR CARS

A Responsive Motor

Hills hold no terrors for the Stearns.

Responsiveness to the slighest foot-pressure on the accelerator is built into the Stearns-built Knight motor.

The new Stearns approaches a hill with no apprehension. It is never necessary to make a "run" for it.

"A touch of the toe—and up you go."

No struggle—no knocking—no shifting of gears.

Up on high.

The same is true of a Stearns that has seen several seasons' use.

Stearns motors do not grow cold. Their wonderful performance improves with age.

There's no time like the present to learn of the delightful pleasure and comfort of Stearns motoring.

All that perfect car designing can provide is represented in Stearns car comfort.

All that the builders of automobile motors have learned is embodied in the not-to-be-excelled performance of the Stearns-built Knight motor.

TOBACCO HARDENS THE ARTERIES, OVERTAXES THE HEART AND SHORTENS LIFE

Says Dr. Connor, Who Suggests a Simple Test to Find If It Is Hurting You. Can You Stand It?

New York.—Dr. Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins Hospital, says: Hundreds of thousands of men who smoke and chew and who believe themselves healthy are suffering from progressive organic ailments. They would never have been afflicted had it not been for the use of tobacco, and most of them would soon get well if they would only stop the use of tobacco.

The best known habit-forming principal of tobacco is nicotine, but the most deadly and demoralizing is furfural. Both are deadly poison, which, when absorbed by the system slowly, but surely, affects the nerves, membranes, tissues, vital organs and vitality of the body.

The harmful effect of tobacco varies and depends on circumstances and the individual. In some it causes general debility, constipation, extreme nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of memory, lack of will power, cowardice and fear, mental confusion, etc.; in others it causes heart disease, bronchial troubles, hardening of the arteries, palpitation of the heart, tuberculosis, blindness, cancer and the common affliction known as tobacco heart.

If you use tobacco in any form you easily detect its harmful effects by making the following simple tests: Read aloud a full page from a book. If your voice becomes muffled, hoarse and indistinct and you must frequently clear your throat, the chances are that your throat is affected by catarrh, and it may be the beginning of very serious catarrhal trouble. Next, in the morning, before taking your usual smoke, walk up three flights of stairs at a regular pace, then stop. If you find that you are out of breath, if your heart beat is forced, trembling or irregular, you may be the victim of a functional or organic heart trouble. If you feel that you must smoke or chew to quiet your nerves, you are a slave to the tobacco habit and are slowly poisoning yourself with the insidious deadly drugs, nicotine and furfural. In either case, you have just two alternatives—keep on with your self-poisoning process, regardless of the dangers, and suffer the consequences, or rid yourself of the habit and escape the dangers.

You can overcome the craving and stop the tobacco habit in a very short time by using the following inexpensive formula: Go to any drug store and ask for Nicotol. Take one tablet after each meal, and in a comparatively short time you will have no desire for tobacco. The craving will have left you. With the nicotine poisoning out of your system your general health will quickly improve.

Note: When asked about Nicotol, one of our leading druggists said: "Nicotol is truly a wonderful remedy for the tobacco habit. It is way ahead of anything we have ever sold before. We are authorized by the manufacturers to refund the money to every dissatisfied customer, and we would not permit the use of our name unless the remedy possessed unusual merit." Nicotol is sold in this city under an iron-clad money-back guarantee by all up-to-date druggists, including the Judge & Dolph, the Wolff-Wilson and the Enderle Stores.—ADV.

ALL EUROPE MOVING WITH NOTHING TO RIDE

Passenger Tells of Train Conductor Taking Up Collection to Buy Wood for Locomotive.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 28.—All Central Europe seems on the move. In a railway journey from the eastern Swiss boundary across German Austria, parts of Czecho-Slovakia and as far into Poland as Warsaw and Lemburg, back into Austria proper and thence to this city, an Associated Press correspondent saw dozens of long trains crowded even beyond the capacity of the cars and with every platform filled with men, women and children and the nondescript baggage of the European peasant. Bundles and chests and cloth bags and paper packages, straw and wicker baskets, rope tied, were strapped on every available space.

Where the people are going or why no one seems to know. It is apparently a general reshifting and milling about of the population.

The trains themselves are wretched enough. There is not a passenger car in Europe that has not been used for troops' transport. They are filthy beyond words, nearly all the glass is gone and the windows filled with rough boards or rusty sheets of iron or tin. The paint has long since gone, and some still bear the faded lines of early war camouflage. Lubricating oil is one of the scarcest of commodities in these regions and the cars creak over rusted rails, drawn by shabby engines.

Travel is a hazard. Schedules are virtually nonexistent and these uncertain trains creep along as the fuel supply permits. Stops in desolate country regious of hours at a time are not unusual and in most parts the railway buffets that once supplied the traveler with meals are closed, so that it is imperative to carry one's own provisions.

A passenger on one of the Orient express trains said that at one point in Southern Europe the conductor took up a collection from passengers to buy wood for the locomotive.

RAY COUNTY LAWYERS ISSUE HIGHER SCHEDULE OF FEES

Attorneys Declare Rates Charged 20 Years Ago Are Insufficient.

RICHMOND, Mo., Sept. 27.—Ray County lawyers have issued a minimum schedule for fees which have been placed conspicuously about the courthouse and in their offices covering tasks from the making of an abstract at 75 cents to trial of prohibition cases before the Circuit Court at $100.

The schedule was put into effect, the lawyers say, because many of the older lawyers were charging the same legal fees that they did 10 and 20 years ago, and with the coming of higher prices fees had to advance.

All of the fees and rates are net to the lawyer. All costs, expenses and disbursements made in connection with the particular item are to be added as an additional charge. The schedule states that all members of the Ray County Bar Association will maintain the rates.

Although the attorney is allowed expenses, trials before Justices in townships outside of where the attorney resides are $5 more than those of his home township. Civil cases before justices in townships where the attorney resides cost at least $15 for first appearance and $10 for the succeeding trials. Criminal cases are $20 for the first trial. Cases before the County Court are $10, while road cases before this body cost $40.

Fees for work in the Probate Court are on a sliding scale, the larger the amount involved the larger the fee. For all cases before the Circuit Court the minimum is $25. Divorce suits cost not less than $40 and ejectment cases not less than $50. Quo warranto, prohibition cases and felony prosecution fees are not less than $100. Felony defense fees are $75. For partition cases on estates of $2000 or less, 5 per cent is charged and on each additional $1000 a charge of 2½ per cent is made.

TIME OF RECKONING FOR GERMAN CRIMINALS IS NEAR

Belgian Department of Justice Is Hastening Work on List of Accused Enemy Subjects.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 30.—The time of reckoning for German criminals is approaching. The Belgian Department of Justice is hastening work on the list of enemy subjects accused of violations of the laws of war and of international law. The Treaty of Versailles gives to Belgium the right to demand the extradition of these persons but it must be done within one month after ratification.

The preparation of the list of persons to be extradited is a delicate task. The documentary evidence is necessarily incomplete as to the identity of particular persons. Many crimes were committed by troops and the individual authors in numerous cases were unidentified or their chief unknown. However, the treaty allows considerable leeway in that it permits extradition by designating guilty ones by their titles or employment. Judges have been making inquiries and a commission, instituted by royal decree on Feb. 15, 1919, is continuing its investigation of all infractions committed by Germans. Instructions have just been given to hasten the work.

BRITISH RAILWAY STRIKE IS CALLED ANARCHISTIC BY LLOYD GEORGE

Premier Declares He Can Recall No Walkout Entered Into "So Lightly, With So Little Justification and Such Entire Disregard for Public Interest."

NEWSPAPERS SAY IT IS CLASS WAR

Tieup Is Most Widespread of Any in History of Empire—Shortage of Coal and Supplies May Cause Factories to Shut Down.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The first day of the greatest strike in England's history passed without disorder, but with practically complete stoppage of railway transport throughout the country. Thus far it has been, from a union standpoint, the most successful tieup of indusiry ever recorded by warring labor.

Lloyd George's Statement.

Premier Lloyd George issued a statement saying:

"In a long and varied experience I can recall no strike entered into so lightly, with so little justification and such entire disregard for public interest. The strike is not one in which it can be contended that the workers are seeking to wring fair wages from harsh employers, whose profits are believed to be excessive. In this case the railway men are dealing direct with the community.

"The state is now running the railways at a loss, due, in the main, to the enormous increase made in the wages of the railway workers since the beginning of the war, and also to the great reduction in the hours of labor. This loss is being borne by the general taxpayers, and soon will have to be passed on to the general public in the form of increased fares and charges.

"The dispute, such as it is, is about something which cannot possibly come into operation until next year; yet the nation is thrown into the dislocation of a hurried strike without even a week's warning.

Calls Strike Anarchistic.

"I am convinced that the vast majority of the trade unionists of the land are opposed to this anarchist conspiracy. They can see the ruin and misery it has brought in other lands, and their common sense has hitherto guarded their organizations against the control of these intriguers. These men have made many efforts to get hold of the levers of trade unionism; so far, all their endeavors have ended in failure.

"There is no more patriotic body of men in this country than the railway men, and their conduct during the war demonstrated that fact. When they realize that they are not fighting for fair conditions for labor of their class, but are being used by extremists for sinister purposes, their common sense will resume its sway and save the country yet and their families from disaster.

"Meanwhile the interests of the nation and Government have no alternative but to accept the challenge thrown down to society as a whole. They intend to meet this blow at the public weal with all the resources at the disposal of the State and they look to the nation cheerfully to bear the privations which will result, and give their aid to maintaining the fabric of social order, upon which the prosperity of this country depends."

Tonight a great mass meeting of railway men was held in Albert Hall, at which James Henry Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railway Men, after the audience for an hour had sung "The Red Flag"—delivered a heated speech of censure against the Government, and declared that trouble was brewing which might lead to bloodshed.

Both Thomas and C. T. Cramp, president of the union, who had preceded him, asserted that the men were firmly behind the leaders in this great crisis.

Denounces Government.

President Cramp denounced the Government statement regarding the purpose of the strike as a "deliberate lie." It was not the public with whom the strikers were at war, he declared; it was the people who were for the moment in the position of directing the affairs of the country.

All "the powers of hell, the press, platform and perhaps the pulpit," would be invoked against the strikers, said President Cramp, but if they remained solid they would be victorious.

Both speakers denounced what

BELGIUM NEEDS MANY CATS TO OFFSET HORDE OF MICE

Hunger Disposed of Both During War, Brussels Paper Says, but Only Mice Have Reappeared.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 27.—Belgium, which is far ahead of any of the European belligerents in the process of reconstruction, is in great need of cats.

"The necessity is urging," says the National, which adds that, "during the war we had no cats, but we had no mice either. They had all died of hunger. Now that food is more plentiful the mice have reappeared in thousands. Unhappily the same cannot be said of cats. The result is that a dollar is beinw paid for a mere atom of a kitten. Oh, that our fairy godmothers, England and France, would send us some cats."

AMERICANS LANDED AT TRAU

Daniels Tells of Sailors Occupying City.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—A force of American sailors from the cruiser Olympia was landed at Trau, on the Lower Dalmatian coast, Sept. 23, Secretary Daniels announced today. Without bloodshed, the Americans gained possession of the city, which previously had been occupied by a force of Italians.

Secretary Daniels' announcement said: "On Sept. 23, a number of Italians surprised and captured Trau, a Dalmatian port in the zone assigned by the supreme council to be policed by the Americans. A small landing force from the U. S. S. Olympia succeeded in recovering the town and preserving order there without bloodshed. Serbians were persuaded by Admiral Andrews from taking action."

Rear Admiral Andrews, commanding the American naval forces in the Adriatic, in reporting the landing, said he acted on instruction from the supreme council at Paris received after he had reported that a force of Italians, apparently revolutionists had occupied the city on the morning of Sept. 23. His message did not say whether the Americans still occupied the town, but press dispatches from Copenhagen and Paris have said that the Americans withdrew after turning the town over to the Jugo-Slav forces.

PADEREWSKI SAID TO HAVE QUIT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Word of the resignation of Jan Ignatz Paderewski from the premiership of Poland was received in a cablegram sent by Prof. Sazchkeno in Paris to the Rev. Nicholas Stiutinsky, head of the Ukranian National Committee here. It read:

"Paderewski demanded of the peace conference withdrawal of its decision for plebiscite in East Galicia. Peace conference refused his demand. Paderewski then presented his resignation."

When Ludendorff and Hindenburg Saw They'd Failed

THE Field Marshal and I parted with a strong handshake, like men who have buried their dearest hopes and who are resolved to hold together in their hardest trials as they have held together in success. Our names were associated with the greatest victories of the world war and we now shared the conviction that it was our duty to sacrifice our names and ensure the step being taken that we had done everything humanly possible to avoid.

Thus Gen. Ludendorff depicts in tomorrow's installment of his story the scene when he and Von Hindenburg saw that they were beaten and must sue for peace. It is one of the most interesting chapters in his whole story. Don't fail to read it in

5 RACING BALLOONS LAND, BUT WINNER IS NOT DETERMINED

Three Contestants, Navy No. 1, Army No. 1 and Navy No. 3, Descend in Michigan About 490 Miles Away

NAVY BAG RIPPED OPEN BY A SNAG

Anxiety Had Been Felt for No. 3—Fact That No One Was Hurt Speaks Well for Piloting, Lambert Says.

All the balloons in the championship army-navy race, which started Friday evening from Meramec Park, Grand and Meramec avenues, under the auspices of the Missouri Aeronautical Reserve Corps, have landed and officially reported, but the winner of the race has not been determined, as three of the contestants, Navy No. 1, Army No. 1 and Navy No. 3, landed in Michigan, near one another and all about 490 miles on an air line from St. Louis.

The last contestant to report was Navy No. 3, in charge of Lieut. R. Emerson, pilot, and Ensign F. L. Sloman, aid. They landed at Stittsville, Missaugee County, Mich, near Cadillac, at 10:20 a. m. yesterday. In doing so they struck a snag, which ripped the balloon open.

Some Anxiety Felt.

Some anxiety had been felt for Emerson and Sloman, as a gale had been raging along the north shore of Lake Michigan early yesterday morning, and a telegram was sent last evening by Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, of the Missouri Aeronautical Reserve Corps, to Rear Admiral Bassett, at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, requesting that a search be made for the aeronauts. Emerson's telegram, received at 10 p. m., dispelled the fear that he had met with mishap.

In a second telegram Emerson said he crossed Lake Michigan from Kenosha, Wis., at 4:05 a. m. yesterday, reaching Muskegon, Mich., at 6:32. He was brought down by his drag rope catching in a tree, the balloon striking a snag which ripped it open. Emerson and the pilot escaped injury and they departed for Washington last evening.

Official Measurements.

Maj. Lambert stated at 1 a. m. that the race was so close the War and Navy Departments probably would have to determine the winner from measurements on official maps.

"At any rate we cannot tell the exact landing places of the contestants until we receive their logs," said Maj. Lambert. "Their telegraphic information is too indefinite to determine the winner. The fact that no one was injured speaks well for the piloting of those young officers."

Capt. E. P. Phillips of Maplewood, St. Louis County, pilot, who, with Lieut. Byron T. Burt of New York, his aid, took out the Langley Field (Va.) army balloon, appears to have a good chance to win the race. They landed in Lake Michigan, near Washington Island, 20 miles off shore from Marinette, Wis., at 10 a. m. yesterday, and were rescued with all equipment.

The third close contestant is Navy No. 1, Ensign J. H. Stevens, pilot, and Lieut. W. R. Reed, aid, with the balloon representing the U. S. Naval Station at Pensacola, Fla. They landed four miles from Menominee, Mich.

Leak Compels Landing.

The first balloon to land was Army No. 2, Lieutenant-Colonel Jacob W. S. Wuest, pilot, representing Fort Omaha. Due to a leaky envelope, he was forced to land 20 minutes after starting, in a cemetery in St. Louis County, eight miles from the starting point.

Navy No. 2 did not ascend, on account of leaky bag, and was withdrawn from the race.

Army No. 3, Lieut. Isaac H. Coulter, pilot, representing Brooks Field, San Antonio, Tex., landed on the Wisconsin shore, 11 miles north of Green Bay.

The pilot balloon with an army and a navy observer, landed on a sandbar in the Mississippi River, near Dubuque, Io.

Trophy Is Silver Plate.

The trophy is a silver plate, to be held by the department whose balloon covers the greatest distance on an air line from St. Louis.

Officials of the aeronautical reserve corps calculate roughly that Capt. Phillips, who landed in Lake Michigan, had reached the farthest point from St. Louis of the four contestants who have reported.

A race for the national championship will be held from Meramec Park Wednesday. Balloons with a capacity of 80,000 cubic feet of gas will be used. Those used in the army-navy race had a capacity of 50,000 cubic feet.

Maj. Lambert announced last evening that he had been invited to participate in a transcontinental aerial derby with airplanes, being planned by the Aerial League of America, and also in the proposed round-the-world derby with airplanes.

PRESIDENT BENEFITED BY SLEEP; DUE TO REACH WASHINGTON THIS MORNING

Sits Up for Few Minutes, but Grayson Enforces Rest Order—Party Spends Day Packing on Train.

By the Associated Press.

ON BOARD PRESIDENT WILSON'S SPECIAL TRAIN, Sept. 27.—Although benefitted by several hours of sleep, President Wilson's condition showed no important change tonight while the special train on which he made his interrupted tour of the country was approaching Washington.

Late this afternoon Dr. Cary T. Grayson, Mr. Wilson's personal physician, issued this bulletin:

"The condition of the President this afternoon shows no very material change since this morning, but he has benefitted from the sleep and rest of the early hours of the day.
GRAYSON."

Remaining in bed nearly all day, the President was said to have regained some of the loss of strength which followed his nervous attack of yesterday. His train is due in Washington tomorrow morning, and he will be taken to the White House for a complete rest from his long speech making trip for the peace treaty.

The bulletin issued by Dr. Grayson was the second of the day, a morning statement declaring there was little change from Mr. Wilson's condition of yesterday, which had been described as "not alarming."

Attended by Mrs. Wilson.

Mr. Wilson sat up a short time, but Dr. Grayson, enforcing strictly his rule of absolute rest, did not permit his patient to give attention to executive affairs or to exert himself in any other way.

Mrs. Wilson was in constant attendance upon her husband, insisting upon acting as his nurse and ministering in person to his wants.

Dr. Grayson seemed particularly pleased at the rest which the President was able to get during last night and this morning. Throughout the early night Mr. Wilson had been restless, but in the early morning he fell into a sound sleep which lasted for several hours.

Late today the President, on the advice of Dr. Grayson, definitely abandoned his plan to go to New York next Friday to welcome King Albert of Belgium.

The President wired the State Department asking that someone else be designated to officially represent the Government in extending the nation's welcome to the royal visitor.

Speeding eastward on a clear track, the presidential special ran virtually without schedule railroad officials making what speed they could without taking unnecessary risks.

It was thought tonight that the capital would be reached not later than 8 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Aboard the train it was packing up day for the members of the presidential party who virtually have made their home aboard since the departure from Washington three and a half weeks ago. During the trip nearly of 10,000 miles, all of those in the party, including the President and Mrs. Wilson, have spent all but three nights on the train.

No Engagements at Washington Cancelled, White House Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—At the White House today it was said no engagements of the President had been cancelled here on account of his illness. The only definite engagements of which the White House had been informed were the trip to New York to meet the King and Queen of Belgium. That has been abandoned. So far as White House officials who are in the city konw there have been no changes in the plans for the Belgian royalty to come to the White House next week. Nor has there been any change in the arrangements of the industrial conference which the President was scheduled to open Oct. 6. Whether he will be able to keep these engagements will not be known there until the arrival of the presidential party tomorrow. The early morning hour of arrival of the presidential train in Washington will serve to prevent the usual throng from meeting the executive and it is expected he can be gotten quietly to the White House where his rest can be unbroken as long as necessary.

The rush of house cleaners which began yesterday upon the receipt of the news of the President's unexpected return slowed down this afternoon, and nightfall found the executive mansion ready for its occupant's return tomorrow.

Dr. Grayson issued no further formal bulletin, but he told inquirers late tonight that the President was doing "as well as could be expected."

"He still suffers from headaches and nervousness," said Dr. Grayson, "but he has secured a little refreshing sleep and retained some nourishing food. I believe he will respond to the simple treatment of complete rest."

PRESIDENT SLEEPS WHILE 500 POLICE GUARD TRAIN HERE

Wilson Reported to Be "Resting Quietly After Trip;" Coaches All Dark.

President Wilson's special train arrived in the yards at Union Station at 3:35 o'clock yesterday morning over the Missouri Pacific, and left at 4:17 over the Pennsylvania for Washington.

No signs of wakefulness were discernible on the train during its stop of 42 minutes at Tower 1, Twentieth street, in the Union Station yards, where the engine was changed and the cars received a fresh supply of water and ice. The train remained dark, and apparently all the passengers were sleeping.

The President when here was reported to be "resting quietly."

A special detail of 500 patrolmen, comprising virtually one-third of the department, under command of Night Chief Kirk, stood guard along the train's route from the western city limits to the middle of the Merchants' Bridge. Railroad detectives, secret service operatives and 45 policemen surrounded the train in the yards, and the streets adjacent to the station were patrolled.

The police department expected the special to arrive at 1:38 a. m., and detail was on duty from a short time before that hour.

MORE THAN 300 INFLUENZA CASES REPORTED IN 14 STATES

Disease Has Not Reached Proportions of Epidemic and Is of Mild Type.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—More than 300 cases of influenza were reported to the Public Health Service this week by 14 states, but the disease has not reached the proportions of an epidemic in any state. The service announced today that the cases reported generally were of a mild type.

Among states reported, and the numbers in each were: Arkansas, 14; Kansas, 31; Kentucky, 13; Louisiana, 5.

"The fact that the cases are of a mild type would seem to be a hopeful sign," said Surgeon-General Rupert Blue. "The wisest thing to do is for every person to avoid contact with those affected; to keep out of crowds and crowded places; to be on the lookout for the first symptoms and when these appear to go directly to bed and summon a physician."

ANTI - STRIKE LAW ENACTED

Alabama Measure Aimed at Impeding of Industry.

By the Associated Press.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 27.—A State anti-strike law was enacted by the Legislature today when the House passed the Senate bill providing for a fine of not more than $1000 and prison sentence for persons found guilty of entering into combinations or agreements to impede industry in the State.

The bill now goes to the Governor for his signature.

Obtain Liberty Bonds and Cash From Safe of Depository at Isabel.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Ill., Sept. 27.—Robbers blew open the vault of the Isabel State Bank, 15 miles west of Paris, last night, and obtained more than $100,000 in Liberty Bonds and $5000.

This is the third of a series of bank robberies in towns near Paris within the last two months.

BELLEVILLE IS STATE'S DRY SPOT

No Liquor Sold in Town Which Once Was the Wettest in Illinois.

Belleville, once the wettest spot in Illinois, is now the dryest, according to officials who have made an investigation. No liquor of any kind is sold, despite the fact that it is reported that beer of the 2¾ per cent and liquor is sold freely in nearby cities.

An effort was made several months ago by several saloonists to place bottle beer of the 2¾ per cent brew on sale, but the police stopped it on orders of Mayor Johnson. Since then only near-beer has been sold. Belleville has 78 saloons. Before wartime prohibition became effective it had 110.

British Troops Evacuate Archangel.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The British evacuation of Archangel has been completed, with the exception of 200 Highlanders, who are expected to embark today, according to announcement here.

U. S. SHIP BOARD OBTAINS 8 FORMER GERMAN STEAMERS

Liners Allocated to War Department After Armistice for Transport Service Are Transferred.

BRITISH EXPECTED TO RECEIVE IMPERATOR

Contended That Assignment Was Only Temporary and That Ships Should Revert to Allied Pool.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Eight German liners, including the former Hamburg-American steamer Imperator, second largest ship in the world, allotted to the United States by the Inter-Allied Shipping Commission after the signing of the armistice, and used to bring home American troops, are to be retained by the United States. Plans to place them in passenger and freight service are being prepared by the Shipping Board.

The Imperator had been allocated by the Allied Naval Commission at Paris to Great Britain, and the British Minister of Shipping expected that the ship would be delivered to him today at Hoboken for use by the Cunard Line in service between New York and England.

The Shipping Board announced today, however, that it had taken the liner over from the War Department and ordered a survey to determine repairs necessary for use as a liner.

J. H. Rosseter, director of the division of operations of the board, tonight issued the following statement:

"It is understood by the United States Shipping Board that the Imperator, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria and some other former German ships now in New York were allocated to the United States under the terms of peace and the board therefore assigned these vessels to th War Department for the repatriation of troops. This service being now performed, the chairman of the board requested the War Departmentment to deliver the ships to the United States Shipping Board. Accordingly the War Department this morning re-delivered the Imperator at New York to the Shipping Board representatives."

Dispute Over Oil Tankers.

It was understood that the action of the board in retaining the ships was a direct result of a decision of the Supreme Economic Council at Brussels to allocate to the allies 12 oil tank steamers in German ports which the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey contends are its property. The ships were operated under the German flag, but the company claimed they belonged to its German subsidiary.

Under-Secretary of State Polk, head of the American Peace Delegation at Paris has sought to have the 12 oil ships allocated for the transportation of oil from the United States to Germany. The representatives of the five great Powers at Paris agreed, but the Supreme Economic Council, on which the United States is not now represented, ordered Germany to turn the vessels over to the allies.

In announcing that the Shipping Board would retain the eight German liners, Rossiter said their allocation to the United States was permanent. When the ships were delivered by the Germans in England, the Shipping Board, it was explained, turned them over to the War Department for use as transports and has now taken them back for commercial employment.

Britain Contests Claim.

It was said at the War Department today that since the ships had been assigned to it by the Shipping Board, the department's only course was to return them when no longer needed as transports. At the State Department it was said that the matter had not been brought formally to the attention of officials there and no statement was forthcoming.

Great Britain has contended that the allocation of the eight ships by the Inter-Allied Commission was only temporary and that when the need for the ships as troop transports had passed they were to revert to the allied pool for permanent allocation among the allied and associated nations.

Meantime, the Cunard line has been advised by the British Minister of Shipping to cancel its plans to operate the Imperator under the Cunard flag next month.

KANSAN LURED TO HIS DEATH.

By the Associated Press.

SMITH CENTER, Kan., Sept. 27.—After luring O. H. Munger, druggist and deputy sheriff, to a lonely spot a mile east of Athol near here, two unknown men shot and instantly killed Munger today, then jumped into their victim's motor car and escaped.

KING OF BELGIANS TO BE RECEIVED BY SENATE SATURDAY

Ruler and Party Will Be Greeted in New York Wednesday by Breckenridge Long.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—King Albert of Belgium and his party will be received by the Senate next Saturday.

A motion by Senator Lodge that the Senate recess at 2 p. m. on that day so as to receive the distinguished visitor was adopted today.

Assistant Secretary Breckenridge Long of the State Department will go to New York to extend formal welcome to the King and his party when they arrive Wednesday on the transport George Washington. The President will not be present to greet the Belgian ruler because of the illness which forced him to cut short his speaking tour.

Final plans for the entertainment of the Belgian royal party during their stay in the United States will not be announced before Monday.

Officials who will accompany the royal guests while they are in the United States are announced as follows: Brand Whitlock, Minister to Belgium, and Mrs. Whitlock; Major-General William H. Wright, Rear Admiral Andrew T. Long, Jefferson Caffery, Secretary of Embassy, Brigadier-General Patterson, Aid to Gen. Wright, J. M. Nye, special agent, Department of State, and E. T. Bell, confidential stenographer. Representatives of three press associations also will accompany the party.

HOOVER TO RETURN MORE THAN $85,000,000 OF RELIEF FUND

Foreign Obligations to Cover Most of the $100,000,000 Voted by Congress, He Writes.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27.—Herbert C. Hoover has "retired from public office," and is to devote his efforts toward making the $3 and $6 a day salaries of Stanford University professors more commensurate with the $8 and $9 wages of home-building artisans and to various relief measures in Europe, according to a letter received from Hoover by a newspaper here today. The letter was in response to one sent Hoover asking about his future plans.

He also is to return between $85,000,000 and $90,000,000 in foreign obligations to the U. S. Treasury in partial liquidation of the $100,000,000 voted by Congress for relief purposes, he stated.

"I hope this will be an agreeable surprise," he wrote. "Most of Congress thought the money was gone forever, but voted for it anyway."

After a month in California Hoover plans to return to New York to pass upon the financial settlement of $2,000,000,000 in expenses arising from the operations of the Supreme Economic Council and of the Belgian Relief Commission.

DEMOCRATS DISCUSS PLANS FOR WINNING WOMEN VOTERS

Executive Committee of National Organization Adjourns After Hearing Proposals.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 27.—With the estimate of 14,000,000 women coming into the ballot before the next presidential election, the executive committee of the Democratic National Committee devoted most of its discussion to the best methods of reaching the women voters. The committee adjourned today and most of its members departed for their homes.

The plan proposed by A. F. Mullen of Nebraska, that a declaration be made in favor of abolishing the two-thirds rule to nominate candidates in presidential conventions and substituting the majority rule was not acted upon. Notice was served on the national committee, however, that the plan would be submitted to it.

Mrs. George Bass, head of the women's bureau, discussed plans for the political education of the prospective women voters. She said that funds could be obtained by a precinct tax where there are organizations of women. She suggested that 10 cents per capita would yield a fund of $500,000.

VISCOUNT GREY IN WASHINGTON

New British Ambassador Met by Acting Secretary of State Phillips.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Viscount Edward Grey, the new British Ambassador, arrived in Washington this afternoon. He was met at the station by Acting Secretary of State Phillips and drove immediately to the embassy. At the State Department it was said Phillips' meeting the new Ambassador was a personal courtesy and not an official reception. Phillips and Viscount Grey have been strong friends since Phillips served as Secretary of the American embassy in London.

Viscount Grey denied himself to callers this afternoon. It was said he would call at the State Department Monday and would also call upon the President if the President could receive him.

35,000 DUE TO STRIKE AT BETHLEHEM TOMORROW

Both Sides in Steel Walkout Massing Forces for Test of Strength—Chicago Plants Announce They Will Operate Under Police Protection.

SENATORS INVITED TO VIEW CONDITIONS

Telegram Is Sent to Kenyon by Strikers' National Committee; Confidence in Foster Voted—First Week of Strike Reviewed.

By the Associated Press.

Having failed in the first week of the steel strike to paralyze the industry, although crippling many plants and forcing a shutdown in some centers, union labor is massing its forces for a greater offensive tomorrow, when approximately 35,000 employes of the Bethlehem Steel Co. have been ordered to join the walkout.

Officials of the United States Steel Corporation and independent companies, who claim to have won back many deserters, are preparing to launch a drive of their own, in an effort to reopen as many plants as possible and increase the output in mills kept in operation.

The sixth day of the industrial struggle passed without serious disorder, brought no great advance to either side and was marked by the following developments:

1. Formal announcement by the Strikers' National Committee that the Bethlehem strike would become effective tomorrow.

2. Invitation extended by the strikers to the Senate Labor Committee to visit Pittsburg and investigate for itself "causes of the strike" and "illegal and brutal methods employed by the steel corporations to break the strike."

3. Announcement that the strikers would confer with the railroad brotherhoods "on matters in connection with the strike."

4. Expression of confidence in William Z. Foster, secretary of the Strikers' National Committee, adopted by that body after attacks had been made on Foster in Congress and elsewhere, for alleged "radicalism."

5. Detailing of additional police in various cities to afford protection to workers desiring to return to their posts tomorrow.

6. Reply by Secretary of War Baker to strikers' protest that he lacked authority to prevent employment in Chicago of discharged soldiers in uniform as strike guards.

7. Second message sent Gov. Cox of Ohio by Gov. Cornwell of West Virginia warning him of a threatened "invasion" of West Virginia by Ohio strikers unless the Weirton mills close by tomorrow afternoon.

SENATORS INVITED TO PITTSBURG TO SEE CONDITIONS

Steel Strike Committee Sends Telegram to Kenyon—Mass Meetings Today.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 27.—The national committee for organizing iron and steel workers, after canvassing the steel strike situation here today, sent a telegram to United States Senator Kenyon, chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, tonight, asking him to have the committee come to Pittsburg and investigate for itself the conditions the steel strikers complain of in Western Pennsylvania.

The national committee also decided to confer with the railroad brotherhoods on matters in connection with the strike.

The telegram sent to Senator Kenyon, which was decided upon by unanimous action of the national committee, which represents 24 unions involved in the strike, requested and urged the Senate committee "to come to the Pittsburg district at the earliest practical date for the purpose of getting first-hand evidence of the causes of the strike and of the illegal and brutal methods employed by the Steel Corporations to break the strike."

"In many instances the civil authorities have entirely outlawed or-

FALL AMENDMENTS ON PEACE TREATY READ TO SENATE

Only Half Dozen Are Listening at End—Reading Paves Way for General Debate on Question.

VOTE WILL BE TEST OF HOW SENATE STANDS

Republicans Maintain Reservations Will Be Adopted and Democrats Say Defeat Is Certain.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—All that part of the German peace treaty affected by the amendments of Senator Fall, Republican, New Mexico, which would exempt the United States from representation on foreign commissions was formally read to the Senate today, with only half a dozen Senators listening at the end. The reading paved the way for general debate, beginning Monday, and made possible a vote on the amendment during the week. There was no indication tonight, however, as to how soon the discussion might close.

The vote will give the first accurate test of the lineup of the forces. Republicans have claimed that the amendments will be adopted, while Democratic leaders declare their defeat is certain.

The reading was interrupted soon after it started by a brief discussion of the league covenant, but the half holiday spirit was in the air and Senators had no desire to return to the fray.

Democrats Are Opposed.

Some Democrats suggested today that because of the certainty that not one vote would be changed by further discussion, they send the case to the jury, so to speak, without argument. This, they contended, would speed up the treaty and put the question of delay squarely up to the Republicans. Most of the Democrats opposed such procedure.

The President, home tomorrow, to rest after a trying speech making trip to the Pacific coast, will get different views from members of his party in the Senate, some of whom will tell him the treaty can be ratified without reservation or amendment. Others will present the view that there is absolutely no hope of its ratification in its present form.

While Senator Johnson was speeding today to his home State to resume his fight on the league of nations, the League to Enforce Peace gave out here a telegram sent to him by jurists, business men and others of California, urging him to withdraw his opposition to ratification of the treaty. Senator Johnson hopes to get back in time to plead for adoption of his amendment.

Senator Smith, Democrat, Georgia, announced today that he planned to present to the Senate Monday a set of reservations to the treaty similar to those offered by the group favoring "mild reservations." It is understood that Senator Smith's reservation to article 10 of the treaty will declare that American military forces cannot be used in furtherance of a territorial guarantee without the approval of Congress.

No Real Progress.

President Wilson will find consideration of the treaty approximately where it was when he left. No real progress has been made. The Johnson amendment has been brushed aside for the time being, but can be called up later to provoke a prolonged debate. The completion of the reading of the Fall amendments counts for very little.

Those conversant with the situation realized that the Senate is deadlocked. If either side had felt strong enough yesterday's vote could have been had on the Johnson amendment. The Democrats bantered the Republicans for a showdown, and Senator Borah dared Senator Hitchcock to call for a vote. The line-up on the Johnson amendment is 47 to 47, with two votes in doubt.

There is no doubt as to what will happen to the Fall and the Shantung amendments; the Democrats have enough votes to kill them.

The Lodge reservation on Article 10 cannot pass in its present form. If the Democrats will unite on the original McCumber reservation of Article 10 it can be put through, but the President has made it plain that he considers any sort of reservation dangerous, and he will not accept it.

Long ago the Democrats could have effected a compromise on the McCumber reservation on Article 10, but the President discouraged all efforts in that direction. It was then the Republican side turned to Senator Lodge and began to try to get together on a reservation somewhat softer than the one reported by the committee.

Would Support President.

Asked about his reservation today Senator McCumber said, "I would support the reservation quoted by the President in the event that my own, which I prefer, is not accepted. I consider a reservation on this point vital. The reservation as drafted was shown to a number of Senators before it was transmitted to the President as a basis of compromise. That does not mean that an actual agreement to adopt the compromise was reached, but that there was a disposition to support it."

It is believed by the Democrats that the Republicans are about to unite on the McCumber-Lodge compromise reservation on Article 10, and that the groundwork for a compromise on the Johnson amendment is under consideration. The return of the President finds the Democrats of the Senate nearer united in the fight for the ratification of the treaty than when he left three weeks ago. Senator Reed and Gore are considered lost, and Senator Walsh of Massachusetts is supporting the Irish opponents of the league. Senator Shields is in doubt. But barring these four the Democratic forces are together on the important propositions. There has been a welding of views and purposes within the last 10 days. But the Democrats cannot win alone. They must have many votes from the Republican side, and the little group of mild reservationists are much closer to the Lodge headquarters now than they have ever been since the controversy commenced. The presence of President Wilson may make the Democrats more aggressive, but any great change in the Republican opposition will proceed from the sentiment he has stirred up. Messages are coming in increasing volume from the constituents of the antileague Senators indicating the effect of the President's speeches.

Armenians Want U. S. Troops.

A party of Armenian-Americans urged before the Foreign Relations Committee the Williams resolution granting the President authority to use "such military and naval forces of the United States as in his opinion may seem expedient for the maintenance of peace and tranquility in Armenia."

The witnesses said that not more than 20,000 American troops and $50,000,000 would suffice to restore and maintain peace in Armenia. These figures were at variance with the calculations of some who have looked into the situation. It has been reported that the British Government wants the United States to send 20,000 men to Armenia.

The speakers before the committee were M. H. Gulesian, M. Sevisly and M. Vartan Malcom, of the Armenian National Bureau of America. Sevisly thought that it would be possible to recruit between 74,000 and 100,000 Armenians in the United States, and added that there were large numbers of Americans who would be delighted to volunteer for service in Armenia. Not long ago, he said, it was proposed to segregate all the Armenians in the American army and send them to Armenia, but the War Department did not approve the plan.

In reply to Senator Harding of Ohio, chairman of the sub-committee, as to the reason for the withdrawal of the British forces from Armenia, Malcolm said: "My own opinion is that England wants to bring the Armenian question to a crisis. They made the threat in order to force a settlement of issue."

"Do you mean to say that Great Britain is trying to force the Armenian mandate upon the United States?" asked Senator Harding.

"No, they are simply trying to get the United States to decide one way or another," replied Malcolm.

Senator New of Indiana wanted to know if some other nation located closer to Armenia could not accept the mandate just as well as the United States.

"No, they haven't the economic ability," replied Malcolm. "They haven't got the finances. They will continue to make a football of Armenia. America is wealthier."

"The United States is the only altruistic one among them," interrupted Senator Williams.

Malcolm said he considered the United States "honor bound" to help Armenia get on its feet.

"If that is true," Senator Harding said, "The United States is honor bound to go to the aid of all the other nations similarly situated."

35,000 Due to Strike at Bethlehem Plant Tomorrow

ganized labor," the telegram concluded.

A conference committee of the national committee will get in touch with the heads of the four railroad brotherhoods as soon as possible.

The committee, before it adjourned, adopted a resolution endorsing and affirming its confidence in William Z. Foster, secretary of the national committee, whose alleged radical attitude has been attacked in Congress and elsewhere.

Secretary Foster said tonight the committee will give out a document tomorrow that will be interesting. He would not say what it would be.

The sixth day of the strike in the Pittsburg district was the quietest of the week. With the order of the decision of the National Committee for a strike at the Bethlehem Steel Co. plants Monday morning, there were no radical changes in the situation. The Bethlehem strike order did not come as a surprise. The refusal of E. G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem company, on Thursday to deal with the labor leaders foreshadowed the action of the strikers' committee today.

The companies expect that the opening of the second week will find strikers flocking back to the mills. They say that thousands of men are willing and ready to return, but refrained from fear of violence.

Mass Meeting Today.

Secretary Foster said the unions had no fear there would be any considerable number of deserters from the ranks of the strikers.

Mass meetings will be held tomorrow wherever the authorities will permit them for the purpose of increasing the number on strike.

The strike has resulted in the shutting down or crippling of virtually every plant of the United States Steel Corporation, and many of the independent mills. The subsidiaries of the Steel Corporation were harder hit outside the Pittsburg district than they were in this vicinity, according to report. The Carnegie Steel Co. managed to keep its great plants at Homestead, Duquesne and Braddock running, although the strikers declared they were badly crippled. This was denied by the Carnegie company, which insists that each day saw more men returning to work.

Four persons were shot and killed in Western Pennsylvania during the week as a result of the strike. At Newcastle a woman was shot by a mill guard, it is alleged, and died the next day. In Farrell, near the Ohio State line, where the most disorder occurred, three men were shot and killed, all of them, according to reports, by members of the Pennsylvania State Police.

One State trooper had an eye shot out, and another was seriously hurt in the Farrell riots.

The strikers charge that during the week many men were clubbed when State troopers dispersed crowds. Hundreds of arrests were made in the six days by the State police, Deputy Sheriffs and local police authorities.

The activity of the state troopers led to charges being lodged with Gov. Sproul against what the strikers declared were "murderous attacks."

"We have asked a Federal investigation into the deplorable situation in Western Pennsylvania brought about by the Prussianized efforts of the steel corporation to break the strike," declared W. E. Rubin, general counsel for the national strike committee, who arrived today to take charge of the fight "for free speech and free assemblage." "The investigation is asked through the Senate Investigating Committee and the Department of Justice.

Union Quarters Closed.

Rubin said that it was a fight to the finish. "Should the strike end tomorrow, our investigation will be continued in Western Pennsylvania, until all the facts are unearthed," he added.

The city of McKeesport will be made the first battle ground for the right of free speech and assemblage, Rubin said. A mass meeting is planned as a test case. Later we will "open up Duquesne and Clairton," Rubin said.

When rooms used by the union were ordered closed by the Sheriff at Monessen, Pa., today, Rubin ordered them reopened by the strike committee at that place.

Criminal proceedings against mine guards alleged by union leaders to have been responsible for the death of Mrs. Fannie Sellens, organizer for the United Mine Workers, who was killed at the Allegheny Coal & Coke Co. at West Natrona on Aug. 26, will be started at once, Rubin said. A coroner's jury yesterday rendered a verdict that Mrs. Sellens was killed by "persons unknown, during a riot."

PLANTS IN CHICAGO DISTRICT TO TRY TO OPERATE TOMORROW

Employes Announce That Police Will Protect All Who Wish to Work.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Steel companies in the Chicago area have prepared for a test of strength with the labor unions next Monday when a determined attempt will be made to operate as many plants as possible at full capacity.

Appeals to the men to return at once have been issued and it is hinted that unless they respond a number of the companies may decide to close down for an indefinite period. Steps have been taken to provide the necessary police protection for the strikers who wish to return to their posts.

Realizing that a crisis is at hand in the fight the labor organizations are doing everything possible to strengthen their lines. A number of mass meetings have been called for tomorrow at which labor leaders will urge union men to remain out and ignore the overtures of the steel companies.

At Gary, Ind., Mayor Hodges accepted an offer of the loyal American League to furnish 600 of their members to serve as volunteer policemen, beginning Monday. It is said that they will not be armed.

At Indiana Harbor, Hammond and East Chicago Ind., steps have been taken to provide increased police protection to strikers who desire to return to work.

In Chicago large forces of police will be detailed to guard the steel companies' plants.

There is little change in the situation in the local district. The large plants that have been operating since Tuesday continued open and reported that between 25 and 50 per cent of their normal force was on duty.

Woman, 60, Hit by Auto.

Mrs. Margaret Shaw, 60 years old, 4428 Delmar boulevard, was struck at 11 p. m. by the automobile of Clyde A. Gullich, 3003 Eads avenue, at Twenty-first and Olive streets. She suffered a fractured rib and possible internal injuries. Gullich was running alongside a street car. Mrs. Shaw ran in front of the street car. Gullich was arrested and released on bond.

6-Year-Old Boy Hit by Truck.

Vincent Lattoe, 6 years old, of 1707 O'Fallon street, was injured by an automobile truck in front of his home yesterday afternoon, and is in the City Hospital in a critical condition. The driver, James Capone of 1205 Foster alley, was arrested on a charge of felonious wounding.

County Votes for $500,000 Bonds.

By the Associated Press.

LINN, Mo., Sept 27.—With 26 precincts reported and six to hear from, Osage County cast 1004 votes for and 432 votes against bond issue for $500,000. The proposition apparently carried.

SEER SAYS HE SAW COOPER MURDERED WHILE IN A TRANCE

Man Claiming "Psycho-Analytical" Powers Causes Arrest of Two Servants in Tennessee Mystery.

PRODUCES STAINED SUIT AS EVIDENCE

Accuser Swears Out Warrants for Gardener and Cook When Police Refuse to Hold Them.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 27.—Will a grand jury composed of business men indict a man for murder on the testimony of a man who claims "phycho-analytical" powers, and who says that he saw the murder enacted while in a trance?

This is the question that will face the present grand jury when Dennis E. Metcalf, the gardener at the Robin J. Cooper home, is haled before that body on a warrant charging him with the murder of his employer.

The arrest of Metcalf and Nora Lee Jones, cook employed by Cooper, constitutes the latest development in the murder of former United States Senator Cormack's slayer.

Cooper, 38 years old, a lawyer, disappeared from his home in the fashionable Belle Meade Park section of Nashville on the night of Aug. 28. His automobile was found two mornings later in a sparsely settled section, half a mile away. His body was discovered three hours later in Richland Creek, a mile from the automobile. His head had been crushed.

No arrests had been made, and the case virtually had been dropped, when Gabriel Hansen arrived last week from Memphis. He did not appear to be prosperous. Yet he put up at Nashville's best hotel and showed credentials from men in Memphis as to his uncanny powers of deduction. He claimed to have solved some of the most puzzling police problems in that section of the State.

Tells of Analytical Powers.

Hansen paid a courtesy call upon the Police Chief and told of his ability to throw his mind into a trance and view what ordinary mortals cannot see.

"It's all here," he said, tapping his head. "I go into a demonstration (trance), and see things which have happened.

"This is what I saw, in a dream in Memphis:

"Metcalf needed money; he planned with the cook, Nora Lee Jones, to kill Cooper; they got him out in the garage—Metcalf hit him over the head; he killed him."

He then explained that in the "demonstration" Metcalf took Cooper's body in the machine to Richland creek, laid it on the bank (from whence it was washed away by rains) and then abandoned the car. He also gave a few bits of real evidence, such as a suit of clothes bearing red stains, which he said he found in Metcalf's room.

Metcalf was taken before the chief. He said he had killed a chicken. The city bacteriologist began a test of the stains, and the police released Metcalf, as they did not consider him guilty.

But Hansen was persistent. He tried the Sheriff. The Sheriff would not listen. So yesterday Hansen swore out the two warrants himself—one charging Metcalf with murder in the first degree and the other charging the cook with accessory before the fact.

Two Are Arrested.

The two were arrested at the Cooper home and brought before Justice of the Peace Whitley for preliminary hearing. The little court was crowded. When Metcalf was seated Hansen walked across the room and sat beside him. Then, in full view of the audience, he turned half in his seat and leaned over and peered intently into the face of the accused as though he was trying to cast a spell over him.

From time to time during the hearing Hansen would rise and then seat himself and return his gaze to the gardener. In another corner of the room from Metcalf sat Mrs. Anna W. Littleton, Nashville's noted "Seeress of the Unseen." For many years she has "advised" men about their affairs, and helped housewives to find lost articles.

"Mrs. Cooper said she knows that I did not commit this crime," the cook exclaimed, when proclaiming her innocence to the Court.

Metcalf was angry. "I have told all I know. I am innocent. I cannot tell more," he explained. But inasmuch as the bacteriologist had not reported on the stains on the clothing, the Justice bound the two over to the grand jury, holding them without bail.

RAILWAY STRIKE IN GREAT BRITAIN TIES UP TRAFFIC COMPLETELY

they characterized as the Government attempt to bias the mind of the public by saying that the strike was not in defense of union rights, but against the life of the community. Answering the Premier's strong statement earlier in the day that the strike was an anarchistic conspiracy against the Government, Secretary Thomas declared if that were true "God help the country."

A verbatim report issued officially tonight concerning Friday's conference between the Government and railway men shows that Secretary Thomas asked for a minimum of 60 shillings a week for all workers. Lloyd George admitted that the railwaymen before the war had been "disgracefully underpaid."

Few Trains Leave London.

A few trains, manned by nonunionists, pulled out of the London stations during the day. Several trains which left for the north tonight were stopped by pickets and the engineers taken off. The passengers were left to camp in the cars. Trains of fish were left standing on sidings, and the contents spoiled.

Two great railway organizations, the National Union of Railway Men and the Society of Engineers and Firemen, have stopped work. The Miners' and Transport Workers' Union, the latter including the dock workers, are expected to join them.

The English Channel steamers and railway boats plying the Irish Sea probably will be tied up, cutting off England's communication with the outer world to a large degree.

The effect on business already is disastrous. Shops and offices everywhere are being operated with partial forces. Many miners had been unable to get to their work, while the shortage of coal and supplies promises to cause the wholesale shutting down of factories.

Food Distribution Disorganized.

The system of food distribution and the mail service are disorganized, but the Government expects to have them in operation again without much delay.

In view of the widespread effect of the movement, leading newspapers like the Times declare that it is more than a strike—it is class war.

Several newspapers commenting on the strike, urge an immediate summoning of Parliament, and there are some indications this will be done. It is contended the nation does not know the full story and that only searching debates in the House of Commons will reveal it.

All shades of opinion in the London press, except the Laborite Herald, condemn the National Union of Railway men, the action of which in declaring a strike is described as a "wanton war on society and an attempt to starve the country into submission."

Subway Motormen Strike.

The decision of the Underground Motormen's Union last night to support the National Union of Railwaymen's strike caused a complete tieup of the railways here today.

Thousands of persons could not be accommodated by the inadequate bus and tram services and were obliged to walk to work. Many resorted to bicycles and even to roller skates.

The Government having failed in its negotiations with the union to adjust the situation, is said to be prepared to operate the railroads with armed forces if necessary, but its definite program for meeting the condition before the country has not yet developed.

War Time Food Laws.

It has issued orders placing all England under a war regime so far as food and fuel is concerned, and it was stated yesterday the mails would be carried by airplane. Thus far the employes of the Irish railroads have not struck.

One of the most disquieting features of the situation is the possibility that the miners and transport workers who, with the railwaymen, form what is known as the "triple alliance," also may strike. This would bring a tremendous addition to the ranks of the strikers and still further complicate an already serious crisis in the labor world of England.

The National Union of Railway Men and the Amalgamated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen have a combined strength of half a million and claim, with their reserve of $750,000,000, to be able to pay each striking member $5 a week for three weeks, before which time they are confident they will win.

Attorney Departs for Washington.

C. L. Delbridge, attorney for the Citizens' Referendum League, departed for Washington last night upon notification by the Federal Electric Railways Commission that it would resume hearings tomorrow. The commission is investigating all phases of street railway financing and operation. The Citizens' Referendum League is advancing free transportation as the solution of the St. Louis street car problem.

JOHNSON URGED TO QUIT OPPOSING TREATY

Leading Californians Say Their Plea Is Supported by Large Majority in State.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Senator Johnson, Republican, of California, is asked in a telegram signed by Judges, State officials and business men of California, to withdraw his opposition to the ratification of the peace treaty. The telegram, made public here today by the League to Enforce Peace, said:

"We have heard the President's message on the peace treaty and the league of nations. We also have considered carefully all the objections offered to ratification. The issue is the most important presented to the American people since the Civil War. It is far above all personality of partisanship. We are convinced that the treaty should be ratified without amendment or reservations.

"Peace on a permanent basis of open arbitration, inquiry and discussion before resort to war is vital to the welfare of the American people and the welfare of the world. America must not be false to herself and refuse such a peace except for the most weighty reasons. The objections to ratification are not weighty and should not hold us back. We appeal to you to withdraw your opposition. We are confident that in this we speak for an overwhelming majority of the people of California and that your present position does not represent them truly."

Signatures to the telegram included the names of F. M. Angellotti, Chief Justice, and Warren Olney, Jr., Curtis D. Wilbur, Lucien Shaw, Associate Justices of the California Supreme Court; Benjamin Ide Wheeler, president State University; Ray Lyman Wilbur, president Leland Stanford University; Judges Maurice T. Dooling and William C. Van Fleet, of the Federal Court; Judge Frank Y. Brittain of the Appellate Court; L. C. Wood, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and many others.

Senator Johnson is now en route to California and other western States to resume his speaking campaign against the treaty and the league of nations.

San Francisco Citizens Urge Johnson to Continue Fight.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 27.—Telegrams commending his stand on the peace treaty and the league of nations covenant, and urging him to keep up a vigorous campaign for his demands concerning reservations, were sent to United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson by representatives of banking, labor and mercantile interests and the judiciary here today. Coincidentally, a proclamation was issued by Mayor James Rolph asking the citizens of San Francisco to welcome Senator Johnson and to "accord him the same attentive hearing that you gave to the President."

SEAPLANE FLIGHTS TO BRAZIL AND PHILIPPINES ARE PLANNED

Navy Considers Flight of 7800 Miles, Longest Ever Attempted in History of Aviation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Two long-distance seaplane flights are planned for early next year by the navy, one to Brazil and another to the Philippines.

The flight to the Philippines will be the longest ever attempted in the history of aviation, 7800 miles, or twice the distance covered by the NC-4 in the Transatlantic flight.

Plans of the department call for the start of the Transpacific flight from San Diego, Cal., with a stop at Hawaii, making the first leg 2000 miles long and longer than the NC-4's Trepassey-Azores voyage, and another stop at Guam. Naval aviation officers are considering extension of the flight to Hongkong, China.

Hampton Roads probably will be selected as the base for the start of the South American flight, ending at Rio Janeiro. The longest leg of this journey will be 1000 miles, with stops at Guantanamo, Cuba, Haiti, Santo Domingo, Trinidad and several South American ports.

DIVORCES HUSBAND SECOND TIME

Mrs. George M. Faught Says He Broke Promise After Marriage.

Mrs. Ruth Tuttle Faught of the Washington Hotel yesterday filed suit to divorce George Maynard Faught, formerly an army Major, and obtained a decree later in the day in Judge Hall's Court. Custody of a child, Dorris, 2 years old, was awarded to her. She previously had been divorced from Faught, obtaining the first decree at Colorado Springs, Colo., in May, 1915, after a married life of seven years.

She testified she remarried Faught three months later on his promise to change his ways, but in two weeks' time he broke the promise by staying out late and neglecting her. They separated last August, shortly after his return from overseas service in the army. She said he told her he did not care for her. Faught entered his appearance in the case, but did not contest.

There is a patch on the back and Killian's name in red ink is inside the collar.

MRS. GRACE HERCHT-LANE SEEN BY PROSECUTOR AND MINISTER

Jersey Jurist Involved in Marital Tangle Issues Statement—Refuses to Answer Questions.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The announcement of the whereabouts of Mrs. Grace Hercht-Lane, who says she was twice married to Joseph Merritt Lane, former Vice Chancellor of New Jersey, brought a score of visitors to her home in Carmel, N. Y. Among them were the Rev. Dr. Clarence Hill Frank, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Stamford, Conn., who performed the second marriage ceremony on April 4 of this year, and Prosecutor Matthew H. Kenealy of Stamford, who says Mrs. Lane, two months after the wedding, asked him to punish the former Vice Chancellor for alleged bigamy.

Dr. Frank said he wanted to see if Mrs. Lane of Carmel is the same woman he had married to Joseph Merritt Lane on April 4 in Stamford.

"Is she?" reporters asked. "She is," said Dr. Frank, "older looking and much changed, but the same woman."

Former Vice Chancellor Lane issued the following statement yesterday:

"The hardest task I have ever assumed is to keep silence now. The apparent injustice to members of my family and to those who have been and may wish to continue to be my friends makes it hard. Nevertheless, I have elected my course and shall persist in it unless and until my judgment otherwise dictates."

District Attorney Swann made it plain last evening that he did not intend to take any official action in connection with the Lane case. "I don't see that I have any jurisdiction in the matter," he said. "Mr. Kenealy, the Prosecutor at Stamford, told me that a man already married could get married again in Connecticut without having committed bigamy, provided the marriage was not consummated in that State. It looks as though the man who married Miss Grace Hercht in Stamford legitimized the child by going through that marriage ceremony and that he cannot be prosecuted for bigamy."

SAYS MINE WORKERS' DEMANDS WOULD COST A BILLION YEARLY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—"The United Mine Workers of America are trying to hold up the people of the United States for $1,000,000,000 annual increase in the cost of coal," says a statement issued tonight by the National Coal Association. The statement says the miners have announced their intention of striking Nov. 1 unless their demands for a six-hour day and five-day week are met.

The association declares that if the threat is carried out it will be in violation of a contract between the miners and operators, approved by the Government, under which it was agreed to work during the period of the war.

"The miners did not contend that the agreement was terminated with the signing of the armistice," the statement says, "but continued to work under it. They have now decided to take advantage of the shortage of coal and the imminence of winter to enforce their demands in violation of the agreement."

Fuel Administrator Garfield refused a demand of the mine workers for a wage increase last year.

BIG FOUR WANT ALL DELEGATES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Insistence by the "big four" railroad brotherhoods that each shall have a representative in the industrial conference, to the exclusion of the unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, are responsible for requests from Samuel Gompers and Director-General Hines that representation in the conference be enlarged.

When the conference was decided upon Hines was informed that the railroad workers should select four delegates. The brotherhoods construed this as an invitation for each of them to select one delegate. This they did, to which the shopmen and others who are affiliated with the Federation objected.

LUXEMBOURG PLEBISCITE TODAY

LUXEMBOURG, Sept. 27.—Opposing Liberal leaders generally are of the opinion that in the plebiscite tomorrow throughout the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg the majority will favor the retention of the present dynasty headed by the Grand Duchess Charlotte.

This will not only be the first plebiscite to be held since the war ended, but also the first election held on Sunday in Luxembourg, and the first in which the women of Luxembourg have been entitled to vote.

SENATOR CALLS WILSON MENACE TO WORLD

Poindexter Charges President With Being Pro-German and Friend of Anarchists.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—President Wilson was characterized as "the world's greatest menace" by United States Senator Miles Poindexter at a mass meeting of Queen's County Republicans in Long Island City today.

The Senator from Washington, after blaming the President for delay in ratifying the peace treaty, said he was "the greatest pro-German in the country," and that his theories and suggestions regarding the "Democratization of industry" had encouraged radical labor leaders to attempt to bring about "a dictatorship of the proletariat" which means the "final overthrow of our republican form of government."

Referring to the President's imputation that certain opponents of the treaty were pro-Germans and Bolshevists, Poindexter entered a vigorous disclaimer, declaring that the President "was forced into the war against the Germans by an irresistible public opinion in opposition to his will, and tried, as late as 1918, to precipitate a negotiated peace and thus defeat the aims of the allies."

"The reds of the world regard him as their leader," asserted Poindexter. "His abuse of power in coming to the rescue of the dynamiter Mooney of California, the murderer, Hilstrom in Utah, the Anarchist, Robert Minor, in France, and in attempting to set aside the processes of civil and military justice in the punishment of these criminals, has justified the Anarchists and revolutionists in looking upon him as their friend."

Blames Him for Fiume Revolt.

The Senator attributed to the President a statement in an address here on March 5 last, to the effect that the United States should be sacrificed by the "joining of our fortunes with the fortunes of men everywhere," and said his utterances regarding "self-determination" for all peoples had "created disorders and revolutions" in Korea and Egypt, and invited "sedition and insurrection" in Italy.

"As a result of his unwarranted interference in the Fiume controversy, with which we have no proper immediate concern," said Poindexter, "he has brought the Italian nation to the verge of civil war. Without the remotest authority he has sent to participate in the controversy over Fiume and in the fighting which now seems imminent there, American marines and American ships of war. They should be withdrawn immediately. There is no authority for their presence there. It is an affront to a friendly nation, and is a violation of every prerogative of the American people.

"The war is over," concluded Poindexter. "It has been over for nearly a year. Formal peace should have been ratified at least eight months ago."

Responsibility for Delay.

Charging that the President had "encumbered" the treaty with the provisions for an international labor congress and a league of nations, the Senator declared that both provisions were, "through the influence of the President, responsible for the delay of a formal peace and largely responsible, together with the encouragement given by the President to communism, for the social and political disorders of this country, and of Italy, Russia and other nations."

LABORER ARRESTED HAD $1052

East St. Louis Policeman Finds Large Sum in Prisoner's Pocket.

Mike Adamec, 50 years old, a Madison (Ill.) laborer, found things too dull last night in his home town and wandered to East St. Louis in search of liquid refreshment with a kick. For this purpose he went well prepared, East St. Louis policemen who arrested him on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, finding he had currency and silver on his person to the total of $1052.26.

Of this sum, $1000 was in bills of large denomination wrapped in an old sock in Adamec's pocket, and the rest was in small change.

Girl Thrown From Car.

Helen Kirkpatrick, 22 years old, a telephone operator at the Carr street police station, was thrown from the front step of a west bound Natural Bridge car when the motorman attempted to close the door as she was alighting at Fourteenth and Wash streets yesterday afternoon. A sprained back and a nervous shock were the extent of her injuries.

MAN'S KISS GREETS EMMA GOLDMAN, HERE FROM PRISON

Embraces and Tears Also Share in Welcome by About 20 Men and Women at Union Station.

ANARCHIST RESISTS SO MUCH DISPLAY

In City Six Hours, on Way to New York to Face Charges Which May Cause Her Deportation.

Emma Goldman, anarchist, arrived in St. Louis at 5:45 last evening from Jefferson City, where she served a two-year sentence in the penitentiary as a Federal prisoner for conspiracy to obstruct the selective draft. She departed for Chicago at 11:40 o'clock, and thence will proceed to New York to face a charge of being an undesirable alien that may result in her deportation to Russia, her native land.

She was rearrested upon the expiration of her prison term on the enemy alien charge, and was set at liberty under a bond of $15,000 for her appearance in New York.

About 20 men and women were at Union Station to receive Miss Goldman, and as she stepped to the platform a young man, who identified himself as "A. Beyer, that's all and that's enough!" seized and kissed her. Then he wept, while others in turn embraced her.

Miss Goldman valiantly struggled against these affecting expressions of true camaraderie and hastened to a taxicab on the arm of a frowning, dark-complected man who rudely pushed aside persons who endeavored to speak with her.

Her 22 months of confinement in prison did not appear to have altered Miss Goldman's appearance or temperament. She was clad in a one-piece, hand-embroidered blue gown, with hat to match, and worn tan oxfords. She is small of stature, probably 5 feet, and is quite plump. She has lost none of her old-time vigor of expression; walked with jaunty step and appeared quite happy.

Talks Freely to Reporters.

"Oh, here are my newspaper friends," she exclaimed as three reporters approached. "I must talk to you young men of my experiences."

Miss Goldman explained that she and Mrs. Kate Richards O'Hare had been treated quite kindly by officials and guards of the prison, but declared other prisoners had been mistreated.

"They knew better than to mistreat Kate or me," she exclaimed, her large blue eyes snapping defiance. "They did not break me in that prison; they were afraid to mistreat me; they were afraid of public opinion. I am unbreakable!

"Kate and I made the most of things in prison and were not unhappy in the sense that happiness is generally understood, for we live in our ideals and convictions.

"I am the same Emma Goldman, except that I have been enlightened in the terrible conditions of your prison, and I am going to tour this country and advertise that terrible place.

"I am gong to start fighting right now for amnesty for political prisoners. My ideals have not changed. I am for freedom and justice."

Miss Goldman was interrupted with the question if she had ever advocated violence.

"It is not necessary for the individual to resort to violence," she retorted; "the Government is very efficient in its advocacy of violence, and that is far more potent as a means to arouse the people to a sense of justice than anything I could do. Violence, bah!

Says She's Been Good Citizen.

"Listen, young men," she confided, leaning forward and speaking in clear, measured tones. "I am a woman. I have languished in prison for my convictions, and I am now on my way East to face a charge that may result in my deportation to Russia. I came to this country at the age of 16, in 1886, and have been a good citizen. Yet this Government will send me back to Russia if it so wills, regardless of evidence or justice, or it may allow me to remain, regardless of evidence or justice. Do you speak to me of violence?"

She spoke feelingly of "those poor I. W. W. boys," and said her mission in life henceforth would be to fight the "battle of the strong who languish for liberty's sake in vermin-infested holes that the State is pleased to call houses of reform."

Miss Goldman had dinner with friends in the West End, and later visited in the 1700 block on Carr street.

Miss Goldman's time in prison was employed in making blue denim jackets, and she remarked with pardonable pride that she accomplished her daily tasks to the satisfaction of the prison overseers.

Among those who greeted Miss Goldman at Union Station were: H. M. Tichenor, editor of The Melting Pot, a ublication devoted to Communism, and his daughter, Miss Mary Tichenor, and Jacob Serebelik, Socialist.

A woman, who refused to make known her identity, gave Miss Goldman some flowers as she passed out of the station.

AUTO ON WRONG SIDE OF STREET SEVERELY INJURES TWO WOMEN

Chauffeur Held on Charge of Felonious Wounding and for Having No License.

Miss Helen Luth, 21 years old, 2247 Jules street, and Miss Norma Fink, 23, 2725A Allen avenue, were struck by and thrown under an automobile driven by John H. Ortbols, 35, 2 North Sarah street, yesterday at 5:30 p. m. at Grand and Park avenues. Miss Luth suffered a fracture of her right hip, a fracture of her left thumb, a lacerated scalp and many bruises. Miss Fink suffered fractures of four ribs and abrasions.

Ortbols was driving on the wrong side of the street. He said that he had been compelled to cross to the wrong side to avoid a collision with a westbound Park car starting across Grand avenue. He gave his employment as a chauffeur, but had no license and was held on that charge as well as a charge of felonious wounding.

The machine was that of Gus Weis, 4121 Laclede avenue. It was said that Ortbols had borrowed it.

LITTLE GIRL RUN DOWN BY AUTO

Driver of Car Arrested Hour Later Says He was Excited.

May Henderson, 9 years old, daughter of Alonzo Henderson, 3805 South Broadway, was run down in Broadway near Keokuk street last night at 8 o'clock by an automobile which continued on at high speed. The little girl was bruised badly about the body, arms head and face.

A pedestrian who picked her up noted the license number of the automobile and an hour later Oscar Eyermann, 21, 2901 Iowa avenue, son of George Eyerman, a conductor, was arrested. He told the police he became excited. He was charged with felonious wounding, leaving the scene of an accident and with having an improper license tag on his car. A passenger in his car also was held.

LOTTERY ADVERTISED BY MAIL

Complainant Says German Scheme Is Being Promoted in U. S.

The Post-Dispatch has received a letter of complaint from a man who says that the United States mails are being used by a firm in Hamburg, Germany, to advertise a lottery, which is a Federal offense in this country. The writer inclosed a copy of a circular letter which he said he received. It is signed with the name of Ernst Dello, 17 Ferdinand street, Hamburg, and, in part, follows:

"As you know, you have played by us in the lottery at 1914, a little before the disastrous war, and now, as the war is finally ended, we hope you wish to participate again in the lottery.

"The Hamburg State Lottery is yet arranged exactly as at that time with the same number of tickets and also of prizes, and still there are two lotteries to be drawn each year. The prices of the tickets are just the same as earlier."

The letter was mailed in August.

CLEMENCEAU SAYS ENGLAND HAS FREEDOM OF THE SEAS

French Premier Related to President Wilson Conversation With Lloyd' George on Subject.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS Sept. 27.—Following is the official text of Premier Clemenceau's reference in his speech Thursday night in the Chamber of Deputies to Great Britain and the freedom of the seas:

"As regards the freedom of the seas, England has no need to demand it of any one. She already has it, and there are none to dispute it. I have already told you in this very place, and you applauded me how I related to President Wilson a conversation I had with Premier Lloyd George on this subject.

"Mr. Lloyd George said to me, 'Do you recognize that without the British fleet we would have been unable to continue the war?'

"I replied, 'Yes.'"

"Then Mr. Lloyd George said, 'Are you disposed to prevent us, should the case arise, from doing the same thing again?'

"I replied, 'No.'

"I reported this conversation to Mr. Wilson, and he was not at all troubled by it. Mr. Wilson said: 'I have nothing to ask of you which could displease or embarrass either of you.'"

REVOLT EXPECTED IN GERMANY

Persons Leaving Interior Fear Uprising of Bolshevik Nature.

By the Associated Press.

COBLENZ, Sept. 27.—Germans arriving from the interior in the last few days express the belief that a general uprising of a Bolshevik nature is due to occur momentarily throughout the unoccupied section of Germany.

Many of these Germans have come to the occupied zone prepared to remain all winter, saying they felt certain the strikes, the coal and food shortage and other troubles of a serious nature would continue for months.

GROCER LOSES $58 IN HOLDUP

One-Armed Man Points Rifle While Companion Robs Register.

A one-armed man with an automatic rifle, at 9 o'clock last night, covered William Downer, proprietor of a grocery at 5098 Emerson avenue, while his companion emptied the cash register of $58. The men entered the store together. One carried a blue steel revolver and had a handkerchief over his face. The left hand of the man with the rifle had been amputated.

After the holdup the men disappeared.

AMBASSADOR FRANCIS DANCES AT LAWN PARTY

About 1500 Persons Applaud Short Talk in Which He Tells Some of Experiences.

David R. Francis, ambassador to Russia, proved last night to the 1500 persons at the dance given by the Girls' Division of the War Camp Community Service on the lawn of his home, Maryland and Newstead avenues, that his three and a half years in Russia had not made him lose his desire to dance. After making a 15-minute speech, he entered into the spirit of the crowd and danced until "Home, Sweet Home" was played.

Ambassador Francis arrived at the dance just as a 1000-lantern procession was in progress. Each guest was provided with a Japanese lantern and marched through the Italian garden and back to the dancing pavilion, where the Ambassador made his talk. The crowd with their lanterns filled the pavilion. He was interrupted several times by applause. After his speech three cheers were given for him.

Tells of Experiences.

The talk was a short account of his experiences in Russia. He said that he was gratified when he learned that Mrs. Francis had turned over the lawn to the War Camp Community Service for dances and had he known that it was having such success he would have put the fact into the two proclamations he issued to the Russian people. He added that as long as he owned the grounds he would consider it a privilege to let them be used for such dances. He was introduced by R. Y. Flanders, organizer for the service.

As soon as the Ambassador had finished his talk he asked Miss Laura know the intricacies of the fox trot thought the Ambassador did not know the inrtcacies of the fox trot and the one-step, so he had the orchestra play a waltz. The dancers stopped when he got on the floor and cleared a space for him to dance.

The next dance was "The Vamp," which he had with his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Perry Francis. Miss E. R. Kneubuhl, director of the war camp service, after dancing with him, said to him: "I could dance forever with the Russian Ambassador." Francis said that he had kept up with all of the latest dances and had danced in Russia until his illness prevented.

CHICAGO SUGAR MERCHANTS PREDICT A WORLD SHORTAGE

Sayy Price Next Year May Be 25 Cents a Pound if Cuban Crop Is Not Purchased.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—With sugar men issuing statements that there is a great world shortage of sugar and that the President should authorize the sugar equalization board to purchase the Cuban crop at a reasonable price, some of them predicting that without such action sugar probably will go to 25 cents a pound next year, District Attorney Clyne declared today that he believed sugar wholesalers were holding the commodity out of the Chicago market because of Federal investigations and indictments voted some time ago.

The city is experiencing something close to a famine with many stores refusing to sell sugar except with a grocery order, some of them limiting the amount to one pound with a $1 order.

Clyne today announced he had called a meeting of local sugar men for Monday in an effort to obtain more sugar for Chicago.

Following the meeting Clyne will go to Washington in an effort to influence the Government to purchase Cuban sugar, which he says is being bought by refiners at $6.50 a hundred pounds not including the tax of 40 cents as compared to $5.88 paid by the sugar board last year.

345 REPORTED AS STORM TOLL

275 Other Residents of Corpus Christi Are Still Missing.

By the Associated Press.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Sept. 27.—A revised summary of the casualties, made public tonight by the Bureau of Information, places the known dead in the vicinity of Corpus Christi as the result of the hurricane and tidal wave which swept over the South Texas gulf coast Sunday, Sept. 14, at 320. Of this number, 157 were identified, leavinfi 163 in the list of those still unidentified. The known dead in the vicinity of Rockport, Aransas Pass and Port Aransas is officially given as 25, bringing the death toll in the storm-swept area up to 345.

In Corpus Christi alone the list of persons still unaccounted for contains 275 names, making a grand total of 620 for the affected districts, including known dead and missing.

3000 CHILDREN HEARD IN SINGING CONTEST

Large Audience at Unique Affair by Sunday School Pupils at Municipal Theater.

Massed on the leafy-covered stage of the Municipal Theater, Forest Park, 3000 Sunday school pupils last night ended an unusual music program with choral singing of religious and patriotic hymns before a large audience. Under the auspices of the St. Louis Sunday School Association, 14 groups of schools from as many sections of the city met in competitive rendition of sacred music, and demonstrated the advancement in music they had gained through banding together.

What professional polish was lacking and what technical errors were made were fully compensated for in the full-hearted zeal and devotion displayed in the rendition. Many of the singers were young children; there were a few adults, probably Bible class members, and numbers of pupils in their 'teens.

Directors of more or less local note led each group, with piano accompaniment, and in the massed singing the Sunday School Festival Orchestra, composed of men and women who play in the various churches, and conducted by J. H. McClure, provided the accompaniments.

Group No. 1, a West End unit, was deemed by the judges to be best. It sang a stately old hymn, "The Son of God Goes Forth to War," and sang it with fervor. Sunday school pupils from the Episcopal church of the Ascension, the Maple Avenue M. E. Church, Eden Evangelical, Cabanne M. E., South; Hamilton Avenue Christian, West Presbyterian and Sutter Avenue Presbyterian churches comprised this division.

There are 18 divisions, but only 14 participated. Other awards were made to the following divisions: Second place, thirteenth division, South Side; third place, ninth division, North St. Louis; fourth place, second division, Wellston and Fee Fee; fifth place, eighteenth division, Maplewood.

The judges, Ernest R. Kroeger, Charles Galloway, Charles A. Bull, the Rev. Dr. John W. McIvor and J. A. Wall, made their awards on percentage basis of attendance, appearance, selection and rendition. The awards consisted of varying percentages of the ticket receipts, with the condition that the money be spnt on benevolent purposes.

In the competitive singing all the groups chose time-honored hymns familiar to the audience. While the judges were making their decision the 14 groups filed on the stage together and sang "America." This was followed by a hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name." "America, the Beautiful," and "God of Our Fathers" were other mass songs. Directors of the three leading groups directed the festival in singing the last three songs. "The Star Spangled Banner" closed a program which was very well received.

No opportunity for delighting the eye by blended colors of costume, as in the Greek Games, nor by wonderful scenic effects as in "As You Like It," were afforded in the Sunday school song festival, but it was an inspiring spectacle when the 3000 earnest choristers came before the footlights.

The groups vied with each other in forming themselves on the stage. Group 10, from the Water Tower region, formed like a cross, and group 2, one of the prize winners, had a small American flag for each singer, which later were waved aloft during the rendition of the national anthem.

PRE-WAR BASIS SOUGHT FOR STEEL TRUST DECISION

Corporation Claims, in Supplemental Brief, Its Production Declined From 1901 to 1911.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—In a supplemental brief filed today, the United States Steel Corporation asked the Supreme Court to decide the pending anti-trust case brought by the Government under the Sherman act, on the basis of the situation in the steel industry, growing out of the war, instead of upon conditions 20 years ago. The case is to be argued soon after the Court reconvenes on Oct. 6.

The corporation pointed out that in 1901, it produced 50.1 per cent of the steel, while in 1911 its proportion was only 45.7 per cent.

STEEL STRIKE THROWS RAILROAD EMPLOYES OUT OF THEIR JOBS

765 Men of Elgin, Joliet & Eastern, in Chicago District, Are Laid Off.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Incidental to the nation-wide strike in the steel industry, 765 employes of the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern Railroad today were without jobs. One hundred and one engineers, 101 firemen and 100 switchmen, who had been working in the yards at the Illinois Steel Co., were told last night there was no more work for them to do. At the same time, on the line between Joliet, Ill., and Gary, Ind., 93 train crews of five men each were laid off because there was no more material for them to haul.

ADMITS BLOWING UP BRIDGE

Defendant Claims Destruction of Railroad Structure Was Military Act.

By the Associated Press.

JERSEY CITY, Sept. 27.—Warner Horn admitted before James G. Carpenter Jr., United States Commissioner, here, today, that he blew up the Canadian Pacific railroad bridge over the St. Croix River in McAdams Parish, N. B., Feb. 2, 1915, but insisted that it was a military act committed in a hostile country during war time.

25,000 BUY FOOD AT 2 ARMY STORES HERE

Several Kinds of Meat to Go at Reduced Prices Tomorrow—Large Stock Available.

Managers of the two Quartermaster stores which have been retailing surplus army food in St. Louis since Thursday, last night estimated the total number of customers for the three days at 25,000.

T. J. Lavin, manager of the downtown store, Fourth street and Washington avenue, estimated sales there for the period at $11,000, $4000 of which was for yesterday.

W. A. Kinsey, manager of the store at Vandventer avenue and West Belle place, said he would rather not estimate sales there. Capt. Bailey, in charge of the cash, could not be reached.

Canned vegetables still are the most popular articles on sale. The staple varieties are being sold for decidedly low prices and in large lots.

"The people buy everything we have," said Kinsey. "It keeps many of our men busy seeing that the shelves are filled."

"Canned corn, beans, peas and tomatoes are our most popular articles," said Lavin.

Prices on several kinds of meat will be reduced at both stores tomorrow. No. 1 corned beef will be sold at 23 cents for one-pound cans. It had been selling for 29 cents. Bacon in 12-pound cans will be reduced from $4.15 per can to $3.50, and bacon by the side will be reduced from 31 cents per pound to 24 cents. The sides weigh from 15 to 25 pounds.

Lavin said that about 10,000 people had bought at the downtown store. Yesterday morning the line extended two blocks to Third and St. Charles streets. Similar crowds visited the West End store, and in both places it has been necessary to admit a few customers at a time.

Sixty people are employed at the Vandeventer avenue store and 75 at the downtown, with 16 and 36, respectively, serving as clerks. All are discharged members of the military forces. The clerks are paid $25 a week.

It is expected that the sale of army food will continue for at least two months, as large stocks are said to be available.

Yesterday afternoon many customers waiting in line at the west end store complained of the presence of a neighboring grocer's clerk whom they charged with buying food for his employer to sell at higher prices. The clerk said that he was buying for his mother, but policemen escorted him out.

The stores are open daily, except Sunday, from 8 a. m. to 5:30 p. m., but it has been found necessary to close the doors at 4:30 in order to wait on those already inside. Yesterday, the busiest day so far experienced, the doors were closed at 4:15. Lavin and Kinsey have so organized their forces that little difficulty or delay is experienced by customers.

MAUNA LOA IN ERUPTION

By the Associated Press.

ULU, T. H., Sept. 27.—Mauna Loa Volcano on Hilo Island, burst into eruptiton today at nearly the same spot as the eruption in 1916. Two rising columns of lava, in incadescent gases are visible from the observatory, which is located at a 4000-foot level.

The volcano is situated on the summit of Mount Mauna Loa, a 13,000-foot peak.

2500 MARINES ARE EXPECTED TO MARCH HERE NEXT SATURDAY

Parade Will Form at 1:30 O'clock With Major-General Lejeune as Honorary Marshal.

That 2500 Marines from St. Louis and the surrounding territory will take part in the Marine Day celebration next Saturday is the expectation of the committee in charge. The parade, which will form at 1:30 o'clock on Twelfth street between Market and Locust streets, will be led by the Marine Band from Washington, D. C. Major-General Lejeune, who commanded the Marines in France, will be honorary marshal. Col. Clark, commander of the Eleventh Regiment of Marines, and Sergeant-Major John J. Quick of St. Louis, who has seen more than 30 years' service with the Marines, and has been decorated many times, will act as honorary aide to Gen. Lejeune.

Forty Marinettes will take part in the celebration in recognition of their services during the war.

The parade will end at Sportsman's Park, at which there will be a ball game between the teams of the Fifth and Sixth Regiments. After the game the men will march to the Moolah Temple, where supper will be served by the Red Cross at 6:30 p. m. After the supper the doors will be opened to the relatives and friends who have received tickets at the War Camp Community Headquarters in the Pierce Building. There will be dancing and music by the St. Louis Overseas Quartette.

The parade will start at 2 p. m. The route will be to Washington avenue, to Broadway, to Olive street, to Jefferson avenue, to Washington avenue, to Grand avenue, to Sportsman's Park.

CLERK AND MONEY ARE MISSING

Manager of Grocery Asks Police to Search for Youth Sent to Bank.

Herman Scherke, manager of a Kroger branch store at 2300 North Market street, last night asked the police to search for William Hager, 18 years old, 2240 Montgomery street, a clerk at the store, who was sent to the Northwestern Bank, Fifteenth street and St. Louis avenue with $368 at noon yesterday and did not return.

Scherke was unable to learn whether Hager deposited the money at the bank. The police declare that nine months ago Hager disappeared from home with $200 in Liberty Bonds belonging to his parents and that he returned Aug. 9 without the money.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

GOODLY GAINS SCORED IN SECURITIES DESPITE STEEL LABOR TROUBLES

Stocks of Corporations Affected Share in General Advance—New High Records Scored by Several Active Issues.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The Evening Post, in its weekly financial review says:

"Financial markets, although plainly enough reflecting reassurance at the practical failure of the steel strike, have still displayed an instinct of hesitation during the past few days. This could be explained in several ways. The general position of the market itself would justify caution, even in responding to favorable news; for every man of the least financial experience knows what to look for ultimately as a result of the crazy speculation in the 'miscellaneous industrials.' But quite aside from this consideration, Wall Street appeared to lay some stress this week on the possibility, either of a sympathetic strike in other industries or of Governmental intervention on the steel strike itself, of such character as to help the unions.

"The sympathetic strike on any important scale is already among the evident improbabilities. Organized labor in other industries will sometimes take such action to support a strike, but has failed of success, but it rarely moves to help out one that has proved to be a blunder. That the steel strike was a blunder and that it was ordered against the judgment of the most experienced union leaders, there is now no possibility of doubting.

"Federal intervention in the way of the arranging compromise is always possible. In the present instance, it would not be welcomed by the industry itself. It is, however, somewhat difficult to see what more the Government could do in the steel trade dispute, beyond urging the unions to call off the strike pending the national conference on labor conditions and relations which will meet on Oct. 6. The radical faction in the Federation of Labor rejected the Government's previous strong request for such postponement, and it has got itself into its present awkward position largely for that reason. The Government's natural recourse, therefore, would be merely to restate its previous position with greater urgency. By doing so, it would open an avenue of retreat for the union from an impossible position.

"On the whole the really encouraging aspect of this particular labor episode is the evidence which it has seemed to give, first that the American workingman as a class has not gone wild over the ideals and proposals which have permeated so far into European labor circles, and second, of the existence of a powerful party of conservative action in the management of the unions. Much of the immediate future of industrial history will depend on the outcome of this contest inside the unions, between coolheaded moderation and extravagant radicalism. The battle has by no means been fought out as yet. But the contrast in the situation fought as it stands with that which prevails in English labor at any rate, is impressive enough to make out in own community as conservative.

"With the single exception of the 'third 4¼ per cents' whose yield at recent prices, because of their near maturity—was disproportionately large—none of the Liberty Bonds has as yet regained the high price of the year. But the recent recovery of nearly 2 points from the low midsummer prices is significant. It reflects on the one hand Secretary Glass' prediction of a few weeks ago, that the Government's actual surplus revenue this month would be at least $500,000,000, this being actually the first monthly surplus of the kind since the war began. As a matter of fact, even the month's public expenditure to the latest date reported (on the 20th) was $47,000,000 less than the corresponding part of August, and the increased revenue has made the surplus over disbursements $600,000,000 as against $346,000,000 deficit in the first three weeks of the preceding month.

"So far as immediately concerns the war loans, an even more important fact is embodied in this week's announcement that $717,537,000 out of the $16,936,000,000 Liberty Bonds put out before this year had been ertired by Aug. 31. This rate of redemption, in so short a period as had elapsed since the ending of hostilities, is so surprisingly large as to affect the view of future valuations. In the corresponding period after the ending of our Civil War, about 2½ per cent of the war debt had been redeemed. The percentage retired from our present war debt is about 4¼. It was 16 years after 1865 before so large an actual sum had been redeemed as has already been bought in on the present occasion. The incident is in every way consistent with American policy and practice in regard to its war debts, ever since our history began.

London Review.

By Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Keenest interest is felt here in the American labor situation because it is believed that the world as a whole is concerned in successfully dealing with anything approaching Bolshevism. While we do not attach the greatest significance to the dispatches from your side ascribing revolutionary acts to the steel workere, still it is realized how much comfort and credit the radical element would get from a victory.

Movements of this sort if not checked at one center immediately spread to another. While your outlook is regarded hopefully, our own situation is greatly aggravated by the unsound lines taken by a sycophantic Government.

Official figures covering five years of British trade show a debt balance of £2,200,000,000, with a further debit balance for the first eight months of the present year totaling £400,000,000. Yet in spite of the situation thus revealed, and in spite of our continued dependence on America for necessities of life, labor here is doing its best to wreck the attempts made for improvement. Otherwise there are many indications that trade here is reviving. Commercial bills in the discount market and bankers' loans to trade are increasing, while even the weakness of our war bonds on the market is partly due to commercial people realizing on their holdings, since they require the proceeds for business. The movements of gold are simply highly interesting. During the past fortnight £30,000,000 arrived at London, of which about £23,000,000 came from Germany and £5,000,000 from the Cape. It is believed that the German gold under the management of the International Food Committee, is virtually under your control. Of the Cape gold available weekly, you are apparently securing the greater part, but even at the high prices based on your exchange there are competitors including Switzerland which secured some of the metal, India also bought some gold.

The course of the exchanges is still interesting. The recent low level of the franc and mark occasioned special advance purchases, with a consequent recovery. Unless, however, the ratification of the treaty by your Senate is followed by big loans from America, a renewed fall, particularly in the mark, is anticipated.

France is too much inclined to seek outside assistance instead of obtaining salvation from within, through increased economy and industry. Speaking broadly, one great difference between the Napoleonic wars and our own Armageddon is that, whereas the actual cost of the latter is by far greater, the growth of civilization and of the international credit system has enabled the belligerents not merely to postpone hardship but actually to revel in war prosperity. Hence the supreme need for Europe, and especially for the European labor element, to perceive the necessity of hard work and increased production.

DETAILED REPORT OF DAY'S TRADING IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Sept 27.—Crucible Steel, one of the sensational features of yesterday's stock market, was again conspicuous at the strong and active opening of today's session, adding almost 7 points to yesterday's 10-point advance. General Motors, another leader of the previous session, gained almost 5 points, and advances in other industrials, especially steel and equipments and motors, ranged from 1 to 3 points. U. S. Steel was barely steady, but tobaccos, oils and food issues gained 1 to 2 points, rails also making moderate advances.

Stocks recorded highest prices of the week during today's short but very active session, the significant feature being the strength of steels and other shares identified with that industry. Extreme gains of 2 to 10 points in those issues were largely retained, Crucible Steel again leading. Motors and their specialties rose 2 to 5 points. Equipments 1 to 3, with as much for oils, while shippings gained 2 to 7, and sugars 2 and more. Leather, textile and railroad issues joined more moderately in the movement, but tobaccos were irregular. The closing was strong. Sales approximated 650,000 shares.

COTTON MARKET CONTINUES ACTIVE, BUT VERY IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The cotton market showed continued activity, but very irregular fluctuations after the big advance of yesterday. There was naturally a good deal of realizing for over the week-end and considerable Southern selling with prices opening at a decline of 12 to 21 points. December sold off to 32.50c, or 45 points from yesterday's high level, but the firmness of foreign exchange, the strong opening of the stock market, more favorable reports from the steel trade and continual activity of Southern spot markets brought in fresh buying, and the opening decline was followed by rallies.

The market weakened later in the morning owing to apprehensions that the English railroad strike would result in lower Liverpool cables on Monday. December sold off from 32.86c to 32.38c and the close was easy at a net decline at 23 to 45 points under realizing for over the week-end and further southern selling.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Cotton futures closed barely steady. Oct., 32.12; Dec., 32.47; Jan., 32.51; March, 32.65; May, 32.72.

Lighter receipts the forepart of last week brought buyers out stronger than they have entered the trade in several weeks. Market rebounded a big $1 as a general rule on all grades. Supply was just about an average in point of quality and not very many good, corn-fed steers were available. All locals and traders were back into the market this week, and if advance was based on the low, abnormal period of the previous weak spots in the market would have reflected a $2 to $3 gain.

Good tidy weight steers came in for most strength and cattle selling above $12 were the best sellers. There was but one good load of heavy cattle selling above $15 on sale; this was a load of Missouri cattle at $15.75, with a drove of Illinois yearlings at $16, the top. Bulk of sales were accommodated in a spread of $10 to $13.50. Oklahoma and Kansas steers selling largely in a range of $9.75 to $11, showed an advance of 50c to 65c for the week and were strong, brisk sellers at the advance.

Butcher cattle came in for considerable strength all week. Heifers and good yearlings of all kinds sold well, going up $1 to $1.50. Late there was a lull in the butcher cattle department and some spots were a shade lower than the close Wednesday. Cows were $1 advance, and bulls generally were 50c to 75c higher.

Good demand developed for veal calves, which sold up to $21, topping for the week and equalling the previous record. Yearlings were fully $1 higher, as were all grades of good heavy calves, kinds that have been slow of late.

Only a fair demand developed for stockers and feeders and, with only a meager offering, prices were improved $1 as a general rule, but the inquiry was by no means up to the standard of the usual fall demand.

HOGS—On an average run of swine for the time of year, although hardly up to the standard in weight, market dropped 75c to $1 at the National Stock Yards during the week just closed. Opening was firm, with an $18.45 top, which later dropped down to $17.50. Bulk late sold from $17.15 @17.45, as against a spread a week ago of $17.90@18.30. Heavy hogs were dull the forepart of the week, but toned up later. Choice butcher hogs showed the featuring strength. Pig market closed 50c lower with bulk of good heavies and stock pigs from $15.50@16.50. Roughs from $14.50 to $15 and stags from $15@15.75.

SHEEP—Market on fat lambs shows a little improvement over the preceding week, but medium and plain lambs and all aged grades close about where they left off a week ago. Runs were very light and quality mostly plain. Choice lambs up to $15 to city butchers, but packer top was $14.50 or 25c above last week's close. Medium grades from $13@13.50 and culls $6@7.50. Fat sheep remain at $7, canners $2.50@3 and choppers and bucks $5. Breeding ewes scarce and priced from $8@10.50 for the most part.

HORSES—Although showing a lighter total than the heavy runs of the preceding week, combined receipts of horses at the St. Louis market were again comparatively large for the limited number of buyers on hand. Market opened for the week about steady, but later there was a great amount of discrimination against the plainer horses which resulted in those kinds selling lower towards the close of the session. On the strictly choice southerners there was no great change, there being a ready demand for such kinds. Eastern trade was practically nil. None of the larger eastern buyers were on the market. Buying of horses for the French market was under way early in the week, but after the first order was filled the firm that was making the purchases announced that the buying would be discontinued temporarily because of the unsatisfactory shipping facilities and the high rate of exchange.

MULES—Receipts of mules were very liberal, especially for this time of the year. Movement the first part of the week was extremely dull, orders being very light on all classes. A little later in the session witnessed some improvement in the demand, buyers showing a tendency to take hold of the better classes of big mules and fat cotton types. Owing to the accumulation of stock in the barns from early in the week, however, there were a few loads of mules carried over for Monday's market. Dealers hold that the steel strike affected the trade somewhat, especially on the mine animals.

PRICES IN GRAIN PIT SHOW HEAVY DECLINE

Fine Weather and Prospects for Early Corn Shipments Factors in Weakness.

Notwithstanding assertions in some quarters that farm commodities have of late dropped to a point probably below the real cost of production, the downward slide of the corn market made further progress here last week. Corn prices showed heavy declines as compared with a week ago. Oats were also weak and much lower. In provisions, the differences ranged from $1.50 decline to $1.22½ advance.

One of the main reasons ascribed for the fresh setback in the value of corn was the prospect that this year the new crop would be ready to market much earlier than usual. In this connection, a good deal of notice was taken of the fact that one shipment of corn was slated to arrive in Chicago Monday, beating previous records by about two weeks. Besides, reports indicated that new corn was conditioning rapidly in all sections, and that to an important extent the plan by which producers would systematically curtail offerings had failed to meet with general acceptance. The bearish influence of the steel strike was completely discounted beforehand.

Oats were steadied somewhat by a bulge in foreign exchange rates.

Lard rose owing to a big decrease in the warehouse stock of the commodity. Other provisions weakened with corn.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

Cash corn was unchanged, with the demand fair.

Cash oats ruled ½c to 1½c higher under moderate offerings and a fair demand.

Quote: No. 1 red winter wheat, $2.25; No. 2 red winter, $2.21@2.22; No. 3 red winter, $2.18@2.19; No. 2 hard, $2.21; No. 1 corn, $1.48@1.50; No. 5, $1.45; No. 1 yellow, $1.51; No. 2 yellow, $1.50; No. 4 yellow, $1.46; white oats, 70@70½c; No. 3 white 69@70c; No. 4 white, 68c; No. 2, 68½c.

CORN RALLIES AT CHICAGO ON COVERING BY THE SHORTS

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Week end evening up on the part of shorts tended today to rally the corn market, and so too did the fact that deliveries on September contracts had been smaller than expected. Higher quotations on hogs counted likewise toward strengthening corn.

The opening, which ranged from ½c decline to ⅝c advance, with December $1.22¾ to $1.23½ and May $1.21 to $1.21¼ were followed by a moderate upturn all around.

Oats showed independent firmness, which was associated more or less with continued advances in foreign exchange rates. After opening ⅛c to ⅜c up, including December, 69⅛c to 69¼c, the market sagged a little, and then rose higher than before.

Provisions were lifted by the action of grain and hogs. The best demand was for lard.

Subsequently offerings were light and the market continued to harden, except the September delivery, which developed relative weakness. The close was unsettled, ⅝c net lower to 3¼c advance, with December $1.25¾ to $1.26 and May $1.23¼ to $1.23⅜.

Spring patent (new) at $11.70 @11.80—old held at $12 to $12.50, 100 per cent at $11.10 to $11.50, first clears $8.25 to $8.75, second clears $6.25 to $6.75.

RYE FLOUR—Quiet. Quoted in car lots as follows by mills in 98-lb. cotton sacks, at $7.75 per bbl. for fancy white patent, $7.10 for medium dark, $6.40 for extra dark, $6.50 for rye meal and 10c less in jute; jobbing prices higher.

CORN MEAL—City mill quotes in small lots, delivered in 100-lb. sacks: Corn meal at $3.70, cream meal at $3.90, grits and hominy at $4.00.

MILLSTUFFS—Wheat-feed dull and easy; little doing. Track car bran sold yesterday at $36.50 and another track hard bran sold today at $37 local, light transactions reported otherwise being 1 car middlings at $60 and 1 split car at $39 for bran and $60 for middlings. Car white hominy feed sold at $55 immediate shipment. Oat-feed quoted at $25 nominal. No. 1 alfalfa meal in new sacks offered at $37 and No. 2 at $33.

HONEY—Southern extracted and strained—bright amber in barrels at 13@14c per lb.; in cans, 15@16c—dark ¼@1c less. Comb in cases—amber, 16@18c, dark and inferior 12@14c per lb, broken and leaking 9@11c, [illegible] (24 sections) [illegible] $4.50@5.

HICKORY NUTS—New salable at $1.50 per [illegible] barks [illegible] at $1.25

BLACK WALNUTS—[illegible]

What's in a Name?

For Example: "The National Bank of Commerce in Saint Louis"

"The National Bank," of course, indicates membership in The National Banking System and the Federal Reserve System. But, in the case of this institution, it suggests also the National scope of its business: We have correspondents in every State of the Union.

"Of Commerce" tells its own story. For sixty-two years this bank has served the commercial and industrial interests of our city and section and nation, both by financing business enterprises direct and by liberal co-operation with correspondent bankers.

"In Saint Louis" is a term descriptive of advantages. It bespeaks proximity to the materials and markets of North, East, South and West; it suggests the broad sweep of the Mississippi River and the busy ships which ply its waters; it tells of twenty-six railroads converging on one industrial center; it signifies nearness to almost inexhaustible fields of coal—that twentieth century source, par excellence, of industrial power; and it speaks eloquently of homes and schools and churches.

There is something, after all, in a name.

More Baseballshevism: The Reds Were Rampant on the Cincinnati Front, Yesterday

Sox Shade Reds in Every Department but Pitching; Hurling Supremacy Dubious

Chicago Candidate for World's Series Fame Has Better Records in Batting, Running and Throwing, Is More Aggressive and Has Had World's Series Experience.

By John E. Wray.

EACH world's series, to those immediately concerned in publicity, always transcends all others that have gone before. Annually we read about the "greatest struggle in the history of the game." Those who use the superlative this year will be approaching the truth in some respects, as follows:

The series is the longest one scheduled under modern conditions.

For the first time the players will share in five games.

The total sum to be divided among the "eligibles" will probably be larger than in the best previous year, 1912.

If nine games are required, the total receipts and attendance will surpass anything in history.

The record receipts for one game will probably be shattered, a capacity of nearly $90,000 being possible.

The high cost of admission will reach a maximum never before attained—$6.60.

There are other features in which it is probable that the 1919 series will excel those of preceding years; but as to the playing of the games, the eternal mystery still shrouds the event with as dark a pall as in former years.

At this writing, the Chicago White Sox are expected to be strong "ringside" favorites. Wagers as high as 10 to 7 on the Comiskey chances have been placed, notwithstanding the fact that the early skirmishing for initial advantages has entirely favored the Reds—according to the Cincinnati viewpoint. There are elements of advantage to both sides which make the choice of the winner a matter of strictly individual selection.

Reds Had Little Oppostion.

IN their respective races the two clubs have dominated their fields, the Sox to a somewhat uncertain degree, the Reds wholly, absolutely.

It is still a mooted point with many if the best team won the American league race, so keen was the competition in this organization, where five clubs—possibly six—appeared to be of pennant caliber and where the world's champions of 1918 were unable to finish in first division.

But in the National there was not the shadow of a doubt that Cincinnati was the best team. This club maintained an 8 to game lead for some time; and, in a test near the close of the campaign, utterly beat down the Giants in a six-game struggle for survival.

If the issue as between the 1919 series rivals rested upon the supremacy each had shown in its own league, the Reds would walk away with the world's pennant.

But the National League is NOT the American League, in our humble judgment. It has neither the individual stars nor the strong team aggregations that are to be found in the newer body. The Reds had competition from only one club, the Giants; and that fact might easily explain their better winning percentage and absolute domination of the field. What would have happened to the Reds had they been forced to oppose FIVE clubs as strong as the Giants, we leave it for the reader to decide.

The Pipe Is Passed Again.

THE average fan wants concrete facts on which to base an opinion. If he cannot find these in the stories of the teams' struggles upward through their respective leagues, he will turn to the "dope," that statistical hashish with which most of us like to befuddle our minds at least once a year.

The figures, boiled down, tell us a lot of hard, unvarnished and unsoftened facts. In the main they may be accepted at face value, since the deserving alibis of both sides will about balance. Among other things the season's statistics will point out are the following:

That the White Sox, as a team, outhit the Reds 20 points on the season.

That the Sox have stolen more bases as a club and boast the champion base stealer of both leagues.

That the Chicagoans scored 75 more runs in fewer games than their prospective opponents.

That the Sox have far the best catcher in Schalk.

That Gleason has the greatest individual world's series star on either team—E. Collins, hero of five series, now in his prime.

That the Reds are outclassed in the outfield and surpassed in the infield both on attack and defense.

That the Chicago club won a previous world's series, two years ago, while the Reds are without championship experience.

That, in the main (pitching excepted) the Sox defense is better than that of Cincinnati.

You do not have to take our word for these statements. The unofficial "dope" will prove them, if you care to refer to it. However, the statistics will prove another fact that may in a measure offset all the foregoing, namely:

That Cincinnati owns four pitchers with a consistent winning percentage of between .722 and .769 and another with a percentage of practically .700. It has six pitchers that have won 90 games and lost 36, for a grand winning average of .710! Isn't that something to make you sit up and take notice?

World's Series Facts And Probabilities.

CONTENDERS—Cincinnati Reds, National League; Chicago White Sox, American League.

FIRST FRAME—Oct. 1, 2, at Cincinnati; Oct. 3, 4, 5, at Chicago; Oct. 6, 7, at Cincinnati; Oct. 8 at Chicago; Oct. toss a coin if game is necessary.

UMPIRES—Evans and Nallin, American League; Rigler and Quigley, National League.

CONDITIONS—Best five out of nine games to decide the victor.

ATTENDANCE—Capacity (about 35,000) completely sold out for first three games at both parks.

PRICES—$1.10 to $5.50 at Chicago; $1.10 to $6.60 at Cincinnati.

FAVORITES—Chicago White Sox, odds vary from 6 to 5 to 10 to 7.

PLAYERS' SHARE—Winers of the series will divide approximately one-fifth of the gross receipts of the first five games. Thus if the first five games bring in $400,000, and the Sox win, Chicago stars will divide $80,000 in 23 portions, or about $3500 each.

ELIGIBLES—Chicago: Gandil, E. Collins, Risberg, Weaver, McMullin, McClellan; Jackson, Felsch, J. Collins, Leibold, Murphy; Cicotte, Williams, Kerr, James, Faber, Lowdermilk, Mayer, Sullivan; Schalk, Lynn, Jenkins. Pitching Doesn't Always Assure Team Success, Even When It Is "Air-Tight"

UNQUESTIONABLY this year, as in all past years, it is the pitching that will be mainly responsible in determining the result of the title struggles. Occasionally some slugging club will batter down the defenses of a Mathewson and cheat him out of a deserved prize; or occasionally some fateful misplay will cheat a pitcher out of an earned victory. But write it down for Addie Joss' gospel that "pitching spells 80 per cent of the old ball game." Air-tight-pitching of itself cannot win; but it enables a one-run attack by the side possessing this hurling to capture the series and the $4000-per-man plum.

The showing of the Cincinnati pitchers, however, must be qualified, since it is generally admitted that the league is weaker and the batting on a lower plane than in the American. We may safely base this belief on the fact that in the American there are 23 batters hitting over .300, and only 12 in the National; that the leading hitter in the American League—only regulars counted—is slugging at the rate of .385, and in the National only .322.

Jackson, Collins and Murphy of the White Sox are all hitting ABOVE the league leader in the National League regulars. Jackson, indeed, surpasses the National Leader, Roush, by 26 points, and Murphy by many more.

All this is by way of leading to the inference that either the pitchng in the National League is better than in the American, or the hitting is feebler.

Which is it?

It is considered probable that the hitters are weaker in the National League. Take the case of Ray Fisher, a former New York hurler who, with the Reds, has a record of 13 games won and only five lost. As Fisher was waived out of the American League, the suspicion is justified that the National hitters must be below par, to enable Fisher to prosper. Such a conclusion would dim the luster of the Cincinnati pitching force.

Nothing Weak About Cicotte.

THE White Sox pitchers are not to be despised—while we are on this topic. In fact, the Sox have one hurler who has won nine more games than the leading winner for the Reds, and another who has topped the Reds' best man by three games. This pair of hurlers is Cicotte and Williams. Then there is Dick Kerr, the little St. Louis iron man, who has a record of 12 won and seven lost for the Sox—a better record than is owned by Ring, one of the Cincinnati "Big Four."

Faber, the White Sox hurler who, in 1917 won three games from the Giants during the world's finale of that season, is an unknown quantity, although it is believed his arm will not do for the big test. Bill James has been twirling remarkable ball, and may do in an emergency.

Taken all in all, it is conceivable that the Sox pitchers may rise to greater heights than the Reds', especially when we take into consideration that the Sox faced better hitting.

White Sox Superior in Seven Departments of Play; Reds Lead in Two

FOLLOWING is an attempt to compare the two probable world series contenders in the various departments of play likely to cut a figure in a world's championship. The comparisons are based on figures, where possible, and on testimony of men who have observed both clubs closely during the season, where no statistics are available:

Department.	Leader.	Margin.
Batting	Sox	20 points
Pitching	Reds	Questioned
Running	Sox	Slight
Fielding	Reds	Negligible
Inf. Defense	Sox	Slight
Out. Defense	Sox	Good
Throwing	Sox	Good
Experience	Sox	Wide
Aggressiveness	Sox	Wide

Sox Margin at Bat.

Let us briefly consider what a team batting superiority of 20 points means. To realize this at its proper value, the batting of the league leaders in relation to the tail-enders must be considered. Thus, the Athletics, the weakest batting team in the league hit .243 and the Sox .283. The Cincinnati Reds are batting only .263, which is 20 points better than the tail-end American League club. The White Sox batters, in other words, are as far superior to the Reds as the Reds are to the despised Athletics.

Reds Outhit by Four A. L. Teams

LOOK at it another way, always remembering that the American League hitters face stronger pitching, according to generally accepted critics. In the American League there are four clubs that hit a higher percentage than the Reds; one club tied the Cincinnatians; a sixth club was only one one-thousandth below them, and the seventh was but five points distant.

This ought to bring home clearly the hitting discrepancy between these two clubs, as told in their season's records. It is only fair to base conclusions on the supposition that the clubs will live up to their mid-campaign performances during the big series.

A margin of 20 points, in a seven-game series, might mean a difference of six hits, only; but with the Sox' capacity for extra base slugging, if you disperse these six hits at timely intervals through six world's series games, the chances are this margin of superiority would account for at least ONE additional victory for the Sox.

The conclusion to be drawn from the consideration of hitting and pitching of the two clubs seems to be that the PITCHING superiority of the Reds is still UNPROVEN while the Sox BATTING superiority is UNDOUBTED. In any case the pitching "edge" ought to be offset by the GREATLY SUPERIOR BATTING prowess of the American Leaguers. Unless there is some flaw in the premises, this conclusion is inevitable.

As for the defensive strength of the clubs, this may be accounted approximately equal, although here again enters the great factor that may decide the series outcome—experience and world's series CONFIDENCE.

Games have been tossed away because of players losing their poise, under the strain of the big honor and money involved. Don't forget that a potential Snodgrass may be lurking on any contender, ready to make another $30,000 misjudgment; or that another Heinie Zim may chase a winning run across the plate, in time of strain.

There is every reason to believe the Comiskey men are accustomed to facing an emergency without undergoing a brainstorm; that it is a club that rises to the lure and grabs the opportunity successfully. It is steadied by the ownership of the best money player in the world, Eddie Collins. What an influence a man like this one exerts on his mates cannot be measured. He surely imparts some such confidence to a team ready to bolt and blow, as a stout anchor to windward might to a ship in a storm. The boat may rock, but it will never capsize, with this anchorman on the job.

Sox Are Now Fighters.

THIS club has something it did not possess when Manager Rowland was its boss—FIGHT. To watch and listen to this 1919 machine, as coached by Gleason, one would not believe it the same tame outfit of last year.

Normally the Sox have only a few weak fielding spots. Felsch in the outer gardens, is greater than Roush, although he has not been hitting as well. However, he is one of the timeliest sluggers in the game; and when he lands, they hunt for the ball a long time. Jackson and Leibold have it on Neale and Duncan any way you can arrange it.

In the infield Groh is the only Red who is equal to the Sox defensive members and behind the bat we give it to Ray Schalk as the best catcher on either club.

Thus, barring accidents, defensive play is also added to the Sox' long list of superiorities. In conclusion, we may add the result of a man-for-man comparison of the respective positions as shown purely by the figures alone, as follows:

POSITION.	Superior Club.
First base	White Sox.
Second base	White Sox.
Shortstop	Reds.
Third base	Reds.
Right field	White Sox.
Left field	White Sox.
Center field	Reds.
Catching	White Sox.
Pitching	Reds.

Martin Second In 25-Mile Handicap Bicycle Road Race

Rider With Left Leg Strapped to Stationary Pedal, Has 10-Minute Allowance.

Walden C. "Peg" Martin, of the St. Louis Cycling Club, riding with his left leg strapped to a stationary pedal, with a handicap of 10 minutes westerday finished second in the 25-mile handicap road race in Forest Park. Martin completed the distance in 1h. 14m. 12s., less than nine minutes behind the time prize winner. Considering that the event included nine climbs up Art Hill, Martin's performance is a noteworthy feat.

T. E. Martin, another member of the St. Louis club, who also had a 10-minute allowance finished first, in 1h. 13m. 30s. Martin is only 16 years of age.

Freeman Wins Time Prize.

J. B. Freeman, one of the scratch men, was the winner of the time prize, he covering the distance in 1:05:40, two-fifth of a second ahead of his teammate, H. DeVries, who also started from scratch. L. W. Hohenstein, an unattached rider, took third prize. Freeman finished in seventh place and DeVries ninth.

"Hank" Hohman, a member of the Century's, after completing four laps was completely "pegged out" and fell off his wheel. When picked up he did not know where he was at. One other spill marred the race. Only six of the 27 starters failed to finish.

It was the first long distance race held here in some time and was witnessed by a good crowd.

Lardner Dopes "Threatened" World Series

"Expert's First Duty Is Study of Umpires"

"Having Picked Willard, I Know You Want My Advice"

"Looking in Papers I See Luque Pitched for Reds; I Guess Their Other Regulars Are Mathew, Mark and John."

"The Only Figures I Can Find on John's Athletic Ability Is Where He Once Outrun Peter," Writes the "Busher."

By Ring W. Lardner.

Gents:

In dopeing out a conflict like the threatened world series, an expert like myself works under a heavy strain, as they's no way of telling what those d—m umpires is going to do, and in the case of a couple of even matched ball clubs like the White Sox and Reds, neither one of which has ever lost a world's series, why some finicky notion of some umpire is libel to raise havioc.

An expert's first duty then is to make a study of the umpires that has been chosen to rule or ruin the coming series and a comparison between the four of them in this case shows the advantage to be all in their favor. Suppose for inst., Heine Groh was to hit a high fly and nobody catched it, but the umpires got it in their head to play a practical joke on the big Dane and call him out, why they wouldn't be no recourses for Heine only to walk off of the field and join the New York Yanks. So as I say a man that is not in the umpires confidents and trys to make predictions may make a monkey out of himself instead.

But wile it never settled a world serious 1 way or the other to figure out whether Limbo has it all over Bimbo as a bench warmer or vice versa why still and all its a habit amidst the experts, and one that don't do it lays himself open to the abuse that is always heaped onto a reformer so I may as well try and remember who is on the different clubs and set down the facts about them in Black and White and plain water.

Starting off with the catchers Bill Rariden was born in Bedford, Ind., and Ray Schalk was born in Litchfield, Ill., so neither 1 of them is libel to be dazzled by the big crowds. The edge if any belongs to Bill as he has lived more different places than Ray. As for Ivy Wingo and Byrd Lynn why Byrd has more ys in his 8 letters but when it comes to slideing home they's very few people afraid of Byrd wile the White Sox don't know but maybe Ivy is poison. Both clubs will miss Larry McLean.

The Cincinnati Pitchers.

Coming to the pitchers I had to buy a paper to see who were the regulars on the Reds and the only name that pitched for them that day was Luque, but I suppose the others is Mathew, Mark and John. Mathew is probably Mathewson's old man and has got some of the family traits which means he will have about as much luck in a world serious as the Crown Prince at Verdun. Mark, of course, has got a unfortunate name but that don't seem to make no differents in a pitcher as you take Ruth for inst. and you wouldn't never think it was a girl. I looked up John's record and about the only place where he mentions athletics is where he outrun Peter and you can't judge nothing by that as Peter may of triped over his beard or something.

None of the White Sox pitchers has ever wrote a gospel and any way they's only two of them to hear some people tell it. The two is Wms. and Cicotte of which Cicotte is 1 of the most baffleing pitchers in baseball as you can't never be sure 2 days in succession how he is going to be pronounced. Wms. was baptized Claude but has growed up normal outside of being a left hander. Of the others in the list Dick Kerr throws left handed and hits the same way while Grover Lowdermilk throws right handed and hits seldom.

It looks like a even break between Hoblitzell and Isbell on the initial sack as I have nicknamed 1st. base and at second base the rivals appears to be peers on paper though they tell me Morris Rath is going to get married this fall but on the other hand you take a bird like Collins and they's no telling what he will do under fire as a man like he is libel to blow sky high in a pinch. For inst, in the last game vs. the Giants 2 yrs. ago he lose his head completely and run home backwards from 3d. base though Heinie Zimmerman that was chasing him is 1 of the fastest men in the Natl. League and can beat his own throws.

The shortstops can be past over, as they seldom never cut any figure in an event of this kind and that brings us to Weaver and Groh at third base, both of which is the greaest third baseman in the game today. Comparisons is obvious, but they tell me Heine is liable to quit, as for instance when he was first born his old man said Heine Groh and Heine started, but soon gave it up.

The least said about the two outfields the better, as they are about equally bad, and the only chance for argument is who has got the cutest nickname, Shoeless Joe Jackson or Greasy Neale.

The Two Managers.

The rival managers is widely different types, as Moran gets his results by rough housing, while Gleason is the soft spoken effeminate kind that a person would think to hear him talk that he was Secretary of War or something. In the off season Moran is a Deutscher Arzt at Fitchburg, Mass., while the big Greek runs a handkerchief store in Philly. Neither one of them is hardly out of their teens, you might say.

As far as the utility men is concerned, it looks to me like it was an exaggeration to call them that.

Several times during the past month I have heard people say that if Cincy won the pennant the old burg would go crazy, but I didn't know how nuts they really was till they called me up and said they would pay me money to come down there and make a speech. This was after the flag was won, and it seems the town wanted to give the boys some reward for their grand fight and they had decided to give them Rookwood vases and needed somebody to come down there and explain why.

Well, Geo. Golde that owns a bunch of stock in the Reds gave a dinner at the Business Men's Club for the athletes, and I and they had a prune-colored orchestra that sung parodies about the different stars that nobody had ever heard sang before, including the orchestra. Well, I asked Sherwood Magee if the team was all there, and he said all but Jake Daubert and Charley See, a young outfielder, and Pitcher Luque. So I says "That's one for the minstrels." So he says what did I mean. So I said well you say to me, you say: "Mis' Lahdnah, who am the playahs that isn't heah outside of Mis' Daubert?" Then I say to you "Well Mr. Magee, who are the absent players besides Mr. Daubert?" Then you say "Luque and See."

Lardner Makes a Speech.

After the dinner they took us over to Music Hall that don't only hold 4000 or 5000 people, and they was all there, and I and the ballplayers and Mayor Galvin set up on the stage amidst the pottery and I was as cool as a waffle iron and finely the Mayor introduced me in a few well chose words quite a few of them, and I got up there to talk, and for the benefit of those that wasn't there to hear me as well as those who was I will tell you what I said in part.

"Ladies and Cuckoos: I presume a great many of you is wild to know how I think the serious is going to come out, as I picked Willard down at Toledo. Well, cucoos, it is impossible to tell in this case, as neither of the two clubs ever lose a serious of this kind, though back in 1843 Cincinnati played for the world's championship, but it didn't count on account of the national commission not getting nothing out of it, and I have even forgot how the games resulted, though I can remember riding out to the opening clash in a go-cart pushed by Hugh S. Fullerton. (Laughter.)

"Well, cuckoos, when I landed here this A. M. I called up the man that had asked me to make this speech and asked him what was I to talk about and he said the Reds and I said who is on the Reds so he give me a list and I looked them over and only found 4 of them that I knowed personly outside of Pat Moran and Sallee who I give him the nickname of Slim, but I would like to meet Ring as he must be a grand fellow. The 4 I know best is Dutch Ruether and Bill Rariden and Sherwood Magee and Morris Rath. Bill Rariden was with the Boston club when I use to pretend to work there and his club use to tie up the score every day in the 9th. inning with a pop fly over the right field fence and lose out in the 13th. Bill started the season with a brand-new glove and at the end of the season the glove was brand-new as none of the Boston pitchers could throw a ball that far. (Shouts of laughter.)

When Rath Was Sick.

"Morris Rath was with the White Sox and 1 day he was playing in Washington and it was Walter Johnson's turn to pitch so at 11 A. M. Morris said to Manager Callahan I am sick but Manager Callahan said I don't believe it so he made Morris play and Morris got three hits off of Walter and then Cal knowed he must of been telling the truth. (Applause.)

"I don't know the rest of the Reds very well outside of Garry Herrmann and I read in the paper the other day where he had decided to make the serious go 9 games this yr. instead of 7 so that more people would get a chance to enjoy it but personally I think his motive was to give more of Gleason's pitchers a chance to pitch. (No applause.)

"This brings us to the business of the evening. Most presents gave to baseball players on occasions like this is absolutely useless but the gifts presented to the Reds tonight will keep them busy all winter wondering what to do with them. Gents of the Reds I take great pleasure in presenting to you on behalf of whoever is giveing them away these beautiful Rookwood vases which you should ought to pronounce vases on acct. of they being $2000.00 worth of them."

Several times dureing the speech I was interrupted by crys of Lauder on acct. of people not knowing how I pronounce my name or else they was trying to convey the idear that I as as funny as the other great Scotch comedian. Well when it was over I slipped out the stage entrance and catched an obscure train for Indianapolis and here I am safe in sound.

As for my personal feelings about the serious I have lived in Chi a No. of yrs. but always recd. fine treatment in Cincinnati so I only wished both clubs could win 5 straight and now they's nothing more to be said till Pat and the Kid pulls the surprise of the season and sends Erskine Mayer and Roy Mitchell out to warm up for the opening of the fray.

Don't Miss Lardner's World's Series Stories

IF you read Ring W. Lardner's stories of the Dempsey-Willard fight at Toledo, July 4, then you will not miss his "You know me, Al" views of the coming baseball classic between the Cincinnati Reds and Chicago White Sox.

These stories, with their droll witticisms and a laugh in every line, will appear in St. Louis exclusively in the Post-Dispatch. An account of the big series would be incomplete without the "Busher's" sidelights on the games.

Our World's Series Battery

Reds Again Beat Chicago Nine, 7-4

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 27.—The National League champions again defeated Chicago this afternoon by heavy hitting in two inninge. Four hits were bunched off Martin in the fifth for two runs and four more hits came with two walks and two errors in the seventh yielding four runs. Ruether pitched five innings and retired in favor of Bressler. Before the game George Wright of Boston, Cal McVey of San Francisco and Oak Taylor of Atlanta, the three surviving members of the famous Reds of 1869, appeared on the field and tossed the ball around. They are here for the world's series as the guests of the local Chamber of Commerce. The score:

Tigers Nose Out White Sox, 7 to 5

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Detroit staged a tenth-inning rally today and defeated Chicago, 7 to 5, in a game featured with free hitting. Veach opened the tenth with a triple and put Detroit ahead by scoring of Heillmann's single. A sacrifice and another single clinched the game for the visitors. Chicago made its runs by bunching hits, which included home runs by Felsch and Risberg. Score:

WORLD'S SERIES GAMES TO BE STARTED AT 2 P. M.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 27.—Chairman August Herrmann of the National Baseball Commission issued a statement today in which he said the world's series games between the Chicago White Sox and the Cincinnati National would begin in each city promptly at 2 o'clock.

Gleason to Take All His Eligible Hurlers to Cincy

White Sox Manager Not Certain That Cicotte Will Pitch Opening Game.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Manager Gleason will take all his eligible pitchers to Cincinnati on Monday night. He says he may find use for every one of them and if he does he'll have them on the job. It is no cinch that Cicotte will pitch the first game although that is the general figuring. Gleason says it isn't certain.

"It all depends upon circumstances," is the cryptic remark of the peppery leader. Who the circumstances are isn't revealed. Many of the strategists out at Comiskey Park believe Gleason ought to take a chance starting James. The big fellow made a big hit with the fans because he beat Walter Johnson. They figure that if James could get away with the opening game the moral effect would come close to winning the series and Gleason would then have Cicotte, Williams and Kerr to swing in.

The Kid listened gravely to some of these suggestions. "Fine, if it works," he answered to the James idea. "It isn't a bad scheme." As indicated before, Gleason plans banking on Cicotte, Williams, Kerr and James. Faber is also a possibility, even a probability. If he shows any sort of control he is likely to be seen teaming with one of the other hurlers as he is good for five innings at top speed right now, according to all reports and has his old skill of cutting the corners if he gets them over at all. That's the rub.

With four regulars and Faber, Lowdermilk and Wilkinson to use as relief, he feels he is well fortified. Wilkinson, the newcomer, is eligible and looks good to the fans who have seen him work. He is a cool righthander with good curves and excellent control The fans who infest the park day in and day out have been considerably worried over Cicotte and Williams in their last games, but Gleason says there is nothing to it and they'll have plenty of rest and land in tiptop shape.

Erskine Mayer is acting in advisory capacity and the Sox now have a thorough education in Red methods and weaknesses.

The Reds have been likewise coached. The Sox regard the pursuit of John Evers as a huge joke and say the ex-keystone king is welcome to all he found out. They also say Vaughn can tell them anything he likes as the Sox have beaten Hippo very consistently when they had a chance.

The Woodland Bard fund was depleated by $10,000 today. It wasn't Cincinnati money, however. A Milwaukee fan put up $8000 and the Bards gave the 10-to-8 odds. They're still listening for Cincinnati coin and will give odds.

MORAN AND GLEASON MAY HAVE MERRY ROW OVER GROUND RULE QUESTION

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 27.—There may be a merry dispute between Gleason and Moran when it comes to the question of ground rules, necessitated by the banks of new seats that have been built out into Redland Field. Moran and Mitchell in the Cub-Red series, agreed on three bases and in today's game each club landed one such triple—a hit in each case, which would have been about good for two bases on a clear field. Moran wants the three-base rule to be in effect during the big series. Gleason, it is understood, wants anything into the seats in any section to go for a home run and this question will stand a lot of arguing. Gleason has the longer hitters with his team, and naturally wants their enormous drives to count for something, while Moran wants the hits abbreviated as much as possible.

Heine Groh, the Reds' captain and the prop of the whole club, came back into the game today and was royally welcomed by the multitude. The little fellow banged out two hot hits—and such is the luck of the game—never had a fielding chance of any kind hit at him, therefore didn't have to worry about anything damaging his injured hand. Roush made no hits at all, and Groh, who was only 10 points behind Roush this morning, may yet beat out his pal for the batting leadership of the National League.

Ruether, slated to start the world's series, was taken out of today's game while ahead just to save him up for the classic struggle. He did not look as good as usual in the five innings that he pitched, but the Cubs have always been harder for him than several other teams. He thinks he will stop the Sox to a moral certainty.

It is now stated that the Cincinnati Park will hold 35,588 paid admissions for series. Counting in newspaper men, telegraph operators, "honored guests," etc., there will be some 38,000 lunatics inside the arena.

Betting remains unchanged—6 to 5 in favor of the White Sox with plenty of coin in the air.

FEDERAL AGENTS PUT ON TICKET SCALPERS' TRAIL

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 27.—Reports received by the Internal Revenue officials today that "scalping" on world series baseball tickets is being attempted here caused detailing of several deputy collectors to the task of obtaining evidence. Under the Federal law the ticket speculator is amenable to arrest unless he fulfills all the requirements by being properly licensed, paying the war tax and marking the tickets.

The speculators, according to the reports received at the Internal Revenue office, have had advertisements printed and are distributing the tickets from certain places. August Herrmann, president of the Cincinnati Nationals, said a record of every ticket sold by the club had been kept, and it would be possible to trace the speculator without difficulty.

Washington Alumni With Aid of Three 'Ringers' Wins From Pikers in Opening Game, 7--0

Joe Roberts, Former Mississippi U. Star, and Coach Rutherford and Frank Bryan, Princeton Grad, Line Up Against Maroon—Varsity Weak on Inteference.

When Joe Roberts shot around right end at the close of the third period, shook off two or three members of the varsity secondary defense and scampered 45 yards for a touchdown, the highly touted Washington University gridiron eleven met defeat in the opening game of its schedule.

"Poge" Lewis then added a point with the subsequent kick, but the point wasn't necessary, because the Pikers' offense at no time could make any consistent headway against the makeshift opposition which carried the misleading title of "Washington University Alumni."

To begin, Joe Roberts, the hero of the day, never played a day on the Pikeway campus before. He is an erstwhile member of University of Mississippi and Drury College elevens. Dick Rutherford, who won his fame at Nebraska, and Frank Bryan, a one-time Princeton player, also were Washington "grads" for the day.

Piker Interference Weak.

However the victors did give the maroon men a long hard battle and presented Rutherford with an opportunity to see just what weak spots existed in the Washington forces. The "alumni" impressed the need of developing some kind of backfield interference. The varsity charged well, tackled hard, and showed that they were drilled in all of the football fundimentals, but do not seem to be yet assembled as a team.

Washington was in the opponents' territory only at the beginning of the game, when an "alumnus" booted a kick. The remainder of the contest was played either in midfield or in Piker land. Efforts of the never-failing Doc Lund to keep the varsity from humiliation prolonged the last period 10 minutes after the scheduled close of play, and the 1919 team did manage to get across a spurt at this time. However the line of the "old timers" braced in the shadow of the posts, so Doc consented to blow the final whistle.

"Poge" Lewis Shines.

"Poge" Lewis played center for the winners and was all over the field. He was in on every play and smashed every charge headed at the line. Lewis looked even better at center, yesterday, than he did at fullback in his varsity days. Everett Brooks did some good line plunging, and Bill Berry played an end with his old time cunning.

Nobody in particular starred for the varsity. Jimmy Conzelman got into play for about 15 minutes, and although his material efforts were not over-abundant, he put a lot of fight into his teammates.

The lineups and summary:

CENTRAL HIGH WINNER OVER KIRKWOOD, 26-0

Coach Mike Walker's Central High team opened its scholastic schedule at High School Field yesterday morning with a 26 to 0 victory over the strong Kirkwood High School eleven. The county school is said to have its strongest aggregation of recent seasons.

Central scored one touchdown in each of the four periods of play. Gladson bucked the center of the line for scores in the first and third quarters; Floun tallied with a long end run in the second, and Wood carried the ball over the line in the final. Wood also kicked two of the goals after touchdowns.

Central attempted a number of forward passes, but the countyans proved successful at breaking them up. Fullback Payne and Right Tackle Hawken proved to be the main strength of the losing squad.

LINCOLN IS STAR OF TIGER FRESHMEN TEAM

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 27.—The Missouri University 'Varsity this afternoon defeated the freshmen football team, 14 to 0. In the second quarter following a 20-yard penalty for the freshmen and a fumble by them, recovered by the varsity within a few yards of the freshman goal, Stankowski plunged through for the first touchdown. Lewis kicked the goal. The Tigers scored again in the third quarter, when Lewis passed 20 yards to Goepel and the latter ran 30 yards for a touchdown. Lewis kicked the goal.

In the fourth quarter Lincoln, of Webster Groves, freshman captain, intercepted a varsity pass on the fourth down. In the same period he also made the only first down by his team in the game when he plunged through the line for two yards. Lincoln was easily the star of the freshman team, both on offense and defense.

When in any trouble, just naturally turn to Post-Dispatch WANT ADS, and they'll point the way out.

CLEVELAND STARTS YEAR BY TAMING MAPLEWOOD FOOTBALL SQUAD, 31-0

Cleveland High inaugurated its football season yesterday afternoon at High School Field by defeating Maplewood, 31—0. Three of the touchdowns made by Coach Guy's men were due to forward passes although striking distance of the Maplewood goal was attained each time by straight football through the line and around the ends. The tight defensive work of the Cleveland eleven was in contrast to the loose necktie defense maintained by Maplewood. Inability of the Maplewood tacklers to leave their feet made them a prey to the ankle attacks of the gold and blue interference.

Syl Mueller, a Cleveland track star of last spring, has developed into an end who gives promise of reaching the mark set by Dean Lieffler in running forward passes over the goal line. Mueller intercepted a forward pass in the first three minutes of play and made the first touchdown of the game. In the third, and in the fourth quarter, he made his second and third touchdowns from forward passes. Dickie Walsh, the speedy Cleveland quarterback, did the passing.

Maplewood's defeat is the second it has suffered this year, the first game being lost to Soldan, by score of 34—0.

FULLBACK EGGLER STARS AS M'KINLEY ELEVEN WINS OPENING CONTEST

McKinley High School's light football eleven opened its season yesterday afternoon by scoring an easy victory over the Tower Grove Rangers, a makeshift team of former local scholastic players. The score was 34 to 0.

The South Siders got off to an early lead, and after a victory seemed certain, Coach Crosby sent in a number of his second string players. Hobson, right halfback, and Schaefering, quarterback, were the high point scorers for the day, each tallying a pair of touchdowns. Lufby tallied the other after snaring a long forward pass.

Clarence Eggler, fullback of the McKinley eleven, was the individual star of the contest. His brother, Charles, served as quarterback of the Ranger eleven and carried the leading roll for the losers.

The line-up:

Motor Busses.

MOTOR BUSSES soon will rumble
Through our busy marts of trade,
And the patrons will not grumble
As their tribulations fade.
There will be no more strap-hanging,
No more doors in faces banging,
No "move-up-in-front" haranguing
As we amble up the grade.

Eight-cent fares, or even seven
Is a bit too strong for us;
Soon they'll run it to eleven
If we have no motor bus.
But with motor competition
We will be in a position
To improve our bum condition
Should the U. R. treat us thus.

Motor busses solve the problem
And their way we shouldn't block;
Frenzied finance will not hobbl' 'em
With a lot of watered stock.
If a profit they're not earning
To the "pub" they'll not be turning
With a sad insistent yearning
To be taken out of hock.

Everybody will be happy
In this glad millenium;
The U. R. will be a crappie
On the everlasting bum.
No inflated valuation—
There will be a jubilation,
Life will be one long vacation
When the motor busses come.

Some Drive.

When speaking of famous drives such as the Red Cross, Liberty Loan, war stamps, etc., don't overlook the drive old "Pop" Geers is making against Father Time at the age of 69.

"Pop" has been in the harness so long you think he would get a little sulky, but he is as chipper and cheerful as a three-year-old.

Comiskey managed the Cincinnati Reds at one time. Now he is figuring how he can manage to beat them out of the long end of the w. s. frolic.

Commy managed to run fifth, sixth and tenth with the Reds in three attempts which is a pretty fair average as Cincinnati managers go.

Why not invite the alumni of ex-Red managers to witness the series. There are still enough of them living to fill a box.

Chicago Stars to Play St. Louisans for Tennis Title

Josties and Drewes Favored to Take National Municipal Honors Today.

By Davison Obear,
Missouri Field Secretary, Western Lawn Tennis Association.

Starting promptly at 2 o'clock this afternoon Chicago and St. Louis will play for the tennis championship of the National Municipal Recreation Federation on the courts at Forest Park. By virtue of their showing yesterday Josties and Drewes are favored to capture the title for the third time, although the Chicago team may spring a surprise and take the cup back to the windy city.

In yesterday's matches Chicago defeated Kansas City, 2 to 1, while St. Louis won from Poplar Bluff, Mo., 2 to 0. The weather conditions were ideal, but the crowd was disappointing. Evidently the tennis playing public does not appreciate the efforts of the municipal association in bringing the visiting players here. A large crowd will be necessary today in order to make the affair a financial success.

Ted Drewes started slowly in his match against Lincoln Hinrichs, the Poplar Bluff champion, and was forced to a deuce set before winning. He took the next more easily at 6—3. Hinrichs went for every point and played a steady game, but was outclassed in general playing ability. Josties had no trouble winning from Lloyd Ludders, the other member of the Poplar Bluff team. He won in straight sets, 6—1, 6—3.

The singles matches between Chicago and Kansas City were very close and the doubles required three sets. Dolan of Chicago and Davis of Kansas City play a faster game than their teammates. Dolan had the edge on Davis, but Cable was forced to the limit to win from Schmidt, the other Kansas City player. Dolan defeated Davis, 6—3, 6—3, and Cable won from Schmidt, 7—5, 7—5. The doubles between Chicago and Kansas City was the most interesting of any. Dolan and Cable seemed to have their own way in the first set which they won at 6—2. However, the Kaw City boys came back and took the next two sets by some excellent placing shots and good team work. Warren Davis won the 1919 Municipal tourney in Kansas City and Schmidt was the runnerup. Dolan and Cable are members of the Garfield Park tennis team which won the public park championship of Chicago last month. Ludders and Hinrichs are the champions of Poplar Bluff and vicinity. They won victories over the leading players of Bismarck, Leeper and Flat River, Mo.

SUMMARY.

Kansas City vs. Chicago—Clarence Dolan, Chocago, defeated Warren E. Davis, Kansas City, 6—3, 6—3; John A. Cable, Chicago, defeated George Schmidt, Kansas City, 7—5, 7—5. Davis and Schmidt, Kansas City, defeated Dolan and Cable, Chicago, 2—6, 8—6, 6—4.

Poplar Bluffs vs. St. Louis: Theodore Drewes, St. Louis, defeated Lincoln Hinrichs, Poplar Blubb, 8—6, 6—3. Fred Josties, St. Louis, defeated Lloyd Ludders, Poplar Bluff, 6—1, 6—3.

TODAY'S PAIRINGS.

Chicago vs. St. Louis—Clarence Dolan, Chicago, vs. Theodore Drewes, St. Louis; John A. Cable, Chicago, vs. Fred Josties, St. Louis. Dolan and Cable, Chicago, vs. Josties and Drewes, St. Louis.

Exhibition doubles—Hinrichs and Ludders, Poplar Blubb, vs. Josties and Drewes, St. Louis.

MR. AND MRS. BRADY WIN MARRIED COUPLES' MEET

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Brady won the first annual married couples tournament at the Triple A Club yesterday afternoon by defeating Capt. and Mrs. Stanhope in a three-set match, 0—6, 6—2, 6—1. Capt. and Mrs. Stanhope walked away with the first set in quick fashion and it looked as though they would win easily. However, the champions steadied down and Brady aided by some excellent work on the part of Mrs. Brady won the next two sets and the match.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce tournament, postponed from last Sunday will be played at the Triple A this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The semifinals will be completed before noon. Alfred Heinicke will play the winner of the Grone-Kottoff match in the singles final. Two trophies will be awarded the winners in the championship and consolation events.

CASEY STARS AS HARVARD WALLOPS BATES ELEVEN IN OPENING GAME, 53 - 0

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 27.—Harvard's reconstructed football eleven drove eight times across the Bates goal line today in the first Varsity game in the stadium since the war, and with five goals from touchdowns rolled up a score of 53 to 0. The visitors were but once within goal shooting distance of the crimson posts.

In the first period Casey, the star backfield man of the 1916 eleven, was unloosed for open field running and made two dashes, one of 40 and the other of 60 yards, for scores. In the second and fourth periods the Crimson eleven made two marches of 40 yards each down the field for scores and four other touchdowns resulted from catching forward passes hurled by Bates and errors of the visitors under their own goal posts. Lineup and summary:

Wagners Will Oppose Kansas City Nine in Opening Clash Today

THE Wagners, St. Louis' Municipal champions, are scheduled to oppose the Summe Dairy nine of Kansas City in one of the elimination intercity contests this afternoon. This game is scheduled to be played at Fairground No. 1, at 1:15 o'clock. At the same time on Grounds No. 3, the Choctaws of Memphis play Minneapolis. The winners will mix on No. 1 for the intercity championship at 3:30 o'clock.

An admission fee of 25 cents will be charged to the games on Grounds No. 1. Foley and Byrne will be the umpires in the clashes at No. 1 and Koelsh and Asinger in the Memphis-Minneapolis contest.

Hornsby's Homer With Bases Full Wins for Rickey

Rogers Hornsby's home run in the first inning with three men on base proved the deciding factor in yesterday's 5—3 victory for the Cardinals over the Pittsburg Pirates. Hornsby's rap came after three singles and a triple by Southworth had netted the Corsairs three markers off Bill Sherdel in the first frame.

In the Cardinals' half, Schultz, Smith and Stock singled and Hornsby pounded one of Cooper's offerings into the right field pavilion. Hornsby's triple and Mollwitz' single netted another in the sixth. Billy Southworth, the Pirates' right fielder, had his shoulder bone broken in a collision with Grimm. It is the second time he has been put out by an injury of this sort.

The Cardinals close the 1919 campaign today when the Pirates will be played. Woodward will pitch for the Cards Play at 3 o'clock. Yesterday's score:

SHAWKEY FANS 15 OF CONNIE MACK'S "KIDS"

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 27.—New York won both games today from Philadelphia, 4 to 1 and 9 to 2. In the second game Bob Shawkey equaled the late Rube Waddell's strike-out record, fanning 15 batsmen in the first eight innings, but failed to shatter the mark when five batsmen faced him in the ninth. Griffin, who got four hits and a pass, was the only man who could fathom his curves. Wingo fanned four times. New York bunched hits on Kinney in the first game and won handily. Scores:

Wagners Capture Municipal Title, Taming Screw Co., 4-3

LaBarge's Sacrifice Fly Sends Over Daly With Winning Marker in Ninth Inning—Seib's Pitching Features—Receipts of Game Total $517.75.

BEN Seib, a right-hander with a great fast ball and a fair curve, pitched the Wagners of the Mercantile League to a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Screw Co. of the Independent League, at Fairground No. 1 yesterday afternoon. The conquest gave the Wagners the Municipal Association championship. About 7500 spectators witnessed the contest.

While Seib's hurling was the outstanding feature, errors figured prominently in the scoring of five of the seven runs counted by the two clubs. The winning marker for the Wagners came in the ninth and an error by Weitkamp, the Screw Co. first sacker, put Daly on base through a fumble.

Jimmy Conzelman, Washington University football star, drop-kicked over the first run for the Screw Co. in the fourth inning. With Fiebig on third as a result of his single, an infield out and Seib's wild throw, V. LaBarge missed a ball Conzelman swung at. Jimmy kicked the ball about 15 feet away and when LaBarge took his time retrieving it, Fiebig tallied.

Wild Throw Gives Run.

The Wagners tied it in their half of the fifth, when singles by Daly, Wickman and Seib filled the bases. C. LaBarge forced Daly at the plate, but Wickman scored when Conzelman threw wide to first. Triples by Fiebig and Biederman gave the Screw Co. another lead in the sixth.

The Mercantile Leaguers again tied it in their half of the sixth, when V. LaBarge singled, went to second on Ebinger's sacrifice and tallied when Bernsen sent a safety to right.

In the seventh, Weitkamp, first up for the Screw Co., beat out an infield out. Radell sacrificed. Meyers flied out. Reidy then sent an easy pop to Bernson who dropped the ball and Weitkamp tallied giving the Screw Co. a one-run lead for the third time.

Gregory Muffs Easy Fly.

After two batters had been retired in the eighth inning, the Wagners tied it, when Ebinger singled and stole second and came over when Gregory muffed an easy fly from Bernsen.

Bott, first up for the Wagners in the ninth, fanned. Then Daly was safe on Weitkamp's fumble. Wickman and Seib followed with safeties and the bases were full. C. LaBarge sent a sacrifice fly to Biederman and Daly tallied with the run that gave the Wagners the city championship.

The receipts at yesterday's game were $517.75 it was announced by officials.

RAY FAILS TO SHATTER RECORD FOR ¾-MILE

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Joie Ray of the Illinois Athletic Club, Chicago, failed in an attempt to better the world's record for the three-quarter-mile run at the New York Athletic Club games here today. Ray, whose time was 3m 4 1-5s, two seconds slower than the record, finished second to Mike Devanney of the Millrose A. C., who had a handicap of 22 yards. The record was made on the same track 24 years ago by Tommy Conneff of the Y. M. C. A.

60 Women Golfers Expected to Enter City Tournament

Mrs. Scudder and Mrs. Terry Will Be First Pair to Tee Off Tomorrow.

It is expected that between 60 and 70 women golfers will tee off at the Ridgedale Country Club tomorrow morning when the women's city championship golf tournament starts under the auspices of the St. Louis District Golf Association. The entries received up to yesterday noon totaled 48 and the committee expects that this number will be materially increased. A beautiful and appropriate array of prizes has been provided for the contests that have been arranged for the week, and, judging from the list of well known and new golfers who have entered, the events should prove close and extremely interesting.

MME. PATTI, PRIMA DONNA, DIES IN WALES

Born in 1843, She Reigned for Forty Years as Queen of Singers.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Adelina Patti, the prima donna, died this morning at Craig-y-Nos Castle, Penycae, South Wales.

Mme. Adelina Patti reigned for 40 years as queen of singers.

Her marvelous voice thrilled the greatest contemporaries of her day. The elder Dumas, the French dramatist, once said to her:

"Being a man and a Christian, I love to listen to your singing; but if I were a bird I would die of envy."

"She had tones so beautiful," said one eminent musical critic, "that they seemed to gush spontaneously from the very fountain-spring of vocal youth."

Mme. Patti inherited her talent.

"I am a child of the stage," she said, "being born during an operatic season at Madrid, Spain, in 1843. My father, Salvatore Patti, a Sicilian, was a good tenor singer. My mother, a Roman, became a famous artist as Signora Barili—the name of her first husband."

Dwindling finances sent the Patti family to New York when Adelina, whose birth name was Adela Juana Maria Patti, was a baby. When she was 7 years old, her parents suddenly became destitute.

"In the emergency," the singer said, "my mother considered that I had extraordinary vocal talent, and hit upon the idea of bringing me out in concert. And so I sang and soon won bread for the family."

Appears as Child in New York.

The child made her debut at Tripler Hall, in New York, singing arias from the "Barber," in 1850. She was the prodigy of the day, and nearly ruined her voice by overwork. She appeared again at the age of 13. After a tour through the West Indies ,she withdrew to prepare for a greater career.

At the age of 16 she appeared in the Academy of Music, New York, in her first opera role, "Lucia di Lammermoor." Her wonderful soprano roused the audience to the wildest enthusiasm, and her fame swept the country. At this time she was earning $100 a week.

She repeated her conquest as Amina in "La Sonnambula" in Covent Garden, London, in 1861. Her salary had increased to $750 a month.

It was the beginning of a dazzling conquest of all Europe. Royalty entertained her and courted her favors. The populace besieged her hotels and theaters. Men in all stations of life wooed her, but she brushed thm aside with a laugh and trill. She finally capitulated at the age of 25 to Henri, Marquis de Caux, equerry to Napoleon III. They separated after a few years, Mme. Patti finally obtaining a divorce in 1885 to marry Signor Ernesto Nicolini, an Italian tenor singer.

Received $5000 a Night.

Her first American tour began in 1881—her last in 1903. She was greeted by a magnificent ovation when she made her first appearance in opera in the New York Academy of Music, the scene of her girlish triumph of 20 years before. She was at the height of her career, and became the musical sensation of the winter. The following year she sang at the newly opened Metropolitan Opera House. Her guaranteed salary was $5000 a night—and it was paid, for Mme. Patti invariably refused to appear until the money was in her possession.

Mme. Patti held the record as a box-office star in operatic circles. When she appeared at a matinee concert in Mechanic's Hall in Boston in 1888, she faced an audience which had paid $18,900 to hear her. During a single tour through South America she received in salary and bonuses more than $300,000. It has been estimated that she earned more than $5,000,000 during her singing career.

Last Appearance at 65.

She made her final professional appearance at the age of 65 in London. Her last days were passed in Wales at her beautiful castle, "Craig-y-Nos," with her third husband, Baron of Cederstrom, whom she married in 1899, a year after the death of Niccolini.

Mme. Patti is reputed to have left an estate valued at more than $3,000,000.

9705 VOTERS REGISTERED FOB SCHOOL TAX ELECTION NOV. 11

156,302 Were on Election Rolls in April; Polls Will Be Open for Revision Oct. 17.

It was stated yesterday at the office of the Board of Election Commissioners that 9705 voters registered for the special school tax election Nov. 11, at the 500 precincts of the city, one of the smallest numbers in recent years. The registrations were new voters and voters who had changed their addresses since the last registration, which occurred in preparation for the aldermanic election in April of this year. At that time there were 156,302 names on the election rolls.

Clerks will at once begin canvassing with the old registration lists, and will send cards to persons who have moved, but who did not register Thursday. The polls will be open for revision of errors on Oct. 17. Persons eligible to register Thursday who failed to do so must apply at the city hall for transference of their names to their new precincts.

BUILDING LABORERS RETURN TO WORK

Seven Men Will Be Chosen to Arbitrate Differences, Representative of Men Says.

The building laborers, approximately 2500, who went on strike Sept. 15 for an increase in wages, and caused suspension of work on all large buildings under construction, returned to work yesterday, following a vote taken Friday on the question of submitting their grievance to arbitration.

Charles H. Janner, business agent of Local No. 162, said the men would be represented by three arbitrators, and the Master Builders' Association by three, the six to select a seventh man. This body will make a survey of living costs and endeavor to adjust the men's wages accordingly, Janner said.

The strike resulted from a refusal of the employers to open the contract they had with the laborers for an adjustment of wages. The contract does not expire until March 1, 1920. After striking the men demanded a uniform wage of 75 cents an hour for all. The contract scale provides for 33 1-3 to 60 cents an hour.

The laborers' unions were suspended from the Building Trades Council for violation of their written agreement with the builders, two days after the strike became effective. Janner said they would likely be reinstated.

NO SOVIETISM AT U. S. ARSENAL

Ordnance Chief Tells House Committee About System at Rock Island.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—"The Rockefeller Jr. plan" of employes' organization is in use in the Rock Island arsenal, Major-General C. C. Williams, Chief of the Army Ordnance Division told the House Military Affairs Committee today. He denied that Sovietism had been installed or that the employes control the plant.

"They are allowed shop committees and a general committee which acts as a medium for discussion of conditions with the commandant at the arsenal. The latter's judgment is final on the conduct and operation of the plant. The organization of the employes gives the Government opportunity to discuss working and living conditions with the men to the end that improvement and betterment can be made wherever possible," said Gen. Willliams. "Work hours and wages are not adjusted by such conferences."

BURNS SAYS RADICALS WILL FAIL IN AMERICA

Head of International Detective Agency Visits St. Louis to Attend Bankers' Meeting.

William J. Burns, head of the international detective agency which bears his name and among other activities furnishes the protective machinery for the American Bankers' Association, and who is here for the bankers' convention, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter at Hotel Statler yesterday that while fully conscious of the unrest and its effect on crime, he is confident that the country will emerge from the reconstruction period stronger and more united than ever.

The activities of ultra-radicals who would substitute the Lenine-Trotzky conception of government for the American ideals will, he confidently predicts, end in due season, through a vigorous law-enforcement policy, that will drive from the country the foreign propagandists urging sovietism, syndicalism, communism and various other violent substitutes for constitutionalism. He is also confident that the American labor organizations will never consent to the passing of their federations and unions to the control of the extremists, who would turn over the entire system of government.

"The unrest, quite naturally, has increased the volume of crime pretty much everywhere, but the police departments are gradually getting things in better shape in all the cities where the growth has been most notable," he said. "The work of the departments now is proceeding along lines that promise good results. After all, the most healthful sign is the temperament of the sensible, patriotic people, who are vastly in the majority among the so-called working classes, as they are among nearly all our elements of citizenship.

Agitators Are in Minority.

"The agitator who wants to stir up riot where others, but not himself, might get hurt, is a very inconsiderable part of the whole, and the various police departments will be able to take care of those whose notion is to take advantage of the unrest to resort to robbery and larceny.

"Aside from the awakened public sentiment directed against the propagandists, there is much reason for gratification in the emphatic and intelligent policy of the Government indicated in the case of Emma Goldman and Berkmann. Such people do not belong here, and those who preach the same doctrine will, there is good reason to believe, be disposed of in the same manner. Russia may welcome such agitation, but it cannot become popular here."

Burns, who has been a secret service man for more than 30 years, lived in St. Louis from 1889 until 1894, when he had charge of the Treasury Department's work in this district. In this assignment he worked on many counterfeiting cases and other crimes coming within range of his department, and went from here to Washington in the same field of service, where he remained until 1906, serving the Department of Justice part of the time in running down land swindlers. He worked later on the San Francisco graft exposures and achieved world-wide prominence, through his success in developing the testimony in this celebrated prosecution. This work completed he established an agency of his own, and in time took over the task of looking after the interests of the American Bankers' Association, involving many a chase after forgers, check raisers and other high-grade criminals, who prey on the banks of the country.

While here, he will speak at a meeting of the Rotary Club, and will keep in close touch with the convention during its sessions. While he has not been specially assigned to speak on any phase of the banking business, he will be ready to impart any information dealing with the necessity of protecting the banks against all classes of swindlers, who employ the old and the newer games in their operations.

GIRL COPYIST HIT BY AUTO

Miss Frances Loehner, 20 years old, a copyist, 3451 California avenue, was struck by a motor truck driven by Raymond E. Garrett, 3550 Pine street, as she was crossing Broadway at Washington avenue at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

She was knocked down and suffered probable internal injuries and a fractured shoulder. She was taken to the city dispensary and then to her home. Garrett was arrested.

3 to Take Annapolis Examinations.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Representative Newton of St. Louis has nominated the following St. Louisans as principals eligible for the naval academy at Annapolis on passing the entrance examinations: Nelson Osnoss, 4557A Chouteau avenue; Walter Edward Remmers, 1101 Dover place, and Martin Henry Waters, 5828 Plymouth avenue.

ENGLISHMAN, HERE, TALKS ABOUT LABOR

Member of Parliament Says Unions Must Not Be Allowed to Get Too Much Power.

Sir Ellis W. Hume-Williams, lawyer and member of Parliament, whose stated purpose of a tour of the United States is the propagation of a hand-in-hand future for England and America, spoke yesterday at the City Club, departing from his theme briefly to discuss some aspects of labor unrest.

He declared that the one essential of prosperity is production. "When anything slows production," he said, "the danger signal is up, and disaster is ahead. The moment the demands of labor on any industry affects production, labor must be taught to stop and must return to its harmonious combination with capital.

"Trade unions are useful bodies, but they remain useful only so long as they do not become intoxicated with a knowledge of too much power. Never must they be permitted to invade the service of the State."

Here he recited the incidents of a recent strike of London police at the conclusion of which all strikers were refused their old positions. "That is the way to treat trade unionism when it invades the forces of the state," he said.

After reciting the natural elements of race, language and custom which might be expected to cement England and America, he declared the task of "remaking the world" to be the joint task of the Anglo-Saxon nations.

He declared that the manner of its performance were set out in a document which he declared to be the "greatest thing written in the English language," thereupon reciting the preamble of the American Declaration of Independence.

TEACHERS' UNION REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN ORGANIZED

New Organization Said to Have a Charter in American Federation of Teachers.

In public school and labor circles it was reported yesterday that 307 of the 340 high school teachers of St. Louis had formed a labor union with a charter in the American Federation of Teachers, which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. The slogan said to have been adopted is: "Democracy in Education; Education for Democracy."

Teachers refused to discuss the report. It is known that several members of the Board of Education have been much opposed to such an action, and Superintendent Withers has publicly urged the teachers not to follow such a course.

Teachers in other large cities are already organized, there being more than 100 chapters in the organization. Grade teachers here have formed an association, and have told of being invited to join the American Federation of Teachers.

Superintendent of Instruction Withers said he had not been advised of the formation of a union of high school teachers, but said he knew a committee of teachers in the high schools, appointed by the president of an organization they formed last year, in which the membership was restricted to instructors in the high schools, had been considering for some time an affiliation with the American Federation of Teachers.

BIG DAILIES URGED TO CURTAIL WHILE PAPER SHORTAGE EXISTS

Missouri Press Association Proposes Elimination of Sunday Features and Magazine Sections.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 27.—The Missouri Press Association, at its closing session here today, adopted a resolution appealing to the publishers of all the large daily newspapers of the State to dispense with the publication of feature and magazine sections on Sundays until the crisis in the paper shortage situation is passed.

The association also indorsed the present zone postal system.

FARM CONGRESS CRITICISES UNION LABOR FOR DEMANDS

Resolutions Say It Is Demanding More Production by Farmer and Less by Its Members.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 27.—Protesting that organized labor is "demanding more production of the farmers, while demanding of its members less production," delegates to the International Farm Congress late today went on record as deploring strikes except in "grave emergency" and opposing the unionization of policemen and other peace officers.

The resolutions also demanded Legislative action to adjust the difference in prices between producer and consumer, condemned "the growing tendency toward idleness among all classes of people," and opposed Government ownership of railroads. Pledging themselves to continue to produce in amounts to meet any emergency, the delegates, representing 25 states and seven foreign nations, expressed in the resolutions a belief "that the obligation of labor to society is not less than that of the farmer."

Senator Arthur Capper of Topeka, Kan., was elected president of the congress, which then adjourned. Kansas won first prize for the best display by nation, State or province, with Manitoba second and Oklahoma third.

Two Aviator Lieutenants Killed.

BOYD BUILDING TO BE A BIG SHOW WINDOW

The Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Co. has completed a deal for the erection of a six-story building at the southwest corner of Olive and Sixth streets, on a site 87x154 feet, which, it is announced, will include several innovations for mercantile business. The company has also leased the first two floors and basement of the building to the Boyd-Richardson's Apparel Co.

The building is to be erected for George F. Tower Jr., who holds a 99-year lease on the property, which is owned by the Nulson estate and has also acquired the 99-year lease on the DeMun property adjoining the Nulsen site on the south, the DeMun estate being represented by the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. The ground rent on the property is $42,000 a year. The leasehold owned by Tower, together with the building, cost $430,000 and is valued at $700,000, making the total amount involved in the transaction $1,540,000. The Boyd-Richardson lease is at $80,000 for five years, $82,500 for the ensuing five years and $85,000 for the last five. Plans and specifications for the building are being prepared by T. P. Barnett Co., architects.

This transaction shows the wonderful growth of St. Louis realty values during the past 30 years, as the Nulsen property, bordering 87 feet on Olive street and 57 feet on Sixth street, was bought by him about 30 years ago for $20,000, and his ground rent during the last 15 years has been $22,000 annually.

The Boyd Building, as it will be known, will be of the latest pattern in commercial retail architecture. It will be constructed with the maximum of plate glass surface and minimum of pier surface. The architects, T. J. Barnett Co., have confined themselves to the utilization of all show space possible on both fronts. The structure will be a huge show window, a glittering mass of polished plate glass and white terra cotta.

Special attention has been given to the lighting of both show windows and the interior of the store. The elevator service has also been carefully considered for the requirements of the tenant. Space has been conserved and the structure so designed that the maximum selling space has been completed utilized.

TWO GARAGE PROPERTIES ADDED TO HOLDINGS OF VITO VIVIANO

Two additional purchases have recently been made by Vito Viviano, president of the Viviano Bros. Macaroni Co., one being the Clardel garage on the north side of Delmar avenue between DeBaliviere and Clara avenues. The lot is 100x157 feet, and the building covers the entire site. The property, owned by Culver, was sold for him by Frank Obear to Viviano, represented by James C. Campbell of the Paul Jones Realty Co.

The other sale was of the garage at 6610 Delmar avenue, and was made for John Forster. The lot is 50x174 feet. Campbell represented both interests in the transaction.

The Viviano brothers have during the past 60 days made four purchases on Delmar avenue, investing approximately $200,000.

RAMONA HEIGHTS TRACT BEING PREPARED FOR SPECIAL SALE

C. O. McCasland has a large force of men at work on his Ramona Heights tract, preparatory to a special sale to be held in a few days.

This tract lies on Natural Bridge avenue, a few blocks west of the new General Motors automobile factory. A large part of it is covered with oaks and other forest trees, and McCasland is using the utmost care to preserve every one of them, even though a street has to swerve a little to miss some of them.

He is grading and oiling streets, putting in concrete walks and water mains, and putting the tract generally into high-class condition for homes.

BOSTWICK TO TELL ADVERTISING MEN HOW LIBRARY CAN HELP

Arthur E. Bostwick, librarian of the St. Louis Public Library, will speak on "How the Library Can Assist the Publicity Man" at a meeting of the Junior Advertising Club, to be held at the Statler Hotel Tuesday evening.

J. Vincent Corrigan, president of the Junior organization, will give his impressions of the Advertising Men's Convention held at New Orleans last week, and to which he was a delegate.

SALESMEN TAKE OVER SHAFTSBURY HEIGHTS

The Balson Realty and Building Co. announces that it has engaged H. E. Prettyman, a subdivision specialist, who has associated with him T. A. Knobeloch and B. T. Ashly, to conduct a sales campaign on its subdivision, known as Shaftsbury Heights, located in University City. A sales organization of 40 men is now in the field and big results are looked for.

The Balson Company is in a position to furnish building loans and also to build the homes, and several bungalows are to be erected in a short time.

A downtown office has been opened at 731 Chestnut street, where a general real estate business will be conducted.

The old price will prevail for the next 30 days.

Shaftsbury Heights was laid out by the late W. L. Balson, who foresaw the growth of the city and staked his claim accordingly. He was a factor in the upbuilding of residential St. Louis and was among the first to recognize the advantages of Delmar boulevard and Hamilton avenue for a business and amusement center of the first water. The Balson Building, at the northeast corner of Delmar and Hamilton, was erected by him.

SAFEGUARDING OF CHECKS AND WILLS DEALT WITH IN SERVICE

The September issue of Service, the monthy publication of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., contains seven interesting articles on finance and fiduciary matters. One of these, entitled "Guarding Your Checks," describes the precautions which should be taken to protect checks and how they should be drawn to assist the bank in safeguarding it.

Another article, entitled "Being of Sound Mind," discusses the necessity of making a will while in good health. "The law does not require a man to make a will, but when a will is made during bodily illness or immediately following some severe accident, there is always the possibility that it may be alleged that the testator's physical condition had affected his mind," it is stated.

The publication is distributed free and a copy may be had upon request.

SMALL BUT BEAUTIFUL HOME TRACT OFFERED

The Broadway Savings Trust Co. has just placed on the market a beautiful tract on the south side of Clayton road, opposite Hi-Pointe, which is exciting decided attention from both homeseekers and investors.

It comprises 40 lots, on 20 of which construction of homes has been started. The homes are offered for sale from the plans, while the lots, of which only 20 remain unsold, are offered at a low level of prices, with a view to their quick absorption.

The surface improvements are of the same type as those of Hi-Pointe and are included in the prices at which the ground is offered. Imposing gates have been designed for both ends of this tract, while beautiful trees have been set out. The property is reached by the new City Limits car line, as well as by the Market street cars.

Charles De Largy, real estate officer of the trust company, is directing the sale.

NEW REALTY COMPANY STARTS WITH PROMISE

The Clara-Bella Realty Co. has been incorporated with Fred J. Mueller as president and Bernard Marshall secretary, and has taken a ground-floor office at 20 North Twelfth street, to conduct a general realty and financial agency.

Mueller was successfully engaged in the wholesale liquor business for more than 30 years and was also identified with the wholesale shoe business for several years. Incidentally, he has operated individually in the St. Louis real estate market for many years on a large scale and is said to be thoroughly conversant with the real estate situation in St. Louis and suburbs, especially as to values. He has a wide acquaintance among property owners and accordingly has begun his new activities under auspicious conditions.

Marshall also was engaged in the wholesale liquor business and has been identified more or less with Mueller in his numerous real estate enterprises.

Both have the aggressiveness and resources essential to the conduct of a general realty and financial business.

HEATH COMPANY'S SALES RECORD FOR WEEK IS 11 PROPERTIES

The Chauncey P. Heath Real Estate Co. reports a very active business during the past week, having negotiated 11 sales, consisting of flats and residences in all parts of the city and having made loans aggregating $33,000. The total of sales was $67,650. The company reports a very active market, with fair prices prevailing.

MOVING PICTURE HOUSE FOR SOUTH GRAND AVENUE PLANNED

Plans have been announced for a moving picture theater to be erected at Grand and Virginia avenues. A one-story building is contemplated. It is to comprise a theater with a steating capacity of 1600, a hall for dancing, and stores.

NEW REALTY COMPANY OPENS OFFICE AT 1006 CHESTNUT ST.

The Ratcliff Realty & Investment Co., recently incorporated, has opened a ground-floor office at 1006 Chestnut street.

In addition to buying and selling real estate, the company will handle loans, rents and insurance.

Shine Home From Eastern Visit.

A. J. Shine, manager of the rental and leasing department of the Edward L. Bakewell Agency, has returned from an extensive visit to Eastern cities, where he made a specialty of studying apartments and the rental situation. He states that he found the same condition of high rentals and scarcity of homes at all the centers visited.

Compton Heights Home Listed.

No. 3463 Longfellow boulevard has been listed for sale with the Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Real Estate Co. It is one of the most attractive homes in Compton Heights.

Goldstein Closes Several Deals.

Ely Goldstein of Goldstein-Dubinsky, with offices in the International Life Building, concluded a number of substantial deals for investment properties during the week. The purchasers in several instances were non-residents attracted by the future of this city.

APARTMENTS

THE BRANSCOME APARTMENT HOTEL

5370 Pershing Avenue

The above building is now nearing completion and the remaining suites are rapidly being taken. The furnished apartment which is on exhibition has been crowded with visitors and we feel very gratified at the many complimentary expressions that have been made in reference to the floor plans and interior arrangement and the elegance of the furnishings. By the way, while on the subject of furnishing—will say this building was furnished throughout by a St. Louis firm, Stix, Baer & Fuller, in competition with Marshall Field and Mandell Bros. of Chicago, and some of the best-known Eastern decorators.

For the information of the public and those who have not as yet visited the building, will say we are erecting one of the finest buildings of its type in the country. One wing of the building is given over entirely to furnished hotel suites, one and two rooms, including dressing room, living-room and outside bathroom. The balance of the building given over to kitchenette apartments, furnished or unfurnished. These include living-room, dressing room, outside bath, breakfast room and kitchenette. Fans on the roof are used by direct ventilation to exhaust all fumes and odors in the kitchen. Other apartments have additional sun rooms or bedrooms.

The building will have a high-class cafe on the first floor, together with spacious lobby, ladies' parlor and gentlemen's smoking room.

No money has been spared to give the people of St. Louis a building that will rank among the first for convenience and comfort.

Those wishing suites should make application without delay.

CHASE ULMAN.

Constructed After the Latest Methods of Fire-Proof Construction.

Seven Industries Alone Are Bringing 50,000 People to St. Louis

There are 4000 other separate manufacturing industries increasing their output—putting on more employes—bringing more families to the city.

All of which means a tremendous increase in values of West End property.

MEN—WOMEN—

Put every dollar you can in West St. Louis Real Estate and let the tremendous growth of St. Louis make profits for you.

$200 to $500 Will Be Made on Every Lot in

BEAUTIFUL VINITA

The "Little California of the Close-In Suburbs"
Buy Every Vinita Lot You Can Carry

Vinita is one of St. Louis' most rapidly growing suburbs and good profits will be made out of lots by fortunate owners.

It is close to the amusement center at Delmar and Hamilton.

Take your surplus money and put it into Vinita lots—at least put $10 a month into a Vinita lot and let the growth of the city make profits for you, then take that profit and put it into other St. Louis lots and in this way build up an estate. You can easily make money now out of St. Louis' wonderful growth. It's an opportunity of a lifetime.

Come to Vinita Today

Drive out Page avenue to where the Creve Coeur and Page avenue extension lines join—or drive out Olive Street road, then north on either Hanley or Spring avenues to Vinita. You'll enjoy visiting Vinita today.

Phone Olive 535 or Central 537, or come in for interesting, instructive illustrated folder, showing 16 wonderful pictures and giving facts about St. Louis. Send one to your out-of-town friend.

The Davis Realty Development Co.
816 Olive Street

Our Branch Office at Delmar and Kingshighway, opposite Washington Hotel, will be open afternoons and evenings until 9 o'clock, showing valuable suggestions for both the higher-priced Maryland Terrace homes and Vinita bungalows and semi-bungalows.

Do You Want to Sell Your 7 or 8 Rm. House

In Washington Heights, Ames Place, Hillcrest or University City?

I have at least a dozen cash buyers for small homes in the above districts.

It is a known fact that I have one of the largest rent lists of residence property in St. Louis, and now these tenants are daily coming to me to purchase homes.

This, together with the 25 years' reputation that I have as a sales agent of first-class residences, has brought me more buyers than I have suitable houses to offer.

Isn't this of value to you?

J. L. EPSTEIN, 617 Chestnut st. Main 2192.

Residences Wanted

We have a very active demand for residences at a fair price. If yours is for sale, list it with us.

A PRETTY HOME

For you—you can't tell what it is unless you see it—do so today. Take Creve Coeur car to Overland, walk west on Milton av. ½ block to Hawthorne, west a few steps. Ask for Mr. Koewing. You'll feel at home in this 5-room place. All conveniences; lot 100x180.

neither pretentious nor TOO modest, on the Denny road near Kirkwood. An ordinary place that some way or other conveys the impression that everything about it "grew up" right along with the restful forest trees that surround the house.

Yet, that's probably just what makes it EXTRAORDINARY. So little of the ARTIFICIAL, so much of the NATURAL.

The house itself has eleven cheerful rooms, an unusually large sleeping porch—a delightful conservatory. It is modern to the smallest detail and close to street car and trains.

There are chicken houses, a garage, ample outbuildings, a tennis court, lots of bearing fruit trees, vegetable and flower gardens and EVERYTHING one would expect to find in a well thought out country home.

The price is low—a sacrifice. For inspection Sunday, phone Kirkwood 380 or see PAUL JONES REALTY CO., Wainwright Bldg.

COTTAGE—For sale, 345 Horn, 3-room brick, lot 100x143; $22 monthly; may be rented immediately for $14. Inquire there. Cottage with 50 or 100 feet front; near 9700 S. Broadway, $16 to $20 monthly; rent it for $14; 200x121 lot, with water, gas, sewer; $10 monthly; no cash; exchange considered. Maack 1742 Chouteau.

BUNGALOW—For sale; nice, 4 rooms; all large rooms, all conveniences; 100-foot lot, near school; lots of trees. Take Creve Coeur car to Overland, walk south to Ritenour School, then west to second house. Mrs. Biedenstein there will show her father's place. Be sure to see this place. (c)

DWELLING—For sale, 6-room brick dwelling, all conveniences; near St. Charles line; garage; lot 125x300; worth $7500; price $6500.

CHARMING

ALSO VERY CHEAP.

Wouldn't you like a home built along quaint lines, provided it had all the modern appointments? Nestling among a bower of vines and shrubs and shaded by full-grown trees, and almost hidden from the street, is a lovely house at 134 Gray av., Webster Groves, enjoying the seclusiveness of a big lot and the exclusiveness of a superior residential neighborhood; large veranda and sleeping porch; there are only 8 rooms, but each one is sunny and spacious in proportions; the arrangement is unusual, but of a most pleasing and artistic character; at the same time practical to the last degree; the finish is white enamel throughout; 6-inch wide plank floors and open fireplace lend a quaint touch; in addition to these features the house is equipped with every modern convenience, including a hot-water heating system of a superior efficiency; the lot, 188x283, is beautifully laid out and parked, with a fine kitchen garden and a garage in the rear; you will wonder why such a house is for sale; the answer is simple—the owner's business has compelled him to move out of the State, and for this reason alone he will sacrifice his home for a quick sale for $9000; it will not require more than $3000 cash, the balance can be arranged; absolutely no trade will be considered. This is a bona fide offering for an immediate sale only; one block to school and cars; open today. JAS. C. MORFIT, 807 Chestnut st.

407— Oak st., Webster Groves, 5 and 6 room modern bungalows; $3500 each.

815 E. Big Bend road, Webster Groves; 7-room bungalow; garage; fine lot; 100x180; $5500.

227 Gray av., Webster Groves. This is a strictly superfine little home of 7 rooms, sleeping porch, garage, in the finest kind of shape; $7000.

Northwest corner Beverly and Edwin avs., Glendale; attractive 8-room brick house; big lot; $7000.

Lot 100x160, Webster Park; a sacrifice for $2450.

Owing to circumstances one of my clients is compelled to sell his most comfortable and well-built home place near Kirkwood. The house has 10 large, airy rooms, with hot-water heat, gas, electricity, bath and every city convenience. The grounds consist of 6 acres of beautiful lawns and orchards; fine large barns and other outbuildings; splendidly-built garage for two machines; everything about the place in the finest condition; convenient to electric and steam cars, schools, churches and stores; beautiful surroundings and only 40 minutes' drive to Broadway and Olive. East side Denny road, first house south of the Manchester road. JAS. C. MORFIT, 807 Chestnut st.

IN my opinion there is nothing approaching this offering in Webster Park. The picturesque Kendrick home, 339 Hawthorne av., 11 rooms, hot-water heat, perfect in condition and appointments with lot 175x410, can be had for $15,000. A most unusual opportunity. More ground if wanted. Open. JAS. C. MORFIT, 807 Chestnut St.

GORE, 151 S.—Considered one of the most artistic and really worth-while houses in this section of Webster Groves; 8 rooms and modern to the minute; lot 100x200; garage; this house is offered for the first time; look at it; make your offer direct or through your agent; what I want is quick action. JAS. C. MORFIT, 807 Chestnut st.

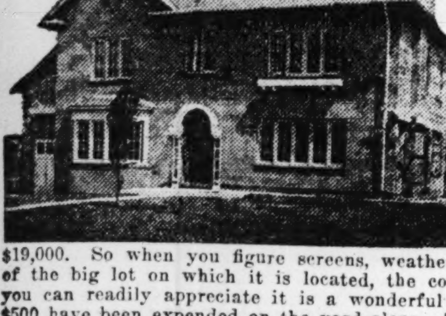
A Wonderful Maryland Terrace Home for Sale

As Beautiful as a Picture, Both Inside and Out



HERE is one of the most beautiful, most attractive, most livable homes in Maryland Terrace. The house has been occupied only one year. The owner has decided to leave the city for a long rest, and we therefore have received instructions (only the last two days) to sell it. The price is $21,000 net. The house cannot be built for less than $19,000. So when you figure screens, weather stripping, fixtures, the cost of the big lot on which it is located, the cost of the shrubbery, sodding, you can readily appreciate it is a wonderful bargain at this price. Over $500 have been expended on the yard alone. The house contains four large bedrooms, with sleeping porch, two baths on the second floor, it has a built-in garage, a beautiful pergola to the east, a living and music room, making a beautiful combination on one side of a wide hall and a large dining room having a nine-foot bay taking up the other side. The kitchen is practically arranged. There is a toilet on the first floor. The house at this price is a good investment, as every year building costs are advancing, to say nothing of the increasing value of the Maryland Terrace ground on which this house is located. This house will sell at $24,000 to $25,000 within one or two years, so great is the demand for homes of this type. The ground is 67½x190 feet, situated on Westmoreland drive in Maryland Terrace.

If you need a home see this one immediately, as hundreds are looking and the home will be on the market only for a few days.

There is no sign board, you can see it only by appointment. Phone Cabany 147W or drive to 7047 Westmoreland and see Mr. Davis, who will show you the house.

SALES MANAGER
$400 TO $1500 MONTHLY.
STATE OR COUNTIES.
Wanted, a man of ability and good standing, to act as distributor. Product sold on money back guarantee. Exclusive territory given, no competition; permanent position. You must be financially able to guarantee minimum output. Secure initial account to promptly fill orders. No stocks, bonds, territory or patent rights for sale.
THE ACID TEST.
Man from factory sent to show you how. Don't guess, investigate. The HUGRO MFG. CO., Dept. 25, Warsaw, Ind.

ATTENTION!
I own a 120-acre lease in the Bartlesville field in Nowata County, Ok., with producing oil wells on all sides; no dry holes; I want between 50 and 100 men, with $100 or more apiece, to raise a drilling fund of $10,000; I am in a position to get three wells drilled for this amount; we can't miss it three times in succession; on the bringing in of the first well we will incorporate under the good old laws of Missouri for $50,000, par value of stock at $1, and divide this stock pro rata amongst the men that raised the money; I am to get no stock, but will retain a one-fourth interest as my part in the production; this will give you fellows the control and you elect your own officers and board of directors and form plans for the further development of the property; the possibilities of this are absolutely unlimited and if you are open for an investment where you will get a real run for your money and have the say so, then get busy and let's talk it over. Box N-177, Post-Dispatch. (c2)

A DOLLAR
Before making a thorough investigation; opportunities now to make big money with little are many, particularly in the oil fields, but be sure you are right. Let the "Oil Press," an authority on oil investments, aid you in making a profitable investment; each issue brimful of authentic information on recent and sensational developments in the great midcontinent and Texas oil fields; the prospects of different companies, as well as analytical reports concerning scores of companies—some good, bad and indifferent. The "Oil Press," together with a late copy of the "Markets," containing quotations of listed and unlisted, active and inactive oil stocks will be sent free on request; also, while they last, a new, accurate colored map of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, just out, featuring the oil fields in red. Address Oil Press, 706 Republic Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

LISTEN TO THIS!
"Desdemona, Tex., Sept. 26, 1919.—Mr. E. L. Owen, St. Louis, Mo.: Success is with us and those that were wise in placing confidence in our trip of investigation are sure to reap a rich harvest in next 60 days. We surely got the pick in this wonderful oil field, after a long search, and in the nick of time. Our 23 acres would bring a fortune today, but we start drilling Oct. 5. Why—last two wells were 1200 and 2400 barrel boys. We are next to them and will get their big brothers. You can dispose of $10,000 of our interest to good fellows, taking 60-day option to buy back at 25 for 1. When you reach that limit and before Oct. 5, QUIT! Need no more. Would not take 100 for 1 when drilling starts; don't waste time with skeptics—live ones only. Invite interested parties to meet you at Mr. Stillwell's office. This Desdemona field has no equal. Very truly,
"C. L. GODLOVE."

WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In loving memory of our dear son, Edward G. Meyer, who died Sept. 26, 1917:

Days of sadness oft come over us
Tears in silence often flow;
Love shall always keep you near us
Though you left two years ago.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, FATHER, SISTERS AND BROTHER.

George C. Tapscott, Company C, 138th Infantry. Killed in action Sept. 28, 1918:
Love shall always keep you near me
Though you left one year ago,
Never shall you be forgotten,
Never from my memory fade.
My memory shall always linger
In No Man's Land where you are laid.
Sadly missed by wife.
MRS. MAE CRAYS TAPSCOTT.

In loving remembrance of my dear husband and our darling father, Conrad Schmitt, who died Sept. 26, 1915.
Our hearts in deep sorrow return to the day
As memory recalls how death bore you away,
And left us in tears, in grief and in woe,
Where we stood by your bed just four years ago.
Sadly missed by his wife, children, grandchildren and sons-in-law.

In loving remembrance of my dear brother, August H. Wilkens, who died Sept. 24, 1915.
Just four years ago you left us,
How we miss you, brother, dear,
You are gone but not forgotten,
By the ones who loved you dear.
Sadly missed by EMMA SCHROEDER AND TERESA KENNARD, Sisters.

"Let there be light," said God, light instant shown
In bursting splendor of the Orient sun.
Let there be life as well as light—and love.
Let there be death; His fiat above.
In youthful innocence thy life has fled,
E'en as the lily droops, too early dead.
In memory of Earl Grassmann, who passed out Sept. 24, 1917.
FATHER, MOTHER AND CHILDREN.

In memory of Corp. John G. Wilcox, Company D, 138th Infantry, beloved son of Mrs. A. R. Wilcox, 4662 Kennerly avenue, who was killed in battle Sept. 26, 1918.

He bravely laid down his life for the cause of his country. His name will ever remain fresh in the hearts of his friends and comrades. The record of his honorable service will be preserved in the archives of the American Expeditionary Forces.—John J. Pershing.

In loving memory of my dear son, Roy E. Brem, Company D, 138th Infantry, who died Sept. 30, 1918, from wounds received in action in the Argonne forest.

He bravely laid down his life for the cause of his country. His name will ever remain fresh in the hearts of his friends and comrades. The record of his honorable service will be preserved in the archives of the American Expeditionary Forces. Sadly missed by his MOTHER AND TWO SISTERS.

In memory of Thomas F. Maher; just one year ago, Sept. 27.
Oh dear Tommie, how I miss you,
None but your mother can tell;
How my poor heart did ache
When you went to Heaven to dwell.
And while on earth I do remain,
I never will be happy
Till we meet in Heaven again.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, FATHER, SISTERS, BROTHERS.

In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, William Scharringhausen, who departed this life Sept. 28, 1918.
When from your cold lips the last sweet kiss you gave.
We realized you had to depart to your cold and lonely grave.
We put you away so lovingly, your wife and children true,
Although we were consoled, we cry many tears for you.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, CHILDREN, GRANDCHILDREN.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

SUBSCRIBER.—President Wilson was a widower 16 months.

E. G.—Apply to the Police Department for a position on the force.

C. D. V.—To set the color in a lawn dress try soaking it in salt water.

J. BROWN.—A janitress does not have to live in the same district as the school in which she works.

LIZZIE.—Inquire at the bank or firm through which the subscription for your Liberty Loan was made.

R. 4 J.—There are 13 different kinds of fox; the most valuable hides at present are the blue and silver.

CRATCHITS.—A dumb waiter is a mechanical device built in the wall for the purpose of passing articles from one floor to another.

ANXIOUS WIFE.—We are not able to tell what division the company belongs to, but it is a veterinary hospital and they were signed for early convoy Aug. 30.

X. Y. Z.—If it is Route No. 1, in the city it is not possible to tell what part of the city the letter came from, but if it is the rural route the letter came from Clayton.

H. M. S.—Living with this man and holding yourselves out as husband and wife is positively not a common law marriage, you not being divorced from your husband; and you so living together under such fact is unlawful and you both may be prosecuted.

P. M. E.—Peroxide will bleach but not remove the growth of hair on your face. Preparations are on the market for removing hair, but the face is a bad place to experiment. If not too bad let it alone, otherwise consult a dermatologist.

I. L. I.—A marriage license can be obtained in Alton, Ill. It will not necessarily appear in the St. Louis papers. The best way to get there is by rail.

JUNO.—A planchette or ouija board is a small board fitted with a pencil and 2 casters, made to move easily over a sheet of paper when hands rest lightly on it. It is believed by many to write automatically and to give information not in the minds of its users. Much of the so-called automatic writing purporting to come from spirits, notably the "Patience Worth" literature, was produced by the aid of this board.

DAILY READER.—Under the facts you state, there could be no question about your common law marriage being other than a valid one. Such being the case you and your children of such marriage are entitled to the same rights as if lawfully wedded, and by his death you and your children certainly do not lose the right to his name and to his estate.

MODISTE.—Consult telephone directory for School of Dressmaking. Invite the friends of the girl for whom you are giving the shower, stating on the invitations that it is to be a miscellaneous shower. If it is to be a surprise upon the girl have the other guests come and bring their presents early. Have them arranged on a table so she will see them when she comes into the room, or you can present them to her in some other way. After she has looked at the presents you can entertain the guests in any way you desire. Serve refreshments.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of my dear son, Richard Thomas Wizeman, who died in Philadelphia Naval Base Hospital, Sept. 27, 1918.
Days of sadness oft come o'er me,
Tears in silence often flow;
Love shall always keep you near me
Though you left one year ago.
Never shall you be forgotten,
Never from my memory fade;
My memories will always linger
In the place where you are laid.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHERS.

In loving memory of our dearly beloved son and brother, Fred W. Blanke, who departed this life Sept. 27, 1918.
One year ago since you left us,
How we miss you, Fred, dear;
You are gone, but not forgotten
By the ones whom you left here.
A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHER.

In loving memory of our dear Walter, brother, nephew, uncle and cousin, Private Walter Rokey, Company I, 138th Infantry, Thirty-fifth Division, who made the supreme sacrifice Sept. 26, 1918, in the battle of the Argonne Forest. He bravely gave his young life for his country at the age of 24 years. May that precious peace be with him—that God alone can grant. We shall never forget our beloved hero who fought so bravely for his country. Sadly missed by SISTERS AND BROTHERS AND ALL WHO KNEW HIM.

In remembrance of our darling daughter, Marie Lang, who passed away Oct. 1, 1917. Out hearts in deep sorrow return to the day, as memory recalls how death bore you away, and left us in tears in grief and in woe when we stood by your coffin two years ago. Two years with all its danger can't take you from our heart; gone in the best of your days. Blighted in womanhood bloom. May that precious peace be with you, that God alone can grant till we meet to dwell forever in that far and unknown land. Sadly missed by PARENTS AND BROTHER. (c)

In loving memory of my dear son, Corp. Paul L. Andreoletti, Company K, 138th Infantry, who died in France Sept. 28, 1918, where he bravely died for his country.
Days of sadness oft come o'er me
Tears in silence often flow;
Love shall always keep you near me.
Though you left one year ago.
Never shall you be forgotten;
Never from my memory fade,
My memories will always linger
In No Man's Land where you are laid.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER AND RELATIVES.

In loving memory of our dear children, Henry Wesemann and Florence Wesemann, who died the 29th of September and the 6th of October, 1918.
One year ago they passed away.
We grieved when they departed;
Time was too short to say farewell
To those they knew and loved so well.
We miss their coming footsteps,
We miss them everywhere,
Home is not what it used to be
Since they are not there.
Sadly missed by
PARENTS, WIFE AND BROTHERS.

In loving memory of my dear husband, Chas. Anson Potter, who died in accident one year ago Sept. 29, 1918:
One year has passed, sad and sudden was the call; I little thought that on that day that my dear husband was called away; I could not realize what was said when the message came that he was dead; day by day I sadly miss him; friends may think the wound is healed, but they little know the grief that within my heart is concealed. He shall never be forgotten, never from my memory fade, loving hearts will always linger around the grave where he is laid. Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN, 2608 N. 21st st.

In memory of Corp. George R. Cochran, Company L, 138th Infantry, Thirty-fifth Division, killed in action in the Argonne battle Sept. 26 1918:
How sacred to the memory and treasured up is the remembrance of the last days which closed the life of our beloved son and brother, who has left us. Whatever else is forgotten, the parting hour, the last word, the last look, is never effaced, the sweet farewell is written in golden letters of love on our memories: he went and joined the band of heroes whose faces were shining from the reflection of the heavenly glory. Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHERS.

In loving memory of our dear son, Corp. Walter M. Blakely of the Machine Gun Company, 138th Infantry, Thirty-fifth Division, who was killed in action Sept. 26, 1918, in the Argonne battle, where he bravely gave his life for his country.
Days of sadness oft come o'er us.
Tears in silence often flow;
Love shall always keep you near us,
Though you left one year ago.
Never shall you be forgotten, Walter dear,
Never from our memories fade;
Our memories will always linger
In No Man's Land, where you are laid.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear cousin, Dorothy Viehmann, who departed this life one year ago, Sept. 24, 1919:
In the graveyard, softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we love so dearly
In her silent, lonely grave.
Peaceful be your sleep, dear cousin;
It is sweet to breathe your name.
In life we loved you dearly
In death we do the same.
Just one year ago you left us;
How we miss you, Dorothy, dear,
And remember all your kindness
As we drop a silent tear.
Sadly missed by her cousins,
LOUISA AND GUSTA.

In loving memory of our daughter, Evelyn Gilliam, who left us Sept. 27, 1917.
A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A chair is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
A loving daughter, true and kind,
Is gone from sight, but not from mind.

We grieved when Evelyn left us,
She bade us all farewell,
We miss her coming footsteps,
We see her vacant chair.
Home is not what it used to be
Since Evelyn is not there.
Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHERS.

In loving memory of our dear little darling, Dorothy Marie Echrich, who departed this life one year ago, Sept. 26, 1918, aged 10 months.
In the graveyard, softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we love so dearly,
In her lonely, silent grave.
Those who saw her in her casket,
Pure and white, and, O, so fair,
Thought she was the light of heaven
As she lay so sweetly there.
Just a year ago she left us—
How we miss you, baby dear;
And remember all your kindness,
As we drop a silent tear.
Sadly missed by parents, grandparents and aunts.
MR. AND MRS. WM. ACHTERMANN AND DAUGHTERS.

In loving memory of my dear son, Corp. Walter G. Witler, Company C, 138th Infantry, Thirty-fifth Division, who was killed Sept. 26, 1918, and who bravely laid down his life for the cause of his country in the battle of the Argonne Forest:
I have longed for you, dear Walter
Through this long weary year.
My heart is filled with sorrow
My eyes bedimmed with tears.
Somewhere in France you are lying.
Maybe under Belgium sod.
What Honor was yours in dying,
For Glory Country and God.
You will never be forgotten.
Never from my memory fade.
My memories will always linger
In No Man's Land, where you are laid.
Sadly missed by your
FATHER, SISTER AND BROTHERS. (c)

In loving memory of my dear sweetheart, Ira A. Rausch, Company I, 138th Infantry, Thirty-fifth Division, who died in France Sept. 30, 1918, where he bravely died for his country:
Days of sadness oft come o'er me;
Tears in silence often flow;
Love shall always keep you near me
Though you left one year ago;
Never shall you be forgotten,
Never from my memory fade;
My memories will always linger in No Man's Land,
Where you are laid.
Sadly missed by his
SWEETHEART AND HER MOTHER, JOSEPHINE HEINTZMAN, AND MRS. FRINTZ, 2413 Thomas.

In loving remembrance of our dear son and brother, Theodore W. Koebel, who departed this life in the service of his country Sept. 25, 1918:
One sad year has passed away
Sad and sudden was the call
For our dear son and brother, loved by all;
We little thought that on that day
Our dear son and brother would be called away:
We could not realize what was said
When the message came that he was dead;
Day by day we sadly miss him;
Friends may think the wound is healed
But they little know the grief
That within our heart is concealed.
He shall never be forgotten:
Never from our memory fade;
Loving hearts will always linger
Round the grave where he is laid.

In loving remembrance of our beloved daughter and only sister, Margaret Fitzgerald, who departed this life three years ago, Sept. 28, 1916.
Our hearts in deep sorrow return to this day
As memory recalls how death bore you away
And left us in tears, in grief and woe,
When we stood by your grave three years ago.

Three years, with all its changes,
Since death strangely bade us part,
But, dear Margaret, all its changes
Cannot take you from our hearts.
Gone in the best of her day,
Blighted in womanhood's bloom,
Gone from the hearts that loved her,
To sleep in a silent tomb.
Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER AND ONLY SISTER.

An anniversary mass was offered for the repose of the soul of Margaret Fitzgerald, Saturday morning, Sept. 27, 1919, at St. Leo's Church, at 6 o'clock.

IN MEMORIAM

REQUIEM FOR OUR BELOVED ONE.

In memory of Frank H. Miller, who departed this life Sept. 24, 1918, mourned by his kin and legions of friends who honored and loved him in life—a tribute from his widow, children and grandchildren:
Peace tonight, beloved spirit:
Pain is overpast.
All the strife with life is ended:
You may rest at last.

The devotion that, amazing,
Welled from out the deep,
Of your being, no more needed,
Quiet you may sleep.

Sleep, who, giving all for others
Battled till victory nigh,
You, too, toil and heart-break over,
Had the right to die.

A STORE MANAGER WANTED.

Do you feel satisfied with the future prospects of your present position? We have an opening for a man of not over 35 years of age, preferably with mercantile experience in a retail store, who is desirous of a future and will work hard to learn the business and prepare himself to manage a retail store, in which his future opportunity will be limited only by his executive ability to develop a sales force to do volume and get profits.

We will not consider the man with the present thought of immediate big expectations for little effort, which will not accomplish permanency.

We are willing to put the investment into the man who has been to the front and gone through active service, who from experience knows the effort which must be put into his work to gain results. We will pay a fair amount during period of training—there is no limit to the future opportunity.

In application state age, if married, listing names of former employers with length of service and salary; also state church preference. Box C-55, Post-Dis.

An Earnest Talk With Salesmen

In this little ad we want to tell you some of the possibilities for salesmen in our business, something about our organization, the way it is energetically pushing for business, and something about the type of men now associated together in the sales department.

Our company owns more than a million dollars of the very best West St. Louis improved suburban property. Every lot is reasonably priced, and will not only make a good site for a home, but each lot is going to rapidly increase in value.

St. Louis has been made by the great war just ending. Gigantic industries are now here; many larger industries are coming. Just as the big cities of England, following the Franco-German war, doubled in population, so will St. Louis following this war become one of the world's largest cities.

This means that investors in good West St. Louis property can make a lot of money.

This brings us to our proposition. Salesmen going into this phase of the real estate business, concentrating on the sale of suburban property for homes and for investment, can make from $50 to $300 a week. It does not necessarily take experience.

Here we have trained sales managers, good closers—men who know the business thoroughly, who will close your business for you. We will teach you the business, assist you in getting prospects, work with you, furnish you automobiles to show the properties.

If you get into the business at this time you can make a lot of money, so that within a few years you can be in good shape financially.

And making money is more a matter of the business you are in than ability. You yourself possibly know of men who seem to have less ability than you who are making more money. Why? It is because they have the nerve that goes with judgment. They are not afraid to try something new when they see something that means a big thing for them.

Come and talk to one of our general managers. Meet the men in this organization who are doing big things. Learn exactly what we have to offer and what it means to you in dollars and cents to be associated with an organization of this kind. See how easily you can make $5000 to $10,000 a year instead of $2000 to $4000.

We want you to see this organization at work. You too will catch the spirit once you realize the possibilities for you. Ask for the General Manager.

HELP WTD.—MISCELLANEOUS

HERE IS THE PROOF!

We have on different occasions pictured the advantages that are waiting progressive, aggressive young men and women in this institution. As the saying goes, "The Proof of the Pudding Is in the Eating"—so, too, the proof of what we have said lies in the following:

A canvass of our store shows that of ninety executives filling the most important positions in this institution, fifty are men and women who began their business career with this store, and in every instance, either in the capacity of a cash girl, salesgirl, stock boy or salesman.

Opportunity Today Is as Great as Ever

What any one of these fifty men and women have done, you can do, too. We have positions for experienced and inexperienced salespeople. Come down and talk over the prospects with our Superintendent. His office is located on the Main Floor Balcony.

Overland USED CAR DEPT

Big Sacrifice Sale of Used Cars

Removal Sale of Used Cars. We will remove our Used Car Department to our old quarters at 2311-15 Locust Street in the very near future, and in order to start there with a clean slate, we will make a sweeping reduction in the price of our present stock of Used Cars.

Every car is in first-class condition and will be an extraordinary bargain. Each car will be tagged and priced at the lowest possible price. Whether you have an old car to trade, pay cash, or buy on time, the price on the tag goes.

We have variety enough to fill any person's wants. The quality and prices speak for themselves.

In addition to almost every Overland Model since 1915, we have:

Chalmers	Cadillac
Studebaker	Reo
Oakland	Regal
Halliday	Haynes
Empire	Maxwell
Velie	Chevrolet
Packard	Ford
Jackson	Mitchell
Oldsmobile	Stutz

Car-Bon-Ale

KNOCKS THE KNOCKS

And gives you from 25 to 40% more mileage from every gallon of gasoline. Increases power, speed, and positively eliminates CARBON.

Car-Bon-Ale

Is guaranteed to be non-injurious. Is the GASOLINE SAVER and also the CARBON CLEANER. Will not stop the feedpipe. Is soluble.

It's a powerful chemical that will relieve you of the tremendous cost of motive fuel and keep your engine in good, sound sparking condition.

CAR-BON-ALE will positively give you at least one-third more mileage from your gasoline, as the concentrated oils used in CAR-BON-ALE enable the user to allow a little more air to enter into the carburetor, a proof that you will then get more miles per gallon.

Once you use CAR-BON-ALE you will always use it, as it's a wonderful product. Price, $1.00 per can of 100 tablets.

Proposition for live dealers. Here is a practically unlimited field with big profits. Call, write or wire

"SOMETIMES you have to go outside to get inside information." Come "inside;" we will give you all the "outside information in regard to the "High Cost" of Clothes. Buy our uncalled-for clothes. We have "released" hundreds of fine suits that will "dress you up." There is no time in life that you get so "down and out" that you can't get into the "Land of Beginning Again;" "Start anew;" we "Are Calling You" with our 5 large stores, 120 feet, filled with "bargains galore." If we don't get your "money for clothes here you don't spend your "dough" right. What you "save when you spend your dough is your profit." "Install the Abrams' System" of clothes-buying and save. Dress up, look prosperous. Don't go around looking "down and out." For 10 years we have saved thousands of dollars for the clothes-buying public. Be "awake" to the "fact" your personal appearance "must count." We have "placed on sale" hundreds of suits, pants, coats and vests, which means a big saving to you. We have in "store" for you high-class suits; you can afford to wear two or three suits a season for the price of the customary one by purchasing our uncalled-for garments from our cleaning department; garments are tailor-made and from the best manufacturers. Can you wear 34, 36, 38, 43, 40, 46 to 50 sizes? Also English and plain models, $7.50 to $15. Vests, 25c; pants, $2 to $3.95; coats, $3 to $6.50; uncalled-for Stetson hats, 95c. Open Sundays until 6 p. m. Abrams Cleaners and Dyers, 926 S. Vandeventer, near Chouteau. Mail orders filled. Both phones. Liberty Bonds accepted.

"WHERE your dollars will bring the limit for clothes." We are helping you to lower the "high cost of living." If there ever was a "time" when a man should make every "dollar" bring the "limit," time is now. We sure will make your dollars bring the limit here. "What the Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop means to you:" These fine garments are made by the manufacturers for display or modeling purposes for traveling salesmen; they are made much better than the regular goods; after they show them off we buy them at a big discount; we give you the benefit of our immense buying capacity; this policy enables us to save you $5.00 to $7.50. We're "lowering" the "high" cost of "living;" we're in a "class" by ourselves; we claim with our "5 big stores" and "our policy of close-to-the-shore profits" "out-of-the-high-rent-district," eliminating all unnecessary expense. Never in the "history" of these "United States" will you "see prices" as "high" as this fall. Don't "tread the old beaten path," where you have spent your money for "friendship" and not for "clothes." We'll sell you clothes "at the price, not friendship." Play the "new game." All we ask of you, "go shopping around" first and come here last, and we will certainly get your "dough." We are the only store in St. Louis showing "real" plain and silk-lined $30 and $35 blue, green, brown flannel waist-line suits at these prices: $19.98, $21.98, $22.98, $24.98 and $27.98. Don't spend "a dollar for clothes" until you see our "fall line." "Pay less; buy more." To the "Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop." Five big stores in one. Vandeventer, Market, Sarah, Manchester, Chouteau and all other lines transfer to our door. "We've got the place, the goods at the price." A "price concession to our returning soldiers." "Sample suits," $16.66, $18.39, $19.45, $21.89. Sample pants, $2.48, $2.58, $3.46, $4.98; tailor-made suits cost up to $35; our price, $19.50, $22.50, $26.75. We again announce our "Trade-in-Sale" Department. We will make you a liberal allowance on your old clothes for new ones. "The place to buy clothes." 926 S. Vandeventer av., near Chouteau. Liberty Bonds accepted. (c)

BARGAINS IN FAMOUS USED PIANOS

In view of the severe shortage of high-grade pianos, we have had our extensive repair shops rebuilding with great care a number of beautiful, select upright pianos. In doing this work, each instrument has been carefully and thoroughly gone over by our experts, new parts put in where needed, regulated, adjusted and tuned, cases finished, and in many instances it would be hard to tell these instruments from actually brand-new. This will enable you to own one of these magnificent pianos at an attractive figure. Easy terms of payment arranged. The following and many others are now ready for your inspection.

ADVERTISMENT

How I Improved My Memory in One Evening

The Amazing Experience of Victor Jones

"Of course I place you! Mr. Addison Sims of Seattle.

"If I remember correctly—and I do remember correctly—Mr. Burroughs, the lumberman, introduced me to you at the luncheon of the Seattle Rotary Club three years ago in May. This is a pleasure indeed! I haven't laid eyes on you since that day. How is the grain business? And how did that amalgamation work out?"

The assurance of this speaker—in the crowded corrider of the Hotel McAlpin—compelled me to turn and look at him, though I must say it is not my usual habit to "listen in" even in a hotel lobby.

"He is David M. Roth, the most famous memory expert in the United States," said my friend Kennedy, answering my question before I could get it out. "He will show you a lot more wonderful things than that, before the evening is over."

And he did.

As he went into the banquet room the toastmaster was introducing a long line of the guests to Mr. Roth. I got in line, and when it came my turn, Mr. Roth asked, "What are your initials, Mr. Jones, and your business connection and telephone number?" Why he asked this, I learned later, when he picked out from the crowd the 60 men he had met two hours before and called each by name without a mistake. What is more, he named each man's business and telephone number, for good measure.

I won't tell you all the other amazing things this man did except to tell how he called back, without a minute's hesitation, long lists of numbers, bank clearings, prices, lot numbers, parcel post rates and anything else the guests gave him in rapid order.

* * * * * * *

When I met Mr. Roth—which you may be sure I did the first chance I got—he rather bowled me over by saying, in his quiet, modest way:

"There is nothing miraculous about my remembering anything I want to remember, whether it be names, faces, figures, facts, or something I have read in a magazine.

"You can do this just as easily as I do. Anyone with an average mind can learn quickly to do exactly the same things which seem so miraculous when I do them.

"My own memory," continued Mr. Roth, "was originally very faulty. Yes it was—a really poor memory. On meeting a man I would lose his name in thirty seconds, while now there are probably 10,000 men and women in the United States, many of whom I have met but once, whose names I can call instantly on meeting them."

"That is all right for you, Mr. Roth," I interrupted, "you have given years to it. But how about me?"

"Mr. Jones," he replied, "I can teach you the secret of a good memory in one evening. This is not a guess, because I have done it with thousands of pupils. In the first of seven simple lessons which I have prepared for home study, I show you the basic principle of my whole system and you will find it—not hard work as you might fear—but just like playing a fascinating game. I will prove it to you."

He didn't have to prove it. His Course did; I got it the very next day from his publishers, the Independent Corporation.

When I tackled the first lesson, I suppose I was the most surprised man in forty-eight States to find that I had learned in about one hour—how to remember a list of one hundred words so that I could call them off forward and back without a single mistake.

"Of Course I Place You! Mr. Adison Sims of Seattle."

The first lesson stuck. And so did the other six.

Read this letter from Terence J. McManus, of the firm of Olcottt, Bonynge, McManus & Ernst, Attorneys and Counselors at Law, 170 Broadway, and one of the most famous trial lawyers in New York:

> "May I take occasion to state that I regard your service in giving this system to the world as a public benefaction. The wonderful simplicity of the method and the ease with which its principles may be acquired, especially appeal to me. I may add that I already had occasion to test the effectiveness of the first two lessons in the preparation for trial of an important action in which I am about to engage."

Mr. McManus didn't put it a bit too strong.

The Roth Course is priceless! I can absolutely count on my memory now. I can call the names of most any man I have met before—and I am getting better all the time. I can remember any figures I wish to remember. Telephone numbers come to mind instantly, once I have filed them by Mr. Roth's easy method. Street addresses are just as easy.

The old fear of forgetting (you know what that is) has vanished. I used to be "scared stiff" on my feet—because I wasn't sure. I couldn't remember what I wanted to say.

Now I am sure of myself, and confident, and "easy as an old shoe" when I get on my feet at the club, or at a banquet, or in a business meeting, or in any social gathering.

Perhaps the most enjoyable part of it all is that I have become a good conversationalist—and I used to be as silent as a sphinx when I got into a crowd of people who knew things.

Now I can call up like a flash of lightning most any fact I want right at the instant I need it most. I used to think a "hair trigger" memory belonged only to the prodigy and genius. Now I see that every man of us has that kind of a memory if he only knows how to make it work right.

I tell you it is a wonderful thing, after groping around in the dark for so many years to be able to switch the big searchlight on your mind and see instantly everything you want to remember.

This Roth Course will do wonders in your office.

Since we took it up you never hear anyone in our office say "I guess" or "I think it was about so much" or "I forget that right now" or "I can't remember" or "I must look up his name." Now they are right there with the answer like a shot.

Have you ever heard of "Multigraph" Smith? Real name H. Q. Smith, Division Manager of the Multigraph Sales Company, Ltd., in Montreal. Here is just a bit from a letter of his that I saw last week:

> "Here is the whole thing in a nutshell: Mr. Roth has a most remarkable Memory Course. It is simple, and easy as falling off a log. Yet with one hour a day of practice, anyone—I don't care who he is—can improve his Memory 100% in a week and 1,000% in six months."

My advice to you is don't wait another minute. Send to Independent Corporation for Mr. Roth's amazing course and see what a wonderful memory you have got. Your dividend in increased earning power will be enormous.

VICTOR JONES.

Send No Money

So confident is the Independent Corporation, the publishers of the Roth Memory Course, that once you have an opportunity to see in your own home how easy it is to double, yes, triple your memory power in a few short hours, that they are willing to send the course on free examination.

Don't send any money. Merely mail the coupon or write a letter and the complete course will be sent, all charges prepaid, at once. If you are not entirely satisfied send it back any time within five days after you receive it and you will owe nothing.

On the other hand, if you are as pleased as are the thousands of other men and women who have used the course, send only $5 in full payment. You take no risk and you have everything to gain, so mail the coupon now before this remarkable offer is withdrawn.

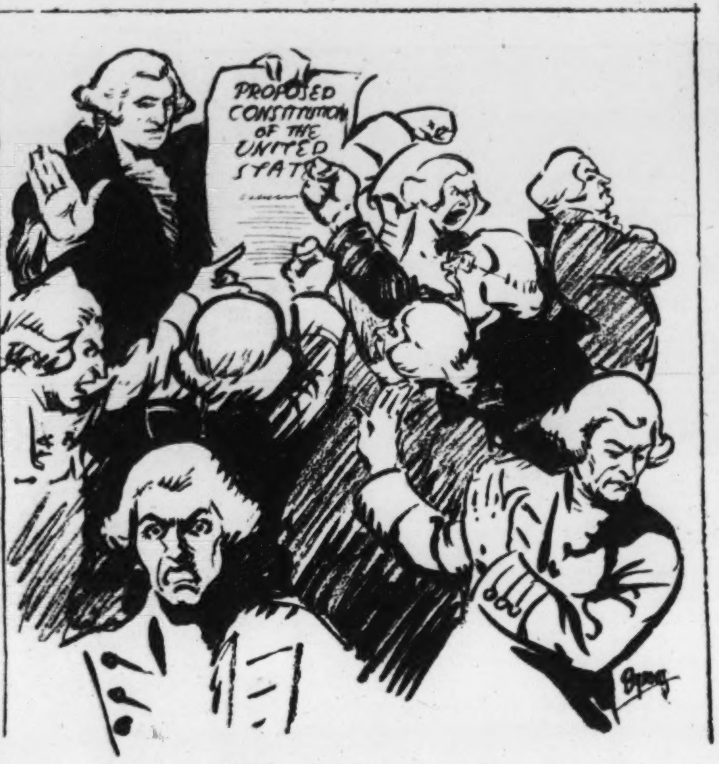
George Washington and the Hiram Johnsons and Henry Cabot Lodges of His Day

Adoption of United States Constitution fought by short-sighted men whose arguments against a league of the colonies read very much like the tirades against the League of Nations today — Foolish fears Washington had to combat :: ::



PROPOSED CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STAT

THE striking parallel has often been pointed out between the adoption of the Constitution of the United States, which created a nation out of 13 incoherent states, and the League of Nations, which seeks to realize Tennyson's vision of "the parliament of man, the federation of the world." But comparatively few of us realize today the intense, bitter and almost hysterical opposition to the new form of government a little more than 130 years ago.

George Washington, the prime mover of the Constitution, also had his Henry Cabot Lodges and Hiram W. Johnsons to contend with. Although the feebleness of the then existing confederation was notorious and had all but brought the American cause to ruin during the war, and although there was imminent peril of anarchy and disintegration, there were found malcontents and nervous persons who prophesied only the direst issues from the new Constitution. One patriot uttered the solemn warning that the Pope of Rome might be elected President. Others declared that the President would promptly make himself a King and the members of Congress would create themselves Lords.

Elbridge Gerry, Gov. Randolph and Mason of Virginia refused to sign the Constitution. Jefferson, Hancock, Samuel Adams, Gov. Clinton of New York, Benjamin Franklin, Nathan Dane, Chase of Maryland and Gen. Sumter hesitated or criticised it. Patrick Henry and Richard Henry Lee fought it with all their power. Even Washington, intensely eager as he was for its adoption, wrote: "I wish the Constitution which is offered had been more perfect, but it is the best that could be obtained at this time, and a door is opened for amendments hereafter."

Though the Constitution was a wonderful achievement, the result of earnest efforts and much concession and compromise, it was, of course, not perfect. It was fiercely attacked in many of the state conventions called to consider its ratification, and some of the speeches against it, as reported in "Eliot's Debates," sound strange in our ears today—as strange as the present violent attacks on the League of Nations may perhaps sound to our descendants a century hence.

For example, in Senator Lodge's State of Massachusetts, Abraham White of Norton thought that Congressmen might perpetuate themselves, and so reign as Emperors over us, and that Congress, with its purse strings in its power, would use the sword with a vengeance. Mr. Symmes vigorously opposed a power to burden the people with a standing army of ravenous collectors, harpies perhaps from another state, who, when Congress should become tyrannical, would be vultures, the tyrants of the village.

Maj. Lusk of West Stockridge shuddered at the idea that popery and the inquisition might be established in America, and Mr. Singletary of Sutton objected that a papist or an infidel would be as eligible to office as Christians. Mr. Holmes thought Congress would have power to institute tribunals little less inauspicious than the Spanish inquisition. Racks and gibbets, he predicted, might be among the mildest instruments of their discipline.

In North Carolina Timothy Bloodworth declared that the Constitution in its present mode must end in the subversion of their liberties; that it was a total repeal of every act and constitution of the states, and would produce an abolition of the state governments. Mr. Lenoir thought it had some aristocratic and some monarchical features and would lead to the most dangerous aristocracy that was ever thought of. Millions yet unborn were concerned. Mr. McDowall said the Senate was most dangerously constructed. "Our lives and property are in the hands of eight or nine men. We are now giving away our dear-bought rights." Henry Abbott called attention to the fears of some persons that they would be deprived of the privilege of worshiping God according to their consciences, and that the new Government might make a treaty to adopt the Roman Catholic religion, and said many supposed that if no religious test were required the Senators and Representatives might all be pagans. As every person holding an office under the Government had to take an oath of allegiance, he brought up the question how and by whom they were to swear, whether by Jupiter, Juno, Minerva, Proserpine or Pluto. A pamphlet was even mentioned in the debate, which declared that there was serious danger that the Pope of Rome might be elected President.

In the Legislature and later in the convention of South Carolina also the Constitution was violently denounced. Rawlins Lowndes sincerely believed that when this new Constitution should be adopted the sun of the Southern States would set never to rise again. This State would dwindle into a mere skeleton of what it was. This, he said, was, on the whole, the best preparatory plan for a monarchical Government he had read. "The Senate, hailing the President a King, will naturally say to one another, 'You see how we are situated. Certainly it is for our country's benefit that we should be all Lords.' And Lords they are." The dangers seemed to him so evident that, when he ceased to exist, he wished for no other epitaph than to have inscribed on his tomb, "Here lies the man that opposed the Constitution, because it was ruinous to the liberty of America."

James Lincoln foresaw first a haughty, imperious aristocracy and ultimately a tyrannical monarchy. Mr. Dollard of Prince Frederick's Parish told the convention that his constituents could never agree to make over to the Congress or any set of men, their birthright, comprised in Magna Charta; that they were highly alarmed at the large and rapid strides which the new Government had taken toward despotism. "They say," said he, "it is big with political mischiefs and pregnant with a greater variety of impending woes to the good people of the Southern states, than all the plagues supposed to issue from the poisonous box of Pandora." "They say they will resist against it, and your standing army, like Turkish janizaries enforcing despotic laws, must ram it down their throats with the points of bayonets."

In New York Mr. Tredwell declared he could not be totally silent, lest lisping babes should be taught to curse his name as a betrayer of their freedom and happiness. "In this Constitution," he said, "our lives, our property and our consciences are left wholly at the mercy of the Legislature, and the power of the judiciary may be extended to any degree short of Almighty. Ought we not to declare that if we cannot be admitted into the Union as freemen, we will not come in as slaves?"

In Pennsylvania it was objected that it was the business of their deliberations to destroy the State governments; that it was an aristocracy, and was intended to be so by its framers.

Finally, in Virginia, the very strong minority was led by Patrick Henry, who fought the Constitution ably, desperately and almost triumphantly. He declared that the rights of conscience, trial by jury, liberty of the press, all their immunities and franchises, all pretensions to human rights and privileges, would be rendered insecure, if not lost, and that if not eight states only but 12 1-2 states had adopted it, he would reject it. In some parts of the plan the great rights of freemen were absolutely taken away. "A standing army we shall have also," he said, "to execute the execrable commands of tyranny. In this scheme of energetic government the people will find two sets of taxgatherers—the State and the Federal Sheriffs. This, it seems to me, will produce such dreadful oppression as the people cannot possibly bear."

"Where are your checks in this Government?" he demanded. "The President in the field, at the head of his army, can prescribe the terms on which he shall reign master. This Government will operate like an ambuscade. It will destroy the state governments and swallow the liberties of the people, without giving previous notice. I trust that I shall see congressional oppression crushed in embryo. As this Government stands, I despise and abhor it."

James Monroe (afterward President) said he thought it a dangerous Government, calculated to secure neither the interests nor the rights of our countrymen. Mr. Grayson believed, as he did his creed, that this Government would operate as a faction of seven states to oppress the rest of the Union, and that there never could be a Southern state admitted. Mr. Mason said it had been wittily observed that the Constitution had married the President and the Senate, had made them man and wife. The Senate and President, he exclaimed, will form a combination that cannot be prevented by the Representatives. This prediction, by the way, does not seem so alarming at the present moment.

In several of the principal states, the division was critically close. In Massachusetts the President of the convention, the politic Gov. Hancock, finally proposed that simultaneously with the ratification of the Constitution they should recommend a series of amendments, "to remove the doubts and quiet the apprehensions of gentlemen," and with this arrangement the Constitution was ratified by a narrow margin of 19 votes—187 to 168. Nine amendments were recommended, and the Massachusetts Representatives in Congress were instructed to exert all their influence and use all reasonable and legal methods to obtain constitutional satisfaction thereof.

Virginia followed the example of Massachusetts and, after refusing by a majority of only eight votes to ratify the Constitution conditionally, finally adopted it outright, and with it a bill of rights and 20 amendments, which they deemed necessary to be recommended to the first Congress assembled under the Constitution. New York ratified "in full confidence" that amendments would be made, defeating by only two votes a resolution of conditional adoption.

Finally, the Constitution was legally adopted, and the first Congress under the new Government met in 1789, and mark what happened: James Monroe had declared positively in the Virginia convention that if they adopted the Constitution unconditionally, it would never be amended. Patrick Henry, Grayson, former Gov. Harrison, all had the same fear, but the first Constitutional Congress took the initiative, and moved by the powerful opposition and widespread demand for changes, themselves adopted 12 amendments, 10 of which were ratified by the states.

The tempest subsided. One hundred and thirty years have passed, and the fierce contest is almost forgotten. The struggling young republic has grown into an immense and prosperous Power. It has not become a monarchy, nor an aristocracy. The Constitution is universally accepted. It has not destroyed the states, nor deprived the people of their rights and liberty. The Pope has not been elected President. The Roman Catholic religion has not been legally established. The fame of Patrick Henry and Richard Henry Lee rests on other services to the republic. No tombstone commemorates with melancholy pride the honest but misguided struggle against the great change. It was the wonderful work of Washington and his associates which, with all its defects, when accepted by our ancestors, created the great nation of today.

Our descendants will wonder, no doubt, why the malcontents of today feared that England would reduce the United States to vassalage, that Ireland would be shackled against gaining freedom, that Europe would become the master of America.

In the year 2019, our descendants, living under a League of Nations, will look back to the great contest of today. Perhaps they will smile at the lurid denunciations of the League and predictions of evil, as we do at the frantic appeals of Henry and Lowndes. Probably they will praise those "men of vision" who, in the spirit of Washington, "wishing it had been more perfect," are today urging the adoption of the League as the most imperative need of the country and the world.

The Wooing of the Knife

"Cheer up. Mebbe the bull will kill him," I said.

This struck him as a favorable possibility and he subsided a bit. But when the crowd lined three sides of the pasture Zalac was the first to arrive, even if he did keep in the background. And Oscar, the primitive! To excite the critter to do his derndest he wore red tights.

He looked like the town hall on fire when he climbed the wall and advanced with his traddling step toward the bull. The bull, already crazy at the sight of so many strange whiskers fringing the three walls, watched Oscar stupidly for a bit, then commenced excavating trenches. Oscar turned and waved his hand and I see Espanola perched on the wall, looking pasty white round the gills. The way she twisted her fingers together and then yanked them apart gave me the idea she was wishing it was well over. Then the bull charged and I only had eyes for our Man Mountain.

Oscar sidestepped and the brute pivoted. Say, I reckon that bull could have done a fox trot on a dime if he'd wanted to. I never suspected before that a bull could beat out a cat in reversing. He was round like a flash and at Oscar. With a yell for the crowd to keep back of the walls the crank man ran in with his machine and began unwinding film. Oscar caught the bull by the horns, real Quo Vadis stuff. The brute seemed dazed for a moment at the man's audacity, then gave his head an awful jerk. Oscar kept his grip and grunted loudly and tried to twist the thick neck. There they stood, red eyes flaming, red tights straining. Undreamed-of muscle began knotting and bunching up along Oscar's back and shoulders and it seemed as if the bones of his legs were bending under his efforts. Both man and brute seemed to be stalling for time, just bracing against each other. The picture man ground away like mad. The crowd became yelling demons. The Colonel was speechless with great joy and above the hoarse roar streaked the ear-splitting cry of Espanola, screaming encouragement.

I think I was the first to see a slim figure break through the wall. As it skimmed over the rough ground to a position close to the fighters the camera man unloosed a line of profanity that would have served a great lesson if one could have had time to absorb its merits. But Zalac never paused till within good throwing distance, when his right arm went up and forward. There was a glittering streak and the heavy knife, cunningly weighed, sank to the haft in the bull's neck, just grazing Oscar's arm. The spectators were stunned. The bull gave a shiver and began crumpling up.

The picture people paid for the bull. While the mob carried the infuriated Oscar off to the tavern Zalac gleefully told me he thought Oscar was getting the worst of it. Espanola ran on ahead to the tents, and I didn't know just how she took it. Zalac kept out of sight till Oscar returned to his own tent, or, I reckon only the National Guard could have prevented murder. For Oscar, despite the mob's insistence that he was a simon-pure bull killer, was heavy with rage.

My honest opinion is that Man Mountain would have thrown the critter if he had been left alone. Just how he'd have parted from the bull without being gored into the Valley of the Shadow is another speculation. Anyway, it packed the show, and with Espanola's aid I managed to keep Oscar to his own tent.

"It was very noble of Zalac to go to his rival's rescue," I says to Espanola after she'd finished her third performance.

She gave me a sly glance and came back: "He almost spoiled the act. However, the picture people are satisfied and want to sign us up." Then thoughtfully and before I could battle against her closing: "Goodness me, but that sure was some artistic throwing. I never s'posed Zalac's nerve and eye were so good."

I went back to my tent and the Colonel breezed in and fairly fell on my chest. "My boy, my b-boy," he blubbered, "even in the palmy days I couldn't have improved on it. Only genius could have fixed it for Zalac to figure in the triumph—with no expense to the show. It was nobly done, sir. I shall always remember it." The favorable things he was always going to remember about me would have made the Grand Canyon of the Colorado look like the Rocky Mountains.

"The next bit of free advertising will be a murder," I says. "So don't look for any repeats. This show ain't big enough for them two fellows. Tell the girl to wind it up with Oscar and we'll look for a new attraction to take Zalac's place."

"Mebbe you're right," he sighed. "Anyway, you've squeezed the golden orange dry and I'll speak to her at once."

When he returned from talking to the girl he seemed quite elated. "It's all right," he says. "She'n Oscar are to marry before we quit here. I'm reconciled."

"I'll try to be," I promised. "But what about Zalac? Did he let on as to when and where he would pull the murder?"

"Lordy! I plumb forgot about him. I was so taken up with trying to do some thinking for you, to dope out some good press stuff about the wedding that would boom biz, I clean forgot him. Huh! Listen, laddie. (When he begins the 'laddie' talk I curl up my feet and prepare to turn a back handspring.) Remember my scheme of a couple getting married in front of the planking, with the knives whirring into the wood about them and circling them with steel? S'pose you fix it with Oscar and Espanola to be hitched that way. Oscar's had a few mild snorts of red licker and will listen now. Zalac"——

"She'll be a widow before she's a wife," I cut in. "And Zalac would toss in the minister for good measure. I'll see Zalac, but only to smother any homicidal tendency."

When I broke the news to him Zalac clustered over the edge of the stage like a dead plant. At first he was stunned. Then he groaned: "Married? My Espanola married!"

"Not yet, but is to be," I comforted.

"Then I must kill him before it's too late," he quickly decided, dragging his gaze to the bench of knives and axes.

"None of that rough stuff," I yelped. "Want to be hung?"

He laughed shrilly and jeered: "Hang? After killing my soul can they hurt the body?"

"I don't know, but they'll try," I assured. "See here, you wasp; if you love this girl as you say you do, you shouldn't make her miserable for life. Can you help loving her? Could you shift your bet to another woman? Then how can you blame her for listening to the dictates of her heart? She loves where she has to. Because of that must she stand by and watch you carve cutlets from the man of her choice? Shame, shame. And once again."

I warmed up as I see my talk was giving his thoughts a new slant. He couldn't dodge the logic of it; and after an hour's laboring I went to find the girl so she could make her lover's insurance certain. She got it, one, two, three and sprinted to the tent to talk with Zalac. I kept my distance till I saw her slowly coming out. Then I went to him.

I was so dumfounded at what I found that the village cornet band could have stolen the cook tent without my knowing it. He was weeping. Danged if that girl didn't have a strangle hold on him for keeps. The minute he saw me he began:

"It's as you say. She's not to blame and I love her too much to do him any harm. Only, Mister Benam, I beg of you to tell him not to come round when I'm playing with the knives. I close at the end of the week."

"When is the—when is the affair to take place?" I asked in a hushed voice, as if inquiring about burial services.

"Tomorrer," he faintly blubbered, dropping his head in his hands. And so I left him in his empty show tent, the thick planking at one end of the narrow stage, him and his assortment of steel at the other.

At the main gate I found the Colonel waiting to take me over to the tavern to name it. I was making for the tavern and yet when he handed out his invite some bug got working in my nut to turn back. I'd always looked on Zalac as a piece of clever machinery, and darn it, the poor devil was human. While his ideas about art were limited to throwing butcher knives, he was sincere in it; and that held pathos. The street was empty and some of the tents were dark. As the Colonel babbled on I glanced back. A spear of light still stabbed through the entrance of Zalac's tent. I made for it, the Colonel protesting at my heels. I approached it from the rear and lifted a lap. At first I could see nothing, although all the lights were going. Then I discovered him, curled up on the ground at the end of the stage, probably fighting out his battle with himself.

I was about to retreat and had just turned to caution the Colonel to keep quiet (he had a way of breathing like a whale in a fit) when two figures broke through the main entrance and I only half closed the flap. Is was Espanola and big Oscar, and the girl was running from him. At first I thought it was some of her play and shivered at her folly in bringing her lover there of all places. Of course, she took it for granted Zalac had gone to the men's tent. Then I see she was in earnest in trying to git away. Under the flare of the gasoline torches he looked like a beast. The drinks taken uptown had been added to since I saw him last. His yellow hair was plastered wet over his brute forehead and his face had lost its vacant expression and was all twisted up with some unwholesome purpose.

"You're mine," he bellowed, making a sweep at her, which she ducked. "I say, come here," he commanded, pressing after her as she jumped to the stage to skip him.

"Go 'way, Oscar! I'm afraid of you," she sobbed, trying to get an opening and make for the exit.

"'Fraid of your chick-a-biddy," he roared, fencing her in against the planking, and then jumping on the stage. "You've led me a long chase these weeks, but it's Oscar's turn now."

I grabbed up a tent stake and ducked inside, the Colonel following. The girl had squirmed under Oscar's arm, but he kept between her and the front of the stage and as she was forced to retreat again to the planking the mad fool rushed in and grabbed her.

Before me and the Colonel could cross the tent it began to happen. Zalac slipped like a shadow onto the stage and gained his bench of tools. As big Oscar's paw clutched the girl's shoulder and she screamed in pain and fright there was a flash and whir, and 12 inches of knife quivered in the planking just under his chin, the cutting edge creasing his red throat. Before he could jerk his head away there was another streak and the second knife grazed the back of his neck, its razor edge stinging the flesh but drawing no blood. The girl dropped in a faint. Oscar remained upright to save his head from being shaved off. If he had thought to liberate himself he was too slow of motion, while Zalac's arm became several arms, so swiftly did it rise and fall.

Knife after knife, then the axes. Zalac at last had his chance to prove his nerve and eye, and he made good all boasts. Also did he keep his promise to me and the girl. For although the broadaxes all but fleshed the Man Mountain, they harmed him none. In a continuous stream the flying steel outlined the huge body, imprisoning leg and arm and arm and leg. Oscar stood there, a huge bulk of helpless rage, now sobered enough not to move. For a climax Zalac seized a monstrous ax, swinging it with both hands and as it flashed for the giant's skull I closed my eyes, positive it must split him from crown to chin. But when I ventured to look again I saw it was buried in the planks just above his head, parting his hair, as it were, but leaving him unhurt, although the handle rested across his perspiring forehead.

"Gawdamighty! What a show, with only deadheads to see it!" moaned the Colonel.

Of course, they were married. Espanola told me afterward she'd been hypped by Oscar's strength, but that she'd loved Zalac all the time. Oscar closed the next day. Zalac still hurls the knives, but he never begs for a human target any more.

Why Legless Men Live Longest

A MAN who has lost a leg is likely to live longer than if he had not lost it, and a man who has lost two legs is likely to live longer still. This remarkable statement was made by Col. Openshaw, M. D., at the opening of a hospital for the limbless in London.

The heart has to pump the blood into the extremities and back again, so that if the legs are taken away the heart is relieved of a great strain and, other things being equal, will continue to work longer.

La-May Face Powder Is Harmless to the Most Delicate Skin

A specialist has at last perfected a pure face powder that positively will not cause enlarged pores, blackheads and irritations. In fact, while it is considered the best face powder, it is also a remedy for complexion troubles. It is guaranteed pure and harmless to the most delicate baby skin. It beautifies wonderfully because it helps to clear and lighten the skin and protect the complexion from blemishes. This new kind of face powder is made largely of an ingredient that skin specialists use in the treatment of the complexion. And it really stays on better than any other face powder. Of course, saying this, every one knows we mean the famous La-may Powder (French, Poudre L'Ame). This is the powder that does not contain starchy rice powder or dangerous white lead to make it adhere. White lead is a deadly poison and rice powder turns into a gluey paste that makes enlarged pores, blackheads and rice powder irritations. Because La-may is so pure and because it stays on so well it is now used by over a million American women. All dealers carry the large box, and many dealers also carry the small trial size. Be sure to try La-may. Then you will really know a perfect face powder. You will be sorry if you take a substitute. When you use this harmless powder and see how beautifully it improves your complexion, you will understand why La-may so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in America. Letters Theodore Roosevelt Wrote to His Children When They Were Little

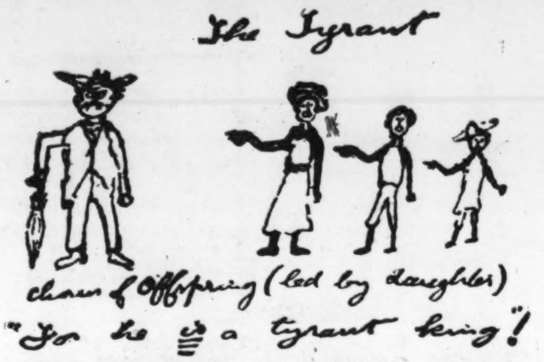
Former President revealed in a new and tender light through publication of correspondence with his boys and girls — Intimate views of the Roosevelt home life :: :: ::



The Tyrant
chorus of Offspring (led by daughter)
"For he is a tyrant king!"

With this vignette the Colonel concluded a letter to Ethel.

THE late Theodore Roosevelt was always popularly known to be an abiding lover of children, of family and home, but the recent publication of a selection of the letters which, during a period of 20 years, he wrote to his own children, will throw a new and a tender and winning light upon that many-sided personality. They prove that scarcely Hans Christian Andersen himself had a more sympathetic understanding and deeper love of children.

During his great and tumultuous public career Col. Roosevelt always found time, whenever separated from his children, to write a letter to each of them once a week, and they were often adorned with crude but humorous drawings, which missives the youngsters joyously hailed as "picture letters." They make the most delightful reading imaginable. From the youngest to the eldest of his children, he always wrote to them as his equals. As they advanced in life the mental level of intercourse was raised, but the father was always their playmate and boon companion, whether they were toddling infants or growing schoolboys or youths standing at the theshhold of life.

Their games were his games, their joys those of his own heart. He was ready to romp with them in the old barn at Sagamore Hill, play "tickley" at bedtime, join in their pillow fights, or play hide-and-seek with them, either at Sagamore Hill or the White House. Occasionally he was disturbed for a moment about possible injury to his presidential dignity.

Describing a romp in the old barn at Sagamore Hill, he said in one of his letters that because of the insistence of the children, he had joined in it because "I had not the heart to refuse, but, really, it seems, to put it mildly, rather odd for a stout, elderly President to be bouncing over hayricks in a wild effort to get to goal before an active midget of a competitor, aged 9 years. However, it was really great fun."

He had affectionate nicknames for the children. The present Lieutenant-Colonel Theodore Roosevelt was always "Ted" or "Blessed Ted." Ethel was "Ethelybye," Quentin was "Quenty-quee." Quentin was the enfant terrible of the family, and the letters are full of his pranks and quaint sayings. At such moments one can discern a special twinkle of the eye, a special softening in the lines of the face, for scapegrace Quentin. Once the little lad shied a stone at his mother's head, and, although the Colonel recognized that the thing was done without evil intent, he felt obliged to explain to Quentin the enormity of his crime, until Quentin, howling, fell in a "yellow-haired abandon of grief" into his father's arms. The grass has been growing on Quentin's grave in France for more than a year, now, and his father has gone to join him.

The Colonel's love of animals is constantly cropping out in the letters. "We never had a more cunning kitten than Tom Quartz," he informs "Darling Kermit." Nevertheless, justice compels him to add:

"I have just had to descend with severity upon Quentin because he put the unfortunate Tom in the bathtub and turned on the water. He didn't really mean any harm."

On another occasion, writing to "Dearest Archie," the Colonel says that he has just had to give Quentin and three of his associates, one of them Charlie Taft, a dressing down.

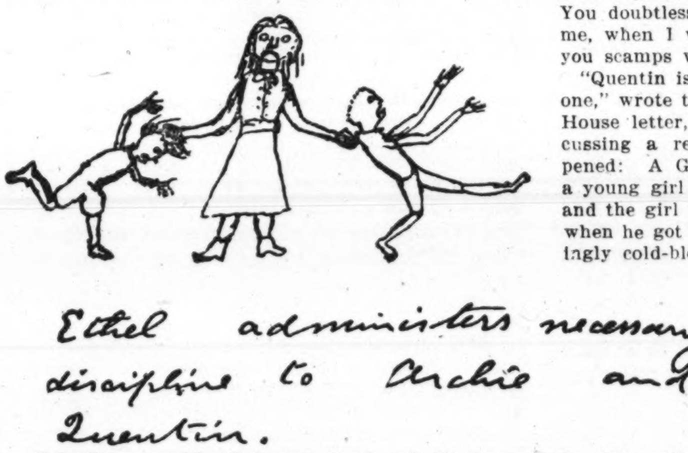
"Yesterday afternoon was rainy," it is related, "and four of them played five hours inside the White House. They were very boisterous and were all the time on the verge of mischief, and finally they made spitballs and deliberately put them on the portraits.

"I did not discover it until after dinner, and then pulled Quentin out of bed and had him take them all off the portraits, and this morning required him to bring in the three other culprits before me. I explained to them that they had acted like boors; that it would have been a disgrace to act so in any gentleman's house; that Quentin could have no friend to see him, and the other three could not come inside the White House, until I felt that a sufficient time had elapsed to serve as punishment. They were four very sheepish small boys when I got through with them."

"Quentin is really too funny for anything," begins a letter to Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, the President's eldest daughter. "He got his legs fearfully sunburned the other day, and they blistered, became inflamed, and ever-faithful mother had to hold a clinic on him. Eyeing his blistered and scaly legs, he remarked: 'They look like a Turner sunset, don't they?' I would like to know where the 10-year-old scamp picked up any knowledge of Turner's sunsets."

On another day, writing to Archie from the White House, the President related that "Quentin went out shooting with Dr. Rixey on Monday and killed three rabbits, which I think was very good. He came back very dirty and very triumphant, and mother, feeling just as triumphant, brought him over promptly with his gun and his three rabbits to see me in the office." In another missive, he tells how "the family went into revolt over my slouch hat, which Quentin christened 'Old Mizzoura,' and so I have had to buy another with a less pronounced crown and brim."

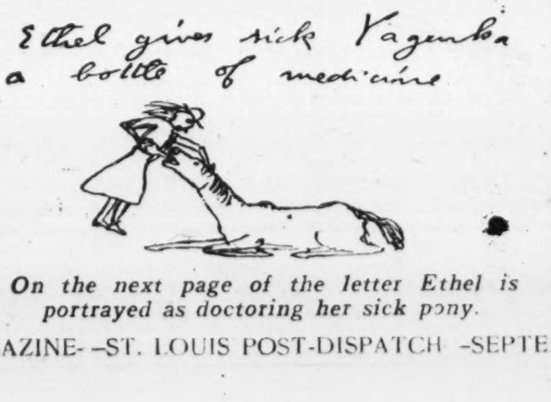
"Mother has gone off for nine days," wrote the President in 1903 from the White House, "and as usual I am acting as vice mother. Archie and Quentin are really too cunning for anything. Each night I spend about three-quarters of an hour reading to them. I first of all read some book like 'Algonquin Indian Tales,' or the poetry of Scott or Macaulay. Once I read them 'Jim Bludsoe,' which perfectly enthralled them and made Quentin ask me at least a hundred questions, including one as to whether the colored boy did not find sitting on the safety valve hot." It is greatly to be hoped that Col. Roosevelt reported to John Hay this juvenile criticism on his "nigger squat on the safety valve."



Ethel administers necessary discipline to Archie and Quentin.

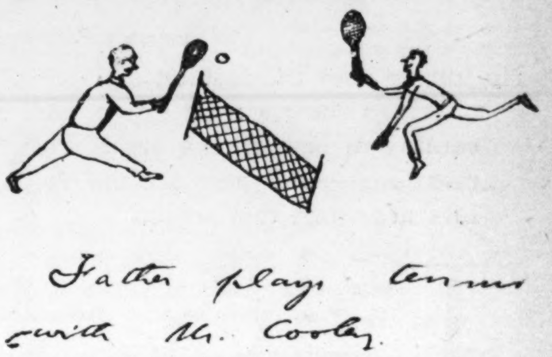
Col. Roosevelt's "picture letters," illustrated by himself, were the joy of his children. This extract is from a letter to Ethel on White House stationery, June 22, 1914.

"Mother went off for three days to New York," the President wrote again from the White House, "and Quentin took instant advantage of her absence to fall sick. Quentin's sickness was surely due to a riot in candy and ice cream, with cholocate sauce. He was a very sad bunny next morning and spent a couple of days in bed. Ethel, as always, was as good as gold both to him and to Archie, and largely relieved me of my duties as vice-mother. I got up each morning in time to breakfast with Ethel and Archie before they started for school, and I read a certain amount to Quentin, but this was about all. I think Archie escaped with a minimum of washing for the three days. One day I asked him before Quentin how often he washed his face, whereupon Quentin interpolated, 'Very seldom, I fear,' which naturally produced from Archie violent recriminations of a strongly personal type."



Ethel gives sick Yagenka a bottle of medicine

On the next page of the letter Ethel is portrayed as doctoring her sick pony.



Father plays tennis with Mr. Cooley.

"Father's shape and spectacles are reproduced with photographic fidelity," wrote the President beneath this drawing.

"The other day," the President communicated to Kermit, on Aug. 26, 1905, "a reporter asked Quentin something about me; to which that affable and canny young gentleman responded, 'Yes, I see him sometimes; but I know nothing of his family life.'" The same letter affords an engaging picture of the President at play with his children.

"I went into Archie's room," he continued, "where the two little boys showed all their china animals; I read them Laura E. Richardson's poems, including 'How Does the President Take His Tea?' They christened themselves Punky Doodle and Jollapin, from the chorus of this, and immediately afterwards I played with them on Archie's bed.

"First I would toss Punky Doodle (Quentin) on Jollapin (Archie) and tickle Jollapin while Punky Doodle squalled and wiggled on top of him, and then reverse them and keep Punky Doodle down by heaving Jollapin on him, while they both kicked and struggled until my shirt looked very much the worse for wear. You doubtless remember yourself how bad it was for me, when I was dressed for dinner, to play with all you scamps when you were little."

"Quentin is a funny small person if there ever was one," wrote the President to Kermit in another White House letter, in 1906. "The other day we were discussing a really dreadful accident which had happened: A Georgetown young man having taken out a young girl in a canoe on the river, the canoe upset and the girl was drowned; whereupon the young man, when he got home, took what seemed to us the exceedingly cold-blooded method of a special delivery letter to notify her parents. We were expressing our horror at his sending a special delivery letter, and Quentin solemnly chimed in with, 'Yes, he wasted 10 cents.' There was a moment's eloquent silence, and then we strove to explain to Quentin that what we were objecting to was not in the least the young man's spendthrift attitude."

From Del Monte, Cal., on May 10, 1903, came this letter for "Blessed Archie," who was lucky in having a father who could write such fascinating epistles:

"I think it was very cunning for you and Quentin to write me that letter together. I wish you could have been with me today on Algonquin, for we had a perfectly lovely ride. Dr. Rixey and I were on two very handsome horses, with Mexican saddles and bridles, the reins of very slender leather with silver rings. The road led through pine and cypress forests and along the beach. The surf was beating on the rocks in one place and right between two of the rocks where I really did not see how anything could swim, a seal appeared and stood up on his tail half out of the foaming water and flapped his flippers, and was as much at home as anything could be. Beautiful gulls flew close to us all around, and cormorants swam along the breakwaters or walked along the beach.

"I have a number of treasures to divide among you children when I get back. One of the treasures is Bill the Lizard. He is a little live lizard, called a horned frog, very cunning, who lives in a small box. The little badger, Josh, is very well and eats milk and potatoes. We took him out and gave him a run in the sand today. So far he seems as friendly as possible."

On the same day the President wrote to "Quenty-Quee," 5 years old, in this style:

"I loved your letter. I am very homesick for mother and for you children; but I have enjoyed this week's travel. I have been among the orange groves, where the trees have oranges growing thick upon them, and there are more flowers than you have ever seen. I have a gold top which I shall give you if mother thinks you can take care of it. Perhaps I shall give you a

Concise Survey of Fall and Winter Fashions

pant, it is appropriate that women should express their individuality in dress, hence never before has there been such a bewildering jumble of all the feminine fashions. Side by side with wide flounces are shown straight and narrow frocks, and adaptations of Greece, Byzantium, Egypt and the Middle Ages rub shoulders with each other. The time has gone, in all probability, when one silhouette can be imposed on all women at one time, and in the future, undoubtedly, each woman will take pains to express her own individuality and wear what is most becoming, and there will be better dressed women than ever before.

This is as true of hats as gowns. A multiplicity of shapes, ranging from the snug turban to the large picture hat, is shown, with a preponderancy of models showing the influence of the periods of Louis XIV and XV. The boret and tricorn of the eighteenth century are also seen, with the curves subtly worked out to assist the line of profile and head—which is an important point, because these types are smart but trying.

A great deal of art is expended in the models of draped velvet which makes them hard to copy. Many of these hats, with swathed or crushed crowns, depend on the richness of material and shape for their effect, for no trimming is used.

For the smaller hats, as well as the large picturesque shapes feathers are the dominant note in trimming, and all sorts are used, with the ostrich in both curled and uncurled states leading the way. Leather is used to advantage in the new models, and several seen were novel indeed. A particularly attractive turban was made of suede kid in green, which is very pliable and was embroidered in dull Oriental colors. Lacings of the kid ornamented the side. A bright red suede-draped turban was embroidered all over with gold stars on a black background, so that just a peep of red came through. This was accompanied by a handbag of the same material.

Citron yellow and mauve, all shades of orange; in fact, all the bright soft colors may be used. Strong contrasts seem to be the rule, and few hats are made without at least a touch of black.

In speaking of hats, one is necessarily reminded of the elaborate and magnificently decorated coiffures noted in Paris these days. Great variety is shown in these ornaments, but they have two characteristics in common—they are rich beyond dreams of avarice and all seem to accentuate the horizontal rather than vertical lines, being worn crossing the forehead just above the eyes. Designers predict that the opera season will see many of them, for it is a vogue apt to prove popular with the ultra-smart.

An endless variety of beads, slides, on gay-colored cords, medallions and lockets to be worn on narrow black ribbons, and other necklaces are offered. In London, the report comes, chains are so long that many of them reach to the hem of the skirts. Beaded bags continue to be very popular, though leather purses are shown in profusion. Sheer collar and cuff sets, lace jabots and frills, and veils of all colors and sizes are further enticements for the enhancement of feminine beauty, and one must not forget corsets and lingerie shown in bewildering arrays. While for shoes—their high cost limits one's choice, and when that choice is so wide, it is indeed difficult. Long vamps are very smart, but when one has a short foot, one thinks longingly of the short, round-toed French shoes which differ from the American last as greatly as the paniered skirt differs from the straight and narrow model.

chambers in the rock and cut passages to the top, through which, at every surge of the pounding waves, the water rushed and rose high in the air.

"There upon the deck I determined not to leave until I had lived for a time amid these wild scenes. My intention had been to voyage with the Morning Star, returning with her to Tahiti, but a mysterious voice called to me from the dusky valleys. I could not leave without penetrating into those abrupt and melancholy depths of forests, without endeavoring, though ever so feebly, to stir the cold brew of legend and tale."

O'Brien presently found that he had done well indeed, and at the end of a year spent among the natives he departed with the keenest regret. "Doing nothing sweetly," he found "was an art in Vait-hua. Pleasure is Nature's sign of approval. When man is happy, he is in harmony with himself and his environment. The people of this quiet valley did not crave excitement. 'Of what are you thinking?' I said often to my neighbors when breaking in upon their meditation. 'Of the world, of those stars,' they replied.

"They would sympathize with that Chinese traveler who, visiting America and being hurried from carriage to train, smiled at our idea of catching the fleeting moment. 'We save 10 minutes by catching this train,' said his guide enthusiastically. 'And what will you do with the 10 minutes?' demanded the Chinaman.

"To be busy about anything not necessary to living is in Marquesan wisdom to be idle. Swimming in the surf, lolling at the spring, angling from rock or canoe, or fishing with line and spear outside the bay, searching for shell-fish, and riding and walking over the hills to other valleys, filled their peaceful pleasant days. A dream-like, care-free life lived by a people sweet to know, handsome and generous and loving.

O'Brien had scarcely disembarked when it was proposed that he marry a handsome 13-year-old girl, who bore the name of "Vanquished Often." His refusal was incomprehensible to the girl's parents, and Vanquished Often's happy smile in the moonlight quickly faded to a look of pain and humiliation.

"Never was hapless guest in more unfortunate plight," records this modern Joseph. "She was but a child, I said; Americans did not mate with children. They smiled as at a pleasantry, and again extolled her charms. 'She be some punkins for be good wife,' urged the father. 'Bonne filly pooh voo,' pleaded the mother in her Marquesan French. My hostess gently placed my hand in that of Vanquished Often. The unhappy girl feared that she was about to be disgraced before her people by the white man's scorn of her beauty.

"I was fain to invent a romance upon the spot. I was madly enamored of an Atuona belle, I said. She waited for me upon my return to my own paepae; she was a mighty woman and swift to anger. She would wreak vengeance upon me and upon Vanquished Often. I would adopt Vanquished Often as my sister. In token of this I pressed my lips upon her forehead and kissed her hands. She smiled bewitchingly, pleased by the novel honor.

"My hosts and their friends departed with her, half pleased, half puzzled at this latest whimsy of the strange white, and I lay down upon the mats of the chief's house, with Exploding Eggs (one of the natives) lying across the doorway at my feet."

silver bell instead. Whenever I see a little boy being brought up by his father or mother to look at the procession as we pass by, I think of you and Archie and feel very homesick. Sometimes little boys ride in the procession on their ponies, just like Archie on Algonquin."

The welcome which Josh, the badger, received at the White House is related by the President a few weeks later to Senator Lodge. "Josiah," he wrote, "is hailed with the wildest enthusiasm by the children, and has passed an affectionate but passionate day with us. Fortunately, his temper seems proof."

With the Colonel's addiction to sport, it seems a bit odd to find him counseling Kermit, in 1903, that "I should be very sorry to see either you or Ted devoting most of your attention to athletics, and I haven't any special ambition to see you shine overmuch in athletics at college, if you go there, because I think it tends to take up too much time; but I do like to feel that you are manly and able to hold your own in rough, hardy sports. I would rather have a boy of mine stand high in his studies than high in athletics, but I would a great deal rather have him show true manliness of character than show either intellectual or physical prowess; and I believe you and Ted both bid fair to develop just such character.

"There! You will think this a dreadfully preaching letter. I suppose I have a natural tendency to preach just at present because I am overwhelmed with my work. I enjoy being President, and I like to do the work and have my hand on the lever. But it is very worrying and puzzling, and I have made up my mind to accept every kind of attack and misrepresentation. It is a great comfort to me to read the life and letters of Abraham Lincoln. I am more and more impressed every day, not only with the man's wonderful power and sagacity, but with his literally endless patience, and at the same time his unflinching resolution."

The book, "Theodore Roosevelt's Letters to His Children" (Scribner's), is edited by Joseph Bucklin Bishop, who relates that Col. Roosevelt, planning the volume only a short time before he died, said: "I would rather have this book published than anything that has ever been written about me."

"Well, don't you think she earns it?"

"You see, a poor foreman of a ranch would never have the hardihood to ask a rich girl to marry him; he'd a thousand times rather marry a poor thief."

"Is that the only obstacle?" she asked.

"It is, and it is insurmountable."

He was silent, and in his deep-set eyes she read the resolve he had made.

"That is an obstacle that soon can be vanquished. I am a good spender, and I will soon make way with all I have. I am looking for a good investment. Mr. Kingdon or Jo or someone told me Westcott's was for sale. You see, we might run it 50—50. I could buy it and you run it."

"I can't, Pen," he said, desperately.

She made no reply.

The car whipped round the curves. She was watching the long, efficient hands gripping the wheel. Then she stole a glance at his grim, thrust-forward profile. She felt that something must be done and she was a believer in the power of action over words.

She scanned the side of the road keenly for a way, and when she recognized the memorable little clump of trees, she spoke in plaintive tone.

"Aren't we going to stop at all, Mr. Sheriff Man?"

Instinctively he stopped the car.

She climbed out and went toward the trees. As in a dream he mechanically followed her.

"Do you remember our camping place that night?" she asked.

"Do I remember? If you knew how I battled with my best and strongest feeling that night!"

"Kurt, you know in the library at Top Hill last night—no, night before last—you asked me something. I didn't answer. I will answer now. Kurt, I love you! Now, will you ask me—the rest of it?"

"Penelope!"

"Oh! You do—care—Kurt. Your mother's name!"

YOU HAVE A BEAUTIFUL FACE
BUT YOUR NOSE?

BEFORE
AFTER

IN THIS DAY and AGE attention to your appearance is an absolute necessity if you expect to make the most out of life. Not only should you wish to appear as attractive as possible, for your own self-satisfaction, which is alone well worth your efforts, but you will find the world in general judging you greatly, if not wholly, by your "looks," therefore it pays to "look your best" at all times. Permit no one to see you looking otherwise; it will injure your welfare! Upon the impression you constantly make rests the failure or success of your life. Which is to be your ultimate destiny? My new Nose-Shaper, "Trados" (Model 24) corrects now ill-shaped noses without operation, quickly, safely and permanently. Is pleasant and does not interfere with one's daily occupation, being worn at night.

Write today for free booklet, which tells you how to correct ill-shaped noses without cost if not satisfactory.

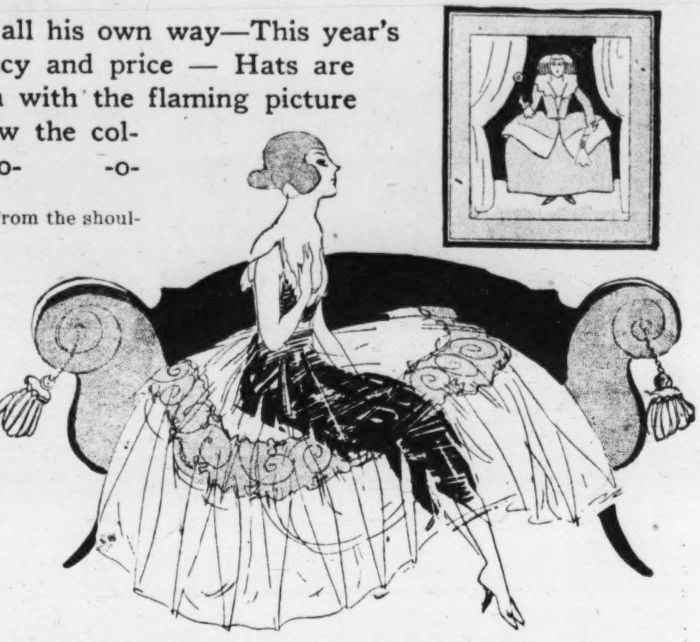
Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 149F Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

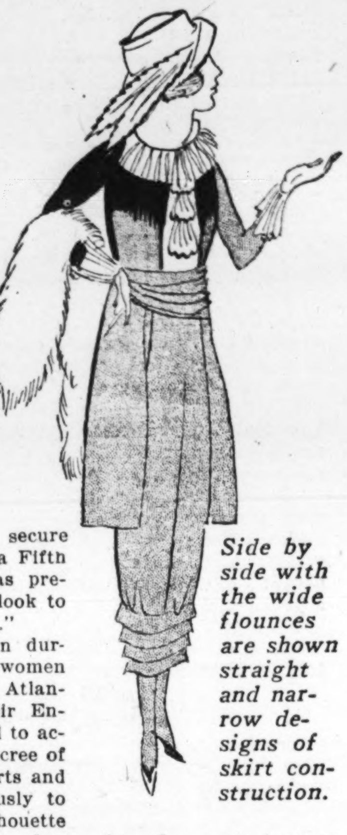
Concise Survey of Fall and Winter Fashions

No longer does the fashion dictator of the gay French Capital have it all his own way—This year's offerings show a wide range, well calculated to suit almost any fancy and price — Hats are coming in bewildering array with the saucy turban holding its own with the flaming picture creations—And there are the shoes, high in vamp and price — How the collars are worn this season -o- -o- -o- -o- -o- -o-



American women not so sure about that new silhouette, wide at the knees and suggestive of a Valasquez painting.

THERE is a subtle difference in the autumn mode which is difficult of explanation. In consulting with prominent designers, with the editors of the better known fashion magazines, in viewing the displays in the shops and talking with buyers just back from Paris and filled with enthusiasm for and knowledge of French creations, the observer gathers a confused impression of new details, sumptuous materials and bewildering changes, but conscious that, at last, the American women have broken away from the tyranny of foreign fashion dictators and that her clothes will in the future more and more represent her own individuality, environment, life and times.



Side by side with the wide flounces are shown straight and narrow designs of skirt construction.

It is true, as a shop owner said, that American designers will continue to accept the meritorious ideas of Paris costumers, but the feeling of independence, engendered during the period of the war, when it was so difficult to transport costumes or even sketches, is so strong and the knowledge of the needs and habits of our women so secure that it may be, as a Fifth avenue designer has predicted, "Paris may look to America for modes."

As is well known during the past season women on this side of the Atlantic, as well as their English sisters, refused to accept the Parisian decree of extremely short skirts and have clung tenaciously to the long, slim silhouette which has been in favor for the past two or three years. Now, although some of the best known of the French houses are putting forth a new silhouette very wide at the hips, after the manner of the Spanish painter, Valesquez, it is a question whether or not it will be generally adopted here. Many of the evening and dancing frocks developed in gossamer materials have this tendency to bouffancy, but gowns of velvet and brocade, of which there are many, cling to narrow simple lines that follow the figure.

Because it is so generally becoming and so expressive of the snap and vigor of American life, there are always women who make the tailored suit the piece de resistance of their wardrobe, and it is gratifying to learn that many types are being shown. In fact, the strictly tailored suit promises to be the favorite of the early autumn mode.

The newest tailleur is modeled after the Louis XV period. With its simple notched collar, tight shoulders, nipped-in waist, and smart flare on the hips, it is particularly suited to the older women of mature figure, though it can be successfully adapted to the slender. All the coats in these new suits are very long, extending to the knees and below; the skirts are straight and wide enough to give ample freedom in walking. In fact, some of the newer skirts are pleated—though skillfully, to retain the slender, straight effect. Lengths vary, but the popular cut seems to be medium—long enough for grace, short enough for service.

Some of the long, loose models seen in the shops are almost capelike in their fullness and sweep in the back, being decidedly shorter in front, and usually having a narrow belt across the front to define the waist line. Belts, by the way, are rapidly passing—dwindling, one might say, for they are extremely narrow and seldom go entirely around the figure. None of the long coats have belts, but hang full and loose from the shoulders, being variations of the dolman. Many of these new suits have high choker collars of fur and wide fur cuffs. For the woman who dresses on a small income, however, it is more economical to have her fur a separate piece that can be worn with her street gown as well as with her suit or evening cape. Besides, for the same money she can buy a suit of better material and workmanship without fur and it is these qualities which give a suit the dignity that lends itself to service on any occasion.

Soft materials are favored for these new tailleurs, duvetine taking the lead, but if this is too expensive to be afforded, fine velours, velveteen or Poiret twill will answer. Brown, ranging in all shades from bisque to a deep shade known as cordovan, is the favorite color, while Pompeiian red, green and soft blues are also greatly in demand. Navy blue, of course, is always good, but this shade has been so greatly used in the past that women seem to have tired of it and are searching for something new.

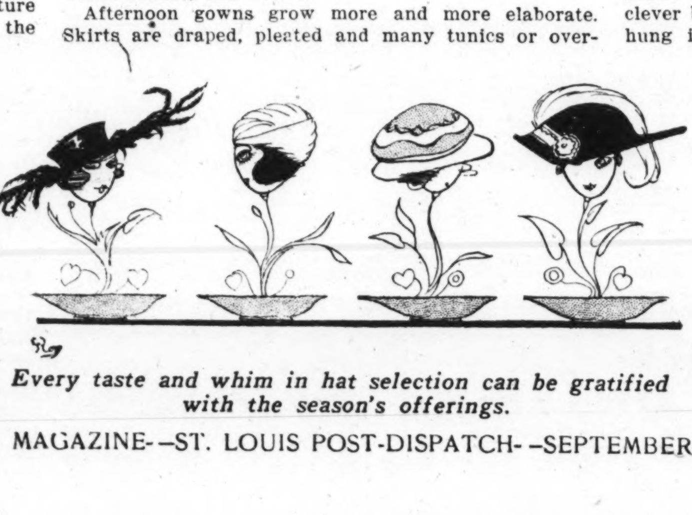
Nothing quite exceeds the smartness, and at the same time the usefulness, of the three-piece suit, erroneously so called, because it really consists of a one-piece frock and coat to match, and there is no doubt they will be taken up with enthusiasm.

Fabric makers are continuing to put out a large line of materials suitable for waistcoats, which will continue to serve their useful and ornamental purpose, but many women are turning to the new printed chiffon or georgette peplum blouses which serve the same end. They are being shown in great profusion and in large variety of color and combinations. With the aid of one of these elaborate affairs and a simple skirt, an effective and handsome costume can be wrought, while they are indispensable for setting off the new suits.

But the enthusiasm for the new suits and their complements should not obscure the once-piece frocks, which still hold a front place in popularity. Because of the well-dressed feeling they engender, in all probability the coat frock and redingote model will be greatly used for street wear. A particularly charming model of the latter type from Paris is cut like a coat, fastening at the side and folding over from shoulder to hem, and is buttoned at the natural waistline with one button. It is lined with a brightly printed foulard—all linings are particularly colorful this season—which shows with the motion of the wearer. The collar is high, but can be worn open at the front.

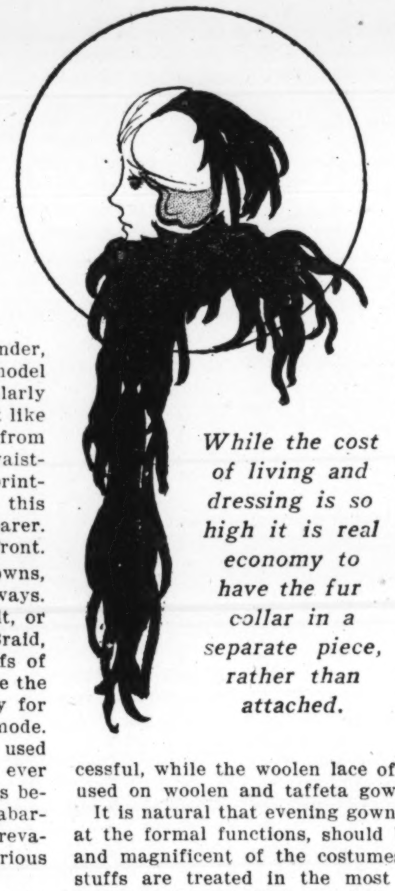
Though the straight line prevails in all these gowns, fullness over the hips is indicated in ingenious ways. Sometimes it is merely tabs hanging from the belt, or outstanding pockets, or folds cleverly stitched. Braid, tucks, voluminous of self material, fur, and motifs of embroidery ornament these frocks and oftimes give the necessary bit of bright color seemingly necessary for the gayety and extravagance of the autumn mode. Generally speaking, the finer grades of goods are used this season—assuredly they are more costly than ever before—but it seems a better quality of material is being shown. Duvetine, tweeds, Poiret twill and gabardine are used; while navy blue seems the most prevalent color, with a sprinkling of black, gray, in various warm shades, and brown.

Afternoon gowns grow more and more elaborate. Skirts are draped, pleated and many tunics or overskirts are shown. Bits of fine lace, vests of finely tucked lawn or chiffon, of brocade and metallic materials; beads and embroidery add to their embellishment. Neck lines are varied in the extreme, and sleeves are both long and flowing, short and tight.



Every taste and whim in hat selection can be gratified with the season's offerings.

No wardrobe is complete this season without at least one black lace frock, and fortunate indeed is the woman who has stored away priceless shawls or wide lace flouncing of her grandmother's time, for they can be fashioned into the most fascinating of dinner or evening gowns. Made over a tight satin slip, the lace is hung in great fullness, concentrated over the hips, while the bodice is either tight or a loose surplice. If the sleeves are long, they are long indeed, with ruffles falling over the hands in a quaint and bygone fashion.



While the cost of living and dressing is so high it is real economy to have the fur collar in a separate piece, rather than attached.

Metal laces are in great vogue for evening wear, and one of the loveliest worn is of silver threads on a beige silk tulle foundation. Beige and silver is one of the newest combinations, and is extremely effective. Copper lace, in a season when copper is to be featured, is sure to prove successful, while the woolen lace of our grandmothers' is used on woolen and taffeta gowns.

It is natural that evening gowns, which are displayed at the formal functions, should be the most elaborate and magnificent of the costumes, and the sumptuous stuffs are treated in the most ingenious ways that clever brains can devise. If they are not flounced and hung in circlets resembling flower petals, they are draped or puffed into paniers, pleated or ruffled in a thousand different ways. This applies to the skirts only. Little can be said about the bodices, for they are scantier than ever before, some having no backs at all, and others seem merely straps to hang the elaborate skirts from the shoulders.

Brocaded satin, many of them brocaded in metals, soft velvets and velours, and printed silks in all sorts of dull tones that remind one of old paintings; soft crepes, georgettes, with stripes or plaids of velvet and lovely embroidered materials argue that the winter season will be rich in color and handsome in design, with a suppleness of weave never before seen. In an age when individualism is ram-

There were the many hairbreadth escapes, pursuits, timely rescues featuring the one girl, daughter of a ranchman, attired in semi-cowboy regalia, who rode like mad and performed all kinds of wonderful feats. The old, old picture that came with the first film and will last while there are boys and men with the hearts of boys. Look upon it tenderly, promoters of educational pictures and uplifting reels, for it carries a romance never attained in reality and irresistibly appeals to the idealism of young blood and young hearts.

For an instant, when the first picture of "The Thief" was thrown on the screen, Kurt felt a queer sensation as one who intuitively perceives something of danger in the dark. A swift, warning note like a sharp pain struck him.

With tense nerves, he waited for the scenes in which she would appear. All the little well-remembered gestures, the graceful movements, the tender graces which he had been wont to steel himself against were there. They brought him a feeling that was exquisite in its pain. With no outward show of emotion his whole being quivered and throbbed at each appearance of the boyish figure ever recurring on the screen.

Once her eyes, wistful and entreating, seemed to meet his in mute reproach. Then the little theater was lighted, the improvised orchestra renewed its effort. He went quickly out and stopped at the hotel to leave a note for Kingdon. Again he walked and lost himself in memories, seeing as in a mirror all the incidents that had so intrigued his interest, but which now, in the light of his new understanding, seemed so very patent.

Suddenly he recalled her letter, still unread. That might show some motive for her incognito and explain her arrest by Bender.

He returned to the hotel. The hour was very late. He learned that the ranch party had long since departed and that Larry Lamont had gone to his room.

With a queer little catch of expectancy in his throat, he held the letter for a moment pressed tight in his hand. Then he opened it.

"To Kurt Walters, ex-Acting Sheriff: In taking French leave, I feel that it is due you to inform you who your prisoner really is.

"I was to the stage born. In fact, nearly stage-born, as my mother played her part almost up to the night I made my debut in the great game of life. My childhood was spent mostly in the flies, and my earliest memories are of being propped up on an impromptu, triangular divan formed by a piece of wood stuck between two joists and covered with cushions; of watching my mother use lip stick and other makeup things; of hearing the warning knock and admonition: 'Thirty minutes, Miss Lamont' (No Mrs. in stage lore, you know) and later, 'Fifteen minutes, Miss Lamont;' of her cheery response, 'Yes, Parks,' and of her never hurrying or being flustered by the flight of time; of her giving me a sticky kiss as the final peremptory call came. Everyone in the company mothered me, so I was not neglected—doubtless received too much attention. I was a very nimble kidlet, and at an early age the stage carpenter, who had once been in a circus, taught me to walk a taut rope and to perform acrobatic feats.

"In due course I played juvenile leads. When I attained the young and tender grass age, I was sent away to school, my mother having been a shrewd manager and investor. The school was equipped with a fine gymnasium; riding and dancing academies were attached. In all of these institutions I excelled.

"When I was 16, my mother died, and I went on the stage. I didn't inherit her talent as an actress, having only mediocre ability, but I had a carrying voice, personality and could dance, so I soon left the legitimate stage for vaudeville, where I made something like a hit.

"Bruce Hebler, who is a motion picture man, persuaded me to come into film land, and if you didn't live at the end of the trail and forego all things that make good cheer, you might have recognized me from billboard pictures and magazine pages as the star of certain wooly West productions. Jo recognized me at once as Bobbie Burr.

"This spring I was a bit under the weather, because we really have to work like dogs and some of our daring stunts—which are not always faked—do get on our nerves, you see. I had to have a vacation, after which I needed another, and was advised to seek recuperation in your hills. My objective point was 100 or more miles from here at a sort of little isolated inn. En route I missed connections, and having no enthusiasm about my destination, I stayed over in the town nearest Top Hill. In a local paper I read of the arrest of a 'hardened young criminal.' I was curious to see what species of my sex that might be, and followed my impulse to visit her at the jail. Your friend, Bender, gave me permission to visit the 'hardened young criminal.' She was a girl of my own age, size, and altogether what I or any girl could easily have been but for the accident of birth, conditions and environment.

"Fortunately, she was an admirer of Bobbie Burr, and I won her confidence and story—Marta's story, which you already know. Things and people had made her put up a bluff of being hardened, but there had come, as you know, the newly awakened desire to 'live straight—like folks who didn't get caught.' To use her own words, 'she wasn't going to let a grand man like him wish himself on such as me.' I felt, then, that thief or no thief, she was the real thing. I only knew one way to get her release and I was rather keen for adventure. We exchanged dress skirt, shoes, hats and coats. I gave her some money, the key to my hotel room, trunk and suit case and told her to take the next train out while the going was good, and not to show up at the hotel until the night clerk, who had not seen me, came on. I also gave her a letter to some good friends of mine in a town further west. I knew they would be kind to her, ask no questions and let her stay until she was squared about.

"It was done on an impulse—in a flash—one of those kaleidoscopic impulses we have, but back of it was the wish to help someone, and the curiosity to see if her love, aided by the opportunity, would suffice to reform the kind of girl she was supposed to be.

"She left the jail in my outer clothes, and I stayed in her shabby garments. Old Bender never suspected the transfer. It would have been very easy for me, with my agility, gained in screen stunts, to have swung out from any part of that old jail, and still easier to have given you the slip en route to Top Hill, but I wanted Marta to have plenty of time to get to a far cover before the mistake was discovered.

"Playing a part was second nature to me. I really felt that for the time being I was Marta, but a different Marta from the real one. I always enter into my roles with all my being, so I set the role of a real thief for myself and played up to it so intently that I all but lost my own personality. It was the kind of Marta that Bender supposed her to be who talked to you on that memorable ride to Top Hill. Your wish to be helpful to an unfortunate girl touched me and might have won me to confiding in you, but you were so stern and sometimes so repellant in your manners, I was afraid to trust you. I wasn't sure you would be equal to rising above your chagrin at finding you had been taken in by a 'movie actress' and that you might apprehend poor little Marta.

"By morning I was curious to know your idea of 'the best woman in the world.' Then, too, I thought I could find my needed tonic in your hills and better accommodations than I could obtain at a hotel. So I continued to play my part. When I saw Mrs. Kingdon I realized she was the best woman in the world. She, like Jo, recognized me at once, having seen me rehearsing in San Francisco. I had the whim to stay incognito and she humored me, insisting, however, that you should be told the next day. But the next day you had gone. In the week that followed I learned the beauty of a home life, hitherto unknown to me.

"Of course, those stunts you saw me doing on field day were mere 'horse play' compared with what I have to do in making the pictures. When I met you for a brief space of time that afternoon, I had no opportunity to make my disclosure. When you returned, Mrs. Kingdon was away and I couldn't resist the temptation to play on in my new part. Anyone's personality seems more pleasing to me than my own, and I still felt as if I were really Marta.

"My early ideals of manly suitors were patterned slightly on your model; it piqued me, I admit, that you didn't seem to fall for a little romance with me, as many suitors had done.

"When I saved Francis from being thrown (I've turned that trick many a time in pictures' I felt that I had in a way repaid Mrs. Kingdon for her hospitality. You were so homey and nice that night, I almost 'fessed up. I did my best to make you care more—and I thought I had succeeded; but you still made reservations and I thought your reluctance came from my past—Marta's past.

"That night as I stood at my window vaguely regretting my deception, Jo came along. I flew down to him and told him that I had heard from Marta, and we had a nice long talk together. I told him she was living 'straight,' but I respected her wish not to let him know where she was.

"I don't know why, as time went on, I didn't tell you who I was. Maybe it was natural perversity, or the fateful habit of playing a part.

"I ran away to town that day you were all absent and met Larry Lamont, my cousin, the only kinsman I have. He was once a harum-scarum lad and did some flying acts for a company I was with, and one day when he was laid off for 'reasons,' I gave him a calling down and advised him to go to an aviation school and learn to fly scientifically. I hadn't heard from him until I saw him at the hotel, and found he had made good and joined the flying service of France.

"Marta's unexpected arrival upset things. I knew that Mrs. Kingdon was interested in my account of her and in her love for Jo; also that she intended to help them eventually, but I did not know she had communicated with Marta during her own absence. Hebler's sudden appearance was the last straw. He insists that I am under contract for another of the wild and wooly pictures I am so tired of playing. I am not posted on the legality of contracts, and it seemed easier to dodge him until he should have to secure someone else. You were very nice about offering to help me evade him. Some way the return of Marta and the sudden arrival of Hebler made me realize I had been playing a part. That night in the library when you told me you loved me and asked me to marry you, I was really myself; but I wasn't sure of my own feelings. I felt I must think more about it, so, pursuing my usual tactics, I ran away.

"On passing Hebby's door, that gaudy diamond flashed before me. I'll leave the theft an unsolved mystery.

"When I was forced to reveal my presence to Hebler, I felt that I had balled things up hopelessly and that the only avenue of escape lay in flight—my long suit.

"My only solace in all this bungling mess I have made is that I have brought Jo and Marta together.

"With you at the ranch and Hebler in town, I didn't know how I could make my getaway but for Larry. I have telephoned him and he is to meet me near here, and by the time my little carrier dove delivers this, I shall be en route for France. I am weary of movies, and life is a delusion anyway.

"I admit it was wrong to deceive you—after the necessity for so doing had passed. You were kind—in intent; still, you might have been a wee bit nicer, don't you think? Regretfully. PENELOPE."

"P. S.—Does it hurt now that I use your mother's name?"

He read this letter as one who dreams and is but half conscious that it is a dream. He read it again and again, each time grasping bit by bit the realization of its contents and what they meant to him.

"She was right," he thought. "I didn't know what love meant. I do now—now that I've missed it. I've lost her more surely than if she were a 'hardened, young criminal.' I shall never try to find her."

It was hardly sunrise when he went down to the office.

"I should like to speak to Mr. Lamont when he comes down," he said to the clerk.

"He has gone," was the reply. "He came down before his call and has gone to the train."

"Maybe it is just as well," thought Kurt. "There is really no message I could send to her."

"See the picture last night?" asked the clerk chattily. "'The Thief, or Meg O' The Prairies!' Great picture!"

"Yes, I saw it," replied Kurt, dismally.

"I always go to see Bobbie Burr. She's my favorite. There was a girl here the other day who was a dead ringer for her. I read in a magazine that she gets a big salary. I forget the figures, but it was more per week than some folks earn in a lifetime."

Kurt's heart registered more downward beats.

He hung about the office until the dining room was open and then went in and perfunctorily consumed some food. Later he called up an acquaintance and asked the loan of his car. It was sent around to the hotel, and he was just about to start for the ranch when a well-known voice behind him said:

"May I ride out to Top Hill with you?"

For a moment the blood left his heart and then returned so rapidly it left him quite pale.

"Larry said you were here. I came back on the train just now. I want to go to the ranch for—my things. Will you take me?"

"Yes," he said, abstractedly.

CHAPTER XVII.

"KURT!"

He looked up with a start. As on that first ride, long ago, his eyes had been fixed on the road ahead.

"Let's talk a bit," she said. "What did you think"—

"I was such a fool," he replied, bitterly. "I should have known that you were not what you pretended you were. You must believe me when I tell you that I loved you from that first night we were up here in the hills. I didn't know how great my love was, though, until I knew I had lost you."

"I thought, or tried to think, you should have known I was not a thief," said Pen, with a soft tone in her voice, "but Larry said that only showed what a good actress I am. I told Larry all about it this morning, and he said no self-respecting man would ask a thief to marry him, not if he knew she was a thief before he loved her."

"I didn't read your letter," he said, "until after I had seen the picture of 'The Thief' last night. So I was prepared for its contents. I read, and not entirely between the lines, that you did not care."

"I didn't think I did—so much," she answered, "when I wrote that letter; but up there, Kurt, up in the clouds yesterday—something within me unlatched, and I knew that I loved you, and that my love would make you forgive me for deceiving you. You will?"

"I will. But you see there is a greater obstacle than that—or in the thought that you were a thief."

"You mean my being a movie actress. Are you so prejudiced against the profession?"

"The obstacle is that the clerk of the hotel told me he had read somewhere that Bobbie Burr received a stupendous salary."

WHERE WOMAN RULES HER HAREM OF CANNIBALS

Red-haired Amazons of South Seas, believed to be of Caucasian race, have won woman's rights to extent of reversing double standard against men—Author lives among denizens of Marquesas Islands, goes through amazing adventures, and decides man-eating savages are after all "lovable and impressive persons" -o- -o- -o- -o- -o- -o- -o-

One of the belles of Marquesans is "Daughter of the Pigeon."

DOWN in the South Seas is a kingdom in which woman is queen. She keeps a harem of several husbands, and exacts the strictest fidelity from her thoroughly subjugated spouses, who may let their fancies rove only on pain of being dismissed from the rooftree, and often soundly beaten to boot. The fair ruler of the menage loftily declines to be bound by any such vows. The double standard of morality obtains, but it is the reverse of the European double standard. It is the woman, not the man, who may follow her whims without blame or care.

And these masterful women, these avengers of the wrongs of their sex in other lands, are among the most beautiful in the world, according to Frederick O'Brien, botanist, explorer and author, who has just passed a year in their habitat, the Marquesas Islands. Their charms are not left to the imagination, for in that tropical clime both sexes burden themselves with only the minimum of clothing. His startling conclusion is that the Marquesans are of Aryan blood, marooned by the subsidence of a continent upon a group of 11 volcanic islands.

"The great stature of these women," says the traveler, "their proud carriage, their long, wavy hair, ranging from red to coal black, and their straight noses and fine features all bear witness to their Caucasian blood. They came from the mainland of Asia untold centuries ago, when our own ancestors of the same blood pushed westward into Europe."

The author does not advance the theory, but it may be the subjection of man among the Marquesans which has driven them in despair to cannibalism. Despite the work of the missionaries, says O'Brien, roast human flesh is still regarded as a delicacy, and is known throughout the island as "long pig." Yet even the cannibals, he declares, are men of majesty and very lovable, outside their little foible for devouring one another.

One day he visited a kingly cannibal named Kahuiti, described as an epicure of "long pig." He had won renown by killing a certain Tufetu. "All in all," the author records, "I thought Kahuiti the most distinguished man in appearance I had ever seen, be it in New York or Cairo, London or Pekin. He wore only a loin cloth and was tattooed from toenails to hair roots.

"When Kahuiti rose to his full height of six feet and a half, he was as majestic as a man with diadem and royal robes. His affability was that of a monarch. I ventured to speak of his slaying of Tufetu. He broke into a roar.

"'I struck the blow,' he observed, 'and I ate his arm, his right arm, for he was brave and strong. That was a war!'

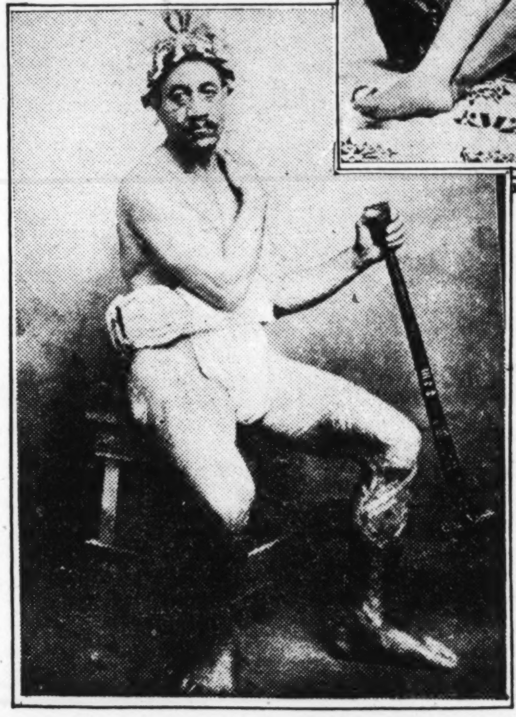
"Kahuiti smiled gently on me. With his masterful carriage, his soft, cultivated voice and his attitude of absolutism he might have been Leopold, King of the Belgians. How could one explain his benign, open-souled deportment and his cheery laugh, with such damnable appetites and actions?"

It may be mentioned that among the Marquesans women as well as men are tattooed, and of one of the former O'Brien writes that "she had wonderful legs, statuesque in mold, and tattooed from ankles to hips in most amazing patterns. She said that people came from far valleys to see her legs, and I could well believe it."

White men defy the roasting pot when they settle alone and unprotected among such savages, but O'Brien appears to have been safe on account of his knowledge of the Polynesian language. His typewriter seems to have established him as a celebrity, if not as some sort of demigod, for the people came from all parts of the island to view it, and reverently gave to the machine the name of "Iron Fingers That Make Words." The Marquesans took him to see their sacred places, initiated him into many of their mysteries and taught him their marvelous skill in swimming, fishing, shark catching and canoe handling. Some of the adventures told by O'Brien in his new book, "White Shadows in the South Seas" (Century), are almost incredible. Witness the tale of the shark-hunting of Red Chicken, a native fisherman.

They rowed to the coral caves, "where the man-eating fish stay often lazily in grottoes, only their heads protruding into the sun-lit water. Here we maneuvered until the long, evil snout was seen; then Red Chicken went quietly over the edge of the canoe, descended beside the shark and tapped him sharply over the head. The fish turned swiftly to see what teased him, and in the same split second of time over his fluke went the noose, and Red Chicken was up and away, while his companions on a nearby cliff pulled in the rope and killed the shark with spears in shallow water."

Another of the scores of thrilling incidents concerns a battle with a devil-fish. "Four of the crew," the story runs, "had attacked a giant devil-fish, which was hidden in a cave in the rocks. From the gloom it darted out its long arms and tried to seize the strange creatures that menaced it. The naked boatmen, dancing just out of reach of the writhing tentacles, struck at them with long knives. As they cut off pieces of the curling, groping gristle, I thought I heard a horrible groan from the cave, almost like the voice of a human being in agony."



A tattooed Marquesan, with carved canoe paddle.

After a time they succeeded in infuriating the beast so that it came out of its cave. "He was a reddish-purple globe of horrid flesh," O'Brien then continues, "horned all over, with a head not unlike an elephant's, but with large demoniacal eyes, bitter, hating eyes that roved from one to another of us as if selecting his prey. The son of Ugh had two of the great arms about him at one time, but his companisons hacked at them until he was free. Then, regardless of the struggles of the maimed devil, they closed in on him and stabbed his head and body until he died.

"During his last moments I was amazed and sickened to hear the octopus growling and moaning in its fury and suffering. His voice had a curious timbre. I once heard a man dying of hydrophobia make such sounds, half animal, half human."

Another dramatic incident in Mr. O'Brien's book concerns the struggle between a pair of whales and a pack of sharks, the wolves of the sea. The huge mammals were attempting to defend their infant against the attacking horde.

"We saw two whales, one with a baby at her breast. The other we took to be the father whale. Huge black beasts they were. Upon this mated pair a band of sharks had flung themselves to seize the infant. There were at least 25 sharks in the mad mob, great white monsters, 30 feet in length, man-eaters by blood-taste, tigers in disposition.

"Frenziedly handling tiller and sails, we circled the battle, impotent to aid the poor woman-beast and her baby. Desperately the parents fought, more than one shark sank wounded to the depths and one, turning its white belly to the sun, floated dead upon the waves. Another was flung high in the air by a blow of the mother's tail. But it was an uneven contest. At last we saw the nursling drawn from her breast, and the mother herself sank, still struggling."

One of the most fascinating chapters deals with the seizure of the Marquesas Islands by the American skipper, David Porter, about 1812. Porter left the United States in 1812 in command of the frigate Essex to destroy British shipping, and to capture British ships and British sailors. Porter, son and nephew of American naval officers, destined to be the foster parent of Farragut, the first American Admiral, and father of the great Admiral Porter, was then in his early thirties. At last, with many prisoners and prize crews aboard his captures, he made for the Marquesas to refresh his men, repair their ships, and get water, food and wood for the voyage home.

He renamed the island Nukahiva (Madison's Island). As O'Brien sums up the seizure, "a hundred years ago the Stars and Stripes floated over the little hill above the bay and American cannon commanded the village of Aai-o-hae. Beneath the verdure is still buried the proclamation of Porter, with coins of the young American republic, unless the natives dug up the bottle after the destruction of the last of Porter's forces." Porter was able to leave only a few men behind as a garrison, and these were overwhelmed and presumably eaten. Many years later the French established their dominion over the Marquesans.

O'Brien was carried from Tahiti to the Marquesas on a little trading ship called The Morning Star. His account of the approach to the islands runs in part as follows:

"The Marquesas Islands lay before us, dull spots of dark rock upon the gray water. They are not large, any of these islands; 60 or 70 miles is the greatest circumference. Some of the 11 are quite small and have no people now. On the map of the world they are the tiniest pin-pricks. Few dwellers in Europe or America know anything about them. Most travelers have never heard of them; no wire or wireless connects them with the world. No tourists visit them.

"Fatu-hiva had been left behind and Hiva-oa, our destination, was before us, bleak and threatening. To my eyes it appeared as it had been in the eyes of the gentler Polynesians of old time, the abode of demons and of a race of terrible warriors. Hence descended the Marquesans, Vikings of the Pacific, in giant canoes, and sprang upon the fighting men of the Tahitians, the Raiateans and the Paumotans, slaughtering their hundreds and carrying away scores to feast upon in the High Places.

"Slowly we crept into the Bay Traitors and felt our way into the anchorage of Taha-Uka, a long narrow passage between frowning cliffs, spray-dashed walls of granite lashed fiercely by the sea. All along the bluffs were cocoanut palms, magnificent, waving their green fronds in the breeze. Darker green the mountains towered above them, and far on the higher slopes we saw wild goats leaping from crag to crag and wild horses running in the upper valleys. A score or more of white ribbons depended from the lofty heights, and through the binoculars I saw them to be waterfalls. They were like silver cords swaying in the wind.

"The whole island dripped. The air was saturated, the decks were wet, and along the shelves of basalt that jutted from the cliffs a hundred blowholes spouted and roared. In ages of endeavor the ocean had made they hovered over a field, scudding smoothly and slowly along.

"You weren't afraid!" exclaimed Larry, triumphantly, as they walked along toward a little inn resting at the base of one of the undulating hills.

"No," she answered; "only awed."

"Was it anything like you expected?"

"No," she replied.

A man came out of the inn to meet them.

"Halloa, Larry! Too bad I couldn't have had a full house to see. The last tourist left on the train today."

"Then you'll have more room for us. This is Miss Lamont, Nat. Mr. Yates, the proprietor," he explained to Pen. "Can you give us supper and put Miss Lamont up for the night? I have to fly back to my hotel. I'll return by train in the morning."

"Sure thing! House is yours."

He showed Pen to a neat little room and told her "supper'd be on in a jiffy."

She sat down dazedly. Presently she was roused to her surroundings by Larry's "Oh, Pen!" from below.

When she came down to the dining room, Larry's clear young eyes looked at her keenly.

"Not down to earth yet, Pen? I know how you feel. First time I made the sky route, I went off by myself for a day."

"Larry, I can't talk about it yet. I will tell you now why I joined you. I thought I would like to go to France—with you. I thought I might be useful some way, but now"——

"We won't think of plans now. We'll talk it all over in the morning when I am back. You'll be safe here. Nat would as lief shoot Hebby or anyone else who trailed you. Supper's on the table, so come on."

Throughout the meal Larry did most of the talking, Pen scarcely responding. Then he was off, steering in great circles toward town, Pen watching with the quickening of pulse and a renewal of the elation she had felt when taking the air. When he was but a mere speck in the sky, she went up to her little room.

"You'll never look quite so high or so wonderful to me again," she thought, as she looked out on the hills. "It's because I've looked down on you, I suppose—the law of contrast. I learned a great deal up there—in the vapors. I put out my feelers, something I never did before. I see I've always faked my sensations. But my wings are pin feathers as yet. I have to look at everything from a new angle of vision. All my life I've been longing for thrills—real thrills, my own thrills; not other people's. I had a few little shivers when I was riding to Top Hill that morning; a few more last night—but my first true thrill of rapture came when I was challenging the sky, an argonaut."

It was a hard struggle for Pen to adjust her new self that she had found up in the high altitudes where all the tepid, petty things of life had dropped from her—where she had found the famous fleece, the truth. In the vastness of that uncharted land, like a flash in the dark, something had leaped at her. Her dream of a dream had come true. She had learned the great human miracle, the meaning of a love that had the strength to renounce. A god-made love, sweet and strong, conceived on earth, but brought forth on high, where the call of destiny had sounded with clarion clearness. She knew now what she had missed; that he was not of the world of miniature men who exact and never return.

She was roused from her visions of the new and radiant world which had been opened unto her by a knock at her door.

"Yes," she answered, vaguely.

"There's a man downstairs to see you," said the proprietor.

She was at once alert and on the defensive, thinking of an encounter with Hebler.

"Do you know who he is?" she asked, apprehensively.

"He said to tell you 'twas Jo."

Joyfully she hastened down to the deserted office of the little inn.

"Jo, I am so glad it's you!"

"So am I. Come outside and take a walk with me."

"How did you ever track me up here, Jo?" she asked, as they walked up a hillside.

"Not hard to track the first skycraft that ever came up to these parts. I saw one land near Westcott's, and I had a hunch it was lighting for you. Then I thought no more about it until things happened that made it up to me to find you. I inquired around and about and found a big balloon had come this way, so I figured this was about your goal for a train."

"Why was it up to you to find me, Jo?"

"Well, Miss Penny Ante, I am a little interested in you, seeing as it was you who brought Marta to me. And I knew you would be interested in knowing Marta didn't take the ring."

"Oh, Jo, I tried to think it wasn't Marta, but"——

"She says she acted just as though she had taken it. It was old Merlin, nosing around the hall, who tucked it away. But the real reason I had to run you down was for my pal. He wants you."

"Why?" she asked. "To apologize? You didn't tell him, Jo"——

"I told him nothing."

"Then he must want me as an ex-Sheriff."

"Cut that out, Miss Penny Ante. He wants to find you because he loves you."

"What makes you think so, Jo?"

"He 'fessed up when he found you had gone."

"He didn't love me—not as you love Marta," she reminded him. "It made no difference with you that Marta"——

He made a quick gesture of protest.

"You forget," he said, soberly, "that when I met Marta and fell in love with her, I didn't know about—her. Bender had told him about you before he met you, and then he thought you belonged to me."

"Jo, if you had known Marta stole before you met her, wouldn't you have loved her and asked her to marry you?"

"I don't know," he said, frankly, "and I don't care about 'might have beens.' I know I love her now and always shall. That is enough."

"Miss Penny Ante," he continued, as she did not answer him, "you don't know Kurt Walters as I do. He is a square man, square as a die."

"Yes, Jo," she said softly. "He is a real man—a square man. I know it now, too late."

"Not too late. Not if you care. Go back with me to the ranch. He has gone to town with the children to meet the Kingdons. Mrs. Kingdon is there, too. They will all be back tonight."

"No, Jo; it's too late."

"Why?"

"Because I gave Francis a letter telling him everything. He might overlook what he did know, but I understand his pride. He'll never overlook the other. He'll not forgive deception."

"Go to him unexpectedly, Miss Penny Ante. A man off guard, you know. Come back to Top Hill with me."

"No; I am going to wait here until Larry comes back. I must."

"Who is he, and what is he to you?" asked Jo, resentfully and suspiciously.

"So you see, Jo," she said, when she had finished a brief account of Larry's entrance into her life, "I can't go back with you. Don't tell anyone but Marta where you found me. Ask her to forgive me for being so stupid about the ring. I'll walk down to your car with you."

They walked slowly, without speaking, until they came to the inn. She looked at the car wistfully.

"I haven't been in this poor, little old car since that first ride to Top Hill," she said, reminiscently.

He made no reply, but got into the car and put his hand on the wheel.

"Jo!"

"Well," he answered, in the tone of one balked in his intentions.

"He'll get over it."

"No; men like Kurt don't get over anything like that. I know what it is to love without hope. I am sorry for Kurt. You'll be sorry for him, too, some day."

She had come close to the car, and he looked into her eyes as he said impressively:

"He loved you from that very first night."

"That very first night!" she echoed. "Not surely on that ride from town—from jail to Top Hill! Why, he fairly hated me then!"

"You're not hep to Kurt," he declared. "He said to me in just these words: 'I have loved her since that first night I saw her, when we camped on the trail—when she lay asleep in the moonlight.' "

After making this enlightening remark, he motored away, while Pen stood motionless, with the shock of amazement in her eyes.

* * * * * * * *

When Larry returned on the early eastbound, he found Pen on the veranda of the little inn.

"Why, Pen!" he exclaimed. "Is this a stay-up late or a get-up early?"

"Both, Larry. I couldn't sleep. I am still thinking of our flight up—where I found myself."

"I know," he said, comprehendingly. "You have to get away from people and things to do that—to get the right line on yourself; and that is the only place you can do it. But I met a man at the hotel who knows you."

"Not Hebby!"

"No; I dodged Hebby for fear he'd quiz me or follow me. This other man began a cross exam., so I beat it. He said he was from the ranch where you stopped. I asked the clerk when I paid my bill who he was, and he said he was a Sheriff, or had been one. Maybe Hebler got him to track you. I dodged his questions so as not to put him wise."

"He isn't a colleague of Hebby's," denied Pen. "He is the foreman of the ranch where I stayed. I think he was there in town to meet the Kingdons."

"He met some people who went out to the ranch, but this man stayed on at the hotel. The night clerk said he would be there until noon today. We had better get ready for the next train."

"I am ready," said Pen, quietly.

CHAPTER XVI.

TO THE delight of his young passengers Kurt drove at a speed never before attempted when they were with him. At the hotel there was a rallying reunion of the Top Hill family.

"Where is Pen?" Mrs. Kingdon was finally permitted to ask.

"She didn't come with us," said Kurt, grimly enjoying Hebler's quick attention. The children had been previously and carefully coached to make no mention of Pen's departure.

He made an excuse to leave the hotel parlor and went down to the office.

"Is there an aviator registered here?" he asked the clerk.

"Sure there is," replied the clerk, proudly. "Larry Lamont. Some flier, too. He's going over to France soon—into the French service."

Lamont! Kurt turned a little pale. "Is he here now?"

"His things are here, but he's out with his airplane somewhere."

Kurt breathed a little easier and resolved to remain at the hotel until the aviator should return.

When the rest of the party came through the office on their way to the dining room, Francis lagged behind and handed Kurt a letter, which the latter abstractedly slipped into his pocket.

At dinner he was seated at the end of the table farthest removed from Mrs. Kingdon, so he had no opportunity for a word with her in regard to Pen. As they were going out from dinner she called to him:

"The children are clamoring for a movie. They don't get many opportunities to see one, and I haven't the heart to refuse them their first request after my long absence. So we are all going. Will you come, too?"

"I can't, I fear. I have a little matter of business to attend to, but I will be here after the picture show."

"I imagine we will not be back very soon. Billy always insists on seeing a picture twice at least."

Kurt remained in the office when the others had gone. Presently the clerk said to him: "Here comes Lamont now!"

A slim, graceful young man smoking a cigarette was just swinging in from the street.

Instantly Kurt went forward to meet him.

"Mr. Lamont?" he asked.

"Yes," admitted the aviator, warily.

"My name is Walters. I'm from the ranch where Miss Lamont has been visiting. Are you her brother?"

Lamont shook the ashes from his cigarette.

"I beg your pardon," he replied, coldly. "I have no sister."

He passed on, leaving Kurt still at sea as to the relationship of the aviator and Pen.

Then he heard Lamont addressing the clerk.

"I want to leave an early call for the first eastbound."

Kurt went out on the street. He could always think more clearly in the open, and he felt that he had much need for thought. Added to his other disturbing emotions was the most stinging one of jealousy. The truth that struck home was the knowledge that the supposed theft of the ring hadn't made him so wretched as the assurance that she loved another—was another's. He hadn't been jealous before—not of Jo nor even of Hebler, but he instinctively felt that this Romeo-like youth whom she had sought was the one who had the first claim.

"He shall not have her!" he muttered when he had walked the streets for some time. "I'll take her from him—from everyone."

He went to the little theater to tell the Kingdons that he should remain in town all night. Kingdon could drive the car home and Hebler could run the racer.

He walked into the little lobby. The billboards showed him it was a wild and wholly Western scenario, and he felt certain that no less than two performances would satisfy Billy's cravings. He went inside and stood scanning the well-filled house until he located his little party, well up in front—children's choice of seats. He started down the aisle. The preliminary pictures of the cast were being shown. On the screen flashed the lines:

THE THIEF.
or
MEG O' THE PRAIRIES.
By Bobbie Burr.

A picture of Meg O' the Prairies followed. Kurt turned and walked back to the last row of seats, the only ones vacant.

The theater was dark. An improvised orchestra was essaying something that sounded like strains of "Dixie," "Columbia," "America" and the "Star-Spangled Banner" combined, and the audience were continually standing up and sitting down, in a state of bewilderment and doubt as to which was the national air.

Then suddenly on the white screen was enacted the regulation, popular style of Western play. Ranch settings, tough barroom, inevitably cowboys, bandits, Indians and lovers twain, held the audience enthralled.

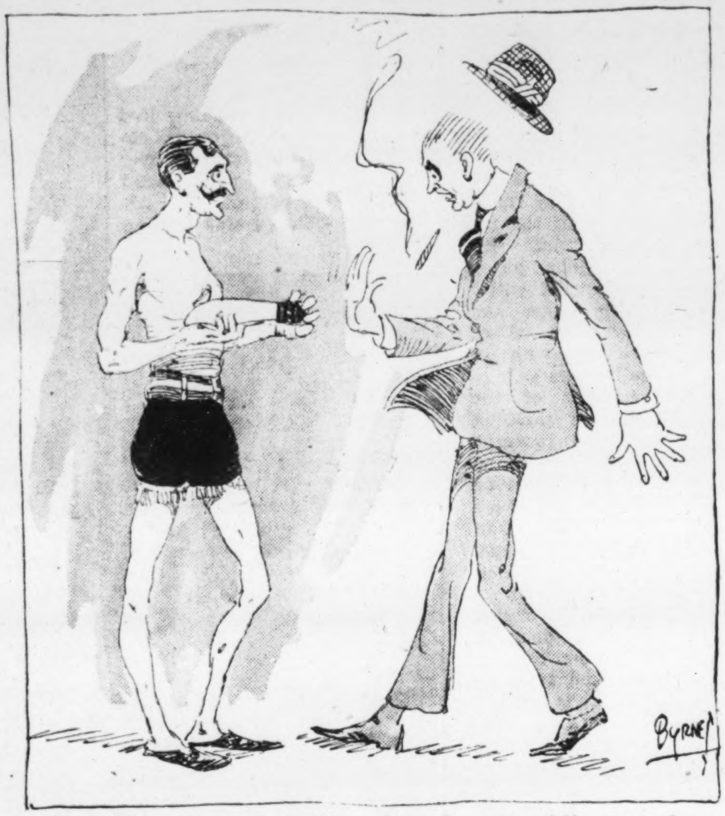
THE WOOING OF THE KNIFE

By HUGH PENDEXTER



"Me? Me, stand up against them boards while you show how cute you are?" I shivered.

EVER see in moving pictures a thin, splinter of a chap winning out against a hulk of a fellow who splits his vest every time he expands his chest? Never, if seldom. The one protruding idea the pictures suggest is that of strength taking down all gate receipts. If the hero has biceps like the picture patrons of the latest breakfast food he can be away from home from his Adam's apple up the year round and still be recognized by the cashier every Saturday p. m. I never understood why we should worship bull strength when so many of us are sort of warped and look better with lots of clothes on than we do when stripped for a clinic.

Real life kindly averages things up. But on the screen a bald-headed man stands no show with a rival who can toss his frontlet and dislodge an elfish lock down across his faultless forehead. Yet many bald heads have wooed and lived happily. Which observations are intended simply as an overture for a recital of some of my experiences as press agent and general utility man for the Imperial Street Carnival Shows, Col. Betts, owner.

Without cracking my breast bone with undeserved medals, I will merely say that as a publicity man I had a way with me. Another prelude to the epic of Zalac, the Knife Thrower, and Oscar, the Human Mountain, and lots else. Street carnival shows have a year-round license to revel in hyperbole, and there is no denying the Colonel sure trotted out some fierce attractions in his day. But I am always ready to maintain by argument or mortal combat that in Zalac and Oscar we had two acts no one would be ashamed to spill printer's ink over.

Oscar was the biggest and strongest biped I ever saw; and the cannon balls and anvils he toyed with weren't made of papier-mache. When he made gestures everyone got out of range, for he didn't need to have the wind in his favor to brush a man o'er the brink of eternity. And his laugh! He had a laugh you could hear five miles against an ordinary gale. I reckon he could inflate a Zep with those lungs of his. Zalac was a different sort of a cuss entirely. He was undersized and built like a herring. He always made me think of something that had hung in the attic to dry. But with a knife! What he couldn't do with a knife wasn't worth fussing to accomplish. Not till La Espanola, slackwire artiste, joined did he seem to have a thought apart from his collection of cutlery. Espanola was named after the Colonel's favorite six-for-a-quarter brand, her real name being as unromantic as rheumatism.

But she wore the name like it was built for her from birth; a slim, sinuous little thing, with more capacity for raising the devil in mere man's bosom than a raconteur of the latest Ford stories has. I spread my paper on the three of them, the rest of the show being odds and ends of fake attractions.

La Espanola hadn't been with us more'n a week when I remarked to the chief, "Zalac is making eyes at the cigar band."

"Pooh, pooh!" says the chief, playing checkers with a half-dollar on the knee of his plaid trousers. "Zalac never had a human emotion."

Three days later I says to the chief: "Oscar has woke up to the fact that Espanola is some pippin. Grinned at her today until he forgot he had a hoss in his arms." With a bit of a tackle he lifted hosses as you'd handle an umbrella.

"Nonsense," sniffed the chief. "Oscar's think factory is shut down indefinitely. Nature worked so hard to cover his bones with muscle she didn't have time to chuck in sentiment."

I ambled back to my little tent and typewriter and commenced doping out how to torpedo the County Clarion of Eagle Bend, our next stand, for a big display. While running the scale of my powerful imagination to prove it was Col. Betts, not Grant, who received Lee's surrender, a streak of shadow fell across the keyboard and I glanced up to behold Zalac standing in the opening.

Our Knife Man wasn't as gregarious as measles and seldom neighbored any. My delicately arched brows put the question, and he informed, "I ain't satisfied. My act would be better if I had a live man to throw at."

The William Tell stuff never appeals to me. If the operator pulls it off safely for the target, people think it's a trick, and if he does make a slip the Coroner bothers the life out of the management. But it was my duty to erase all peevish furrows, and I cheerfully soothed, "Mebbe we can pick up one at the next stand."

"I git tired of throwing at a dummy," he runs on. "I ain't never had a chance to show how good my nerve is. My work is true Art."

When they git to using upper case I begin looking in the woodpile for the proverbial bunch of smoke. Till then he'd never had high fever because his knife throwing was limited to a dummy stuck up against heavy planking. All he ever seemed to care about was to heave the iron and salt his salary. "You show up fine," I says.

"I want to do better." And this time he sort of sighs. "I must do better and prove how much of an artist I be."

"The chief is satisfied. Besides, the bum weather and crop reports from Kansas won't allow him to add one cubit to your present stipend," I says, instinct warning me against a touch for a raise.

"I don't want no more money," he muttered. "I'm just keen to prove I'm the real goods."

"Prove to who?" I shot in, growing suspicious.

The little beggar's thin face caught fire. "Oh, to everyone," he sidesteps.

I knew I was on the trail, and to demonstrate it, I told him, "La Espanola was saying only yesterday that you were the whole works when it came to the whizzing steel."

The change that come over him! The flash from his dark eyes made me think of the Eddystone Lighthouse. "She thinks that and says that?" he jolts into me, gliding nearer with a snake step. "Now, look it, Mister Benam; I ain't showed anywhere near what I can do with knives. Just find me a live target, and if I don't cut his hair without drawing a drop of blood I'll forfeit a week's salary."

This sounded good for the other guy, if Zalac should slip. "It would serve you jolly well right, too," I says. "And wouldn't the target have the good laugh on you? Oh, my."

"But you'll do what you can?" he pleaded, never sensing any sarcasm. "I'm in dead earnest about the week's salary."

I nodded admiringly, and he coaxed. "Why couldn't you stand? It would take only a few minutes. I know the Colonel would be willing."

My hair rose and unhatted me. "Me? Me, stand up against them boards while you show how cute you are?" I shivered.

"You ain't got any faith. I thought you was a friend," he glumly says. "Well, if I don't git a live target soon I close and go where my talent can show to the limit."

"Now, now, Zaly!" I caressed; "none of that breaking away to pastures new stuff. The Colonel will give you every chance that anyone can. Why not try to work in some new wrinkle that doesn't demand human sacrifices?"

"I'm using axes along with the knives this afternoon," he wearily says.

This was news to me. He'd always stuck to knives. "Axes?" I repeated.

"Sure, axes. I can do as good with a broadax as I can with a knife. Used to use them a lot before I joined here. But the knife is the artist's favorite. It's so delicate and dam sensible. Think of the hit I'd make if I had a living target and used both knives and axes!"

I began to back up and settle on my haunches. Knives were all right if we could find anyone dippy enough to stand and be pegged at. Besides Zalac could go a long time without making a slip. A couple of human targets ought to git him through the whole season. But axes! It didn't sound good to me. Still, I kept on smiling as sweet as a maple sugar orchard and promised I'd do my best.

When the gate opened that p. m. I went to Zalac's tent. He had on new spangles and glittered all over like a fresh tin whistle. And the way he posed with his arms folded over his thin chest while the Colonel grandiloquently introduced him made me think of Napoleon standing for the photographers after Austerlitz. Ordinarily he went through his stunt with about as much emotion as a washing machine, not seeming to know there was anyone in the tent. And we always had to threaten violence to make him doll up. Now he was as gay as a June bridegroom. It didn't take much lamping to discover the cause. La Espanola, finished with her first outdoor stunt, stood at the back of the tent with a long cloak wrapped about her slim figure. She was the only person he saw.

When the Colonel stopped and motioned him to begin, he had to speak twice before Zalac heard him. Then, with a bound and a spring to show how spry and graceful he was, he leaped to a gaudily draped bench at one end of the stage and began clawing out the hardware. Against the planking at the opposite end of the stage was the dummy of a man, dressed in some of the Colonel's discarded finery. With one radium glance at Espanola, Zalac began heaving the knives. Espanola kept on chewing gum, only mildly interested, for she'd seen the stunt several times. Zalac's face darkened and he commenced on the axes. That was a new wrinkle to her and she skipped several chews as the heavy metal plunked into the planking.

When Zalac stopped and stepped forward to bow, she clapped her hands. The Colonel sprang to the planking and lifted out the dummy to show it hadn't been touched. There stood the outlines of the figure, formed by knives and axes. Zalac then did something he'd never done before; he got confidential with the crowd, saying:

"The human form would be as safe as that dummy was. Any young man who'll stand up there and just close his eyes while I operate will git a new silver dollar. Who'll earn the dollar?"

There was a rush toward the exit, and the tent was empty except for us show folks. Zalac glared wrathfully after the cowards. La Espanola laughed softly and says: "They don't seem to want to be shown."

"I could do it! I could do it!" he bitterly took on. Then his eyes lit on me and I remembered I had business outside.

I waited for the chief and frankly told him: "You'd better tip Espanola off to quit stirring up Zalac's artistic blood. He's as good as said he'd close if he can't have a human target."

"Well, well," peevishly replied the Colonel; "why don't you git one? When I was your age I could have turned up a dozen overnight."

"Erhuh?" I politely scoffed.

"I tell you I could. Danger? Pish! Statistics show that to every man scratched by a knife thrower thousands of men die every Christmas from their rope whiskers catching fire while playing Santa Claus. You oughter git busy."

"Knives may be as safe as a spring tonic," I says "But those dinged axes look too wicked."

could have bought you the biggest diamond in Chicago."

"Who do you suppose did take it, Jo?"

"I don't know. Maybe he never lost it."

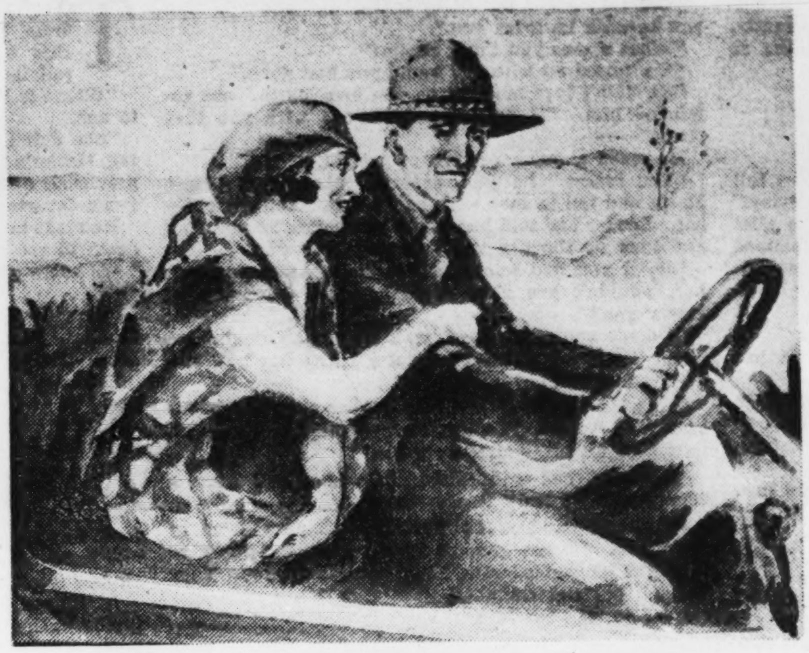
"Wasn't it grand in her to take the blame?"

"Yes," he admitted, grudgingly, "but I don't like her thinking you took it."

"But, Jo. Of course, she would think it was I, and—I remember now—when I saw that diamond I thought how easy it would be for anyone to lift it, and then when I was in her room, I hardly heard a word she said, because I was thinking, 'It's Jo. It's Jo's love that's made me different,' and then I got scared thinking that I might want to take it, and how awful it would have been if I had never met you and loved you. I got up and walked right out of the room, so I could be alone and think about you. It must have looked queer to her the way I acted—till she found the ring had been taken."

"I'll see Kurt," said Jo, "tell him about it, and he will find her."

"What's that sound?" interrupted Marta, looking about her in a puzzled way. "I've heard it before somewhere. Oh, I know! It's an airship."



"Aren't we going to stop at all, Mr. Sheriff Man?"

They looked up and, for the moment, lost all interest in things below.

"Holy smoke!" exclaimed Jo. "First one I ever saw! Gene said there was one in town a few days ago. Look! It's coming down corkscrew style! It's going to land there by Westcott's!"

CHAPTER XIV.

DOWN the road from the corral, Kurt chugged homeward in his crude little car. He had the manner of one whose heart is heavy, but whose resolution was still invincible.

A strange, unaccustomed sound, a faint, far-away buzzing made him glance upward. Two sharp-winged points were skimming through the air. He felt a thrill—the thrill of the unknown. He knew it must be one of the craft, foreign as yet to the hill country. In the distance he saw it swirl, loop and maneuver, spiral gracefully downward, skim the earth lightly, rise again and then descend from sight hidden by one of the hills.

In a few moments he saw it ascending again. It passed over him—so high up that it seemed but of bird size.

He was startled—lifted momentarily and dazedly from his plodding existence.

He had read of these ships of the air, but their reality had not been borne in on him until now.

He went on to the house. Three children rushed at him with football fury.

"Attaboy!" he cried, catching up Billy. "What is it?"

"Mother is in town with father and Mr. Hebler. Father just telephoned"——

Kurt had the feeling of something lifted—of help at hand.

"And," continued Francis placidly, "father said you were to take us to town in the big car and we'll all have dinner at the hotel and come back together. And he said to bring Aunt Pen. But you can't now."

"Run to her room, Francis, and tell her I want to speak to her."

"Aunt Pen has gone," said the boy, soberly.

"Gone! When—where?"

"I don't know. She kissed us good-by and she gave me a letter to give to you at dinner time."

"Give it to me now, Francis."

"No; she said she trusted me, and I told her I wouldn't give it to you till she said."

"Come with me, Francis," said Kurt, drawing him away from the other children. "I want to talk to you as man to man. We must always protect women, you know. Your Aunt Pen went away because she thought it best for her. It isn't best. Your mother is her best friend, and if she had been here, she wouldn't have let her go. If I had the letter, you see, I might be able to find where she had gone. Then I could ask her to come back."

Francis looked up at him oddly and said, in his little, old-man fashion:

"Maybe it would be best, but father says that a real man never breaks his word to a woman."

Kurt flushed slightly.

"I take off my hat to you, Francis. You are right."

Not believing that Pen would start out on foot, he went down to the garage. The cars were all accounted for. A visit to the stables proved the same as to the horses.

On his way back to the house he met Betty, who said to him in a stage whisper.

"Uncle Kurt, Aunt Penny is going to France. She went by way of Westcott's. Is that the way to France? Don't tell Francis I told. She is going to help the French and Belgium babies."

"Thank you very much, Betty."

This was a clew. She had doubtless started toward Westcott's expecting to get a lift to town. If no one had picked her up en route, he could easily overtake her in the big car, which Gene had now repaired.

"Go and tell the boys to get ready, Betty."

Betty sped gleefully away.

"Oh, Mr. Walters," hailed Mrs. Merlin, coming from the house, "when you see Mr. Hebler, tell him I put his diamond ring away. I'm awfully forgetful. I"——

"You put his diamond ring away? Where?" asked Kurt, faintly.

"It was like this. I couldn't get to sleep last night because a window was rattling in the hall, so I got up and went out to fix it. When I passed by Mr. Hebler's door, I saw his diamond ring on a table near the door. Ain't it awful how careless folks are! I opened a drawer in the table and slipped it in, and I clean forgot all about it till a little while ago. Maybe he's got it on by this time, though."

"All right, Mrs. Merlin, I'll tell him," said Kurt, hastily going in and up to Hebler's room. The diamond fairly blazed at him in accusation as he opened the drawer.

And yet Hebler had told him that he had the ring! He hadn't been in the house after he had said the ring was missing. And why had Pen said she took it? Maybe she had taken that method of returning it.

He went downstairs, pondering over the mystery. This time Marta stopped him, excitedly.

"Oh, Mr. Walters, Jo and I have been looking for you! Miss Lamont didn't take the ring."

"I know she didn't. I just learned, Marta, that Mrs. Merlin saw it on the table and put it away."

"Find Miss Lamont and tell her!" cried Marta in distress. "You see, she thought I took it. She had reason to think so—the way I acted. She was protecting me."

"I see," he said, despairingly. "I made her think you had taken it."

"Come outside and see Jo."

"Jo," he asked, desperately, when he had joined him, "do you know where she is? She has gone. I must know."

"Kurt, you might as well try to catch a piece of quicksilver as Penny Ante, if she don't want to be caught."

"Have you the slightest idea as to where she has gone or where she might have gone?"

"Maybe I could venture a guess. I'll have to know first why you want to know."

Something more compelling than any emotion he had yet known kept down the anger that otherwise would have arisen at being thwarted.

"I love her, Jo," he said, quietly.

"For how long, Kurt, have you loved her?"

"Since the first night I met her," he said, slowly and reminiscently. "When we camped on the trail. She lay asleep in the moonlight."

"Have you forgotten what you warned me against the day I told you about Marta—about marrying a thief."

"I was a simp, then, Jo. I had never been in love."

"Well," pursued Jo. "why didn't you tell her you loved her in the first place? Maybe it would have helped. It isn't much of a compliment to a girl to hang around and not say anything."

"Think, Jo. I supposed until Marta came, that Pen was your girl. I brought her up here to see if she could be reformed for you. I sent you away to Westcott's until I could tell if she were worthy of you."

"Say, Kurt, I am the simp. I never thought of that. She didn't think you really cared. Leave it to me. I'll tell her."

"But where is she? Don't let the boys know, but Betty leaked the fact that she was going to France. I can't think she was in earnest."

Jo whistled.

"I am beginning to get glimpses on a dark subject. I'll bet that is where he is making for, too."

"He? Who?" he asked quickly. "Hebler?"

"Hebler! She'd rather dodge him than you. No; I mean that aviator who landed over toward Westcott's a little while ago. I heard one of those fliers had been in town giving an exhibition. He was down to earth just about long enough to pick someone up. That was what she meant in the note she left for me when she said she was going by the Excelsior route."

"How would she know him, and how would she get word to him to come out here?"

"She told me she spent the day in town—let me see—day before yesterday, I think it was. Said she met a man there she used to know."

"She told me, too, she had been to town, but I thought she was only joking. I didn't believe her."

"There's a lot you could hear about her, Kurt, that you wouldn't believe right off the bat; but it's not me who's going to put you wise. Talk to Mrs. Kingdon about her. You'll not get the chance to interview Penny Ante very soon, I imagine. In the craft she must be traveling in, there's nothing about this ranch that can overtake her, but I'll do my level best. Let me see! She won't go to town. She'll want to keep out of Hebler's reach, of course."

"Why?" asked Kurt. "Do you know?"

"I know more than you do about her. A girl has to have someone to confide in and Little Penny Ante chose me. You scared her out, you know."

Kurt winced.

"They will naturally go in an opposite direction," pursued Jo. "They may fly over to the next station and take the eastbound. I'll take your car."

"No; you take the children to town, and I'll go in pursuit"——

"That'll never do. She won't try to dodge me."

CHAPTER XV.

IN THE little valley by Westcott's, Pen stood waiting and staring upward. At last she heard the sharp sound of an engine and saw the plane describing a sweeping circle. It came gently down, the little wheels rolling along the grass.

"I'm in debt to Hebler," said Larry. "It was only your fear of him that overcame your fear of flying."

Then, looking at her, he continued, confidingly: "I wouldn't take up the average girl, Pen, and especially one who owned up to being afraid. But I know you. You'll forget fear in the thrills. All you've got to do is to sit still, hold on and look out on the level. We won't do any swivels; just straight stuff, and you'll be as safe as you would any place."

She put on the hood and goggles and was adjusted to the seat.

"Now, where do you want to go?" he asked.

"Anywhere to lose myself. Hebby is in town and so—are others. Let us take the opposite direction and you can land me at some place where the eastbound stops and I can get some more luggage. Then we'll make plans."

"Suits me. First thing we'll do is to have a grand flight. Then I'll leave you at a nice, little, sky-high inn I know up in the clouds. I'll fly back to town, pay my bills, pack my traps and join you by train."

He started the engine. The plane skipped along for a few paces, then arose, it seemed to Pen, to great and dizzy heights. In spite of her instructions, she ventured to look down. Everything earthly was disappearing. They dodged the clouds, went above them and then slid down to the splendors of the sunlight. Over the hills at full speed they swept along, Larry's airwise, lightning-swift sensibilities making naught of change of currents and drafts. Then came the joy and thrill of a 60-mile straightaway spurt.

It was wonderful, but the most wonderful part of it to Pen was that she had not even a second of fear, although always this thought of being shot up suddenly straight into an unknown realm had been most terrifying.

Up there above the hills and in the clouds, she felt entranced, spiritualized. It was with a feeling of depression that she saw they were spinning down until

"Bosh! Zalac seldom makes a mistake." (Seldom was good). "Git busy. Lord, boy! I pay you to dig up ideas and then have to do all the thinking myself. See here; here's a peach. Work it up and I'll make myself believe its your own stuff. The minute we strike Eagle Bend you find a young couple about to be married and fix it for them to be wedded in front of Zalac's planking, him to operate with the knives while they're being made one. Think of the advertising value of that! The first and only couple in the world to be made on and ringed in with steel. Here, git this and remember to use it—'Ringed in with steel while the golden band, the gift of Col. Elijah Mosbey Betts, was being slipped onto the blushing bride's dainty finger.' "

I fled to my tent. It was like the Colonel. He firmly believed the first duty of every American citizen was to offer his carcass for the good of the Imperial shows; his second obligation being to defend his country in time of war. Not that he was a hard-hearted man, just his viewpoint.

I commenced pounding our routine stuff when the light suddenly failed. I looked up to see who had removed the sunshine. It was Oscar, the Human Mountain, a bashful grin breaking up the expanse of his broad face as he stood in the entrance toying with a hoss shoe.

One could treat Oscar more familiarly than he could Zalac, the weasel, and I nodded carelessly and asked, "What now, Ajax?"

"I ain't satisfied with my act, Mister Benam," he began.

"Meaning that you ain't satisfied or that the Colonel ain't?" I demanded.

"Oh, I guess the Colonel likes it, all right. If he don't he can lump it," he came back; and I began to soften for fear he might have a new offer up his sleeve.

"What's wrong with it?" I gently asked. "It seems to take."

"Takes all right with the mutts, yes," he rumbled. "But I don't care whether they like it or not!"

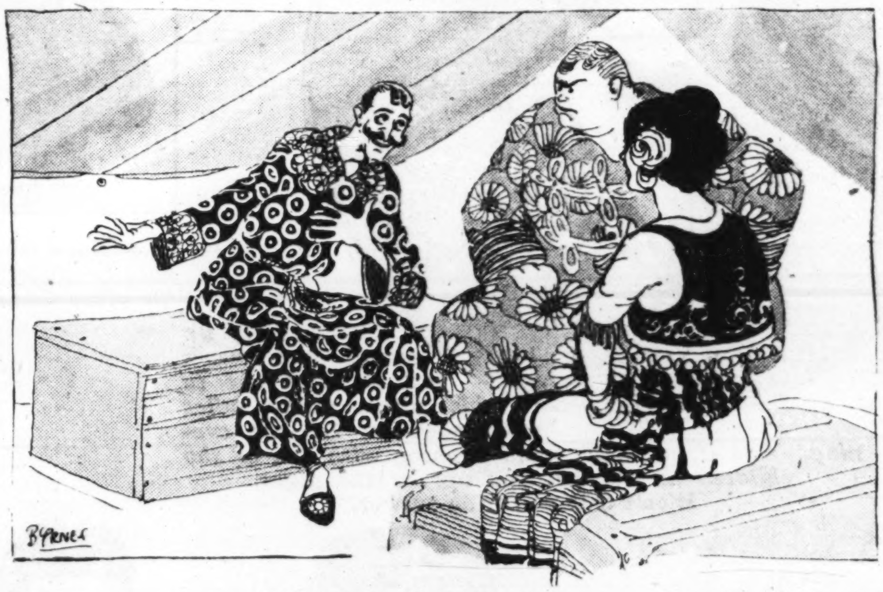
"For the love of Pete!" I yelled. "You don't care? S'ppose you know it's hick gold that's paying your weekly wage."

He snorted with disdain. "I don't care nothing what they think," he says, stepping forward and waving his hand and cracking the center pole. "What I want is a chance to show what I've got. This fooling with dead weights and a hoss tied up in a sling ain't no good. It don't satisfy me."

I remembered how Zalac said he wasn't satisfied. The trail began to look familiar. "What does Espanola think of it?" I carelessly asked.

His face became the sun at high noon and the full moon at harvest time. "She likes it as far as it goes," he gurgles, twisting the hoss shoe into a straight piece of metal.

"Well, how far does she expect a 15-minute act to go when we're playing six shows an hour?" I snapped, beginning to wish Miss Espanola would stick to her slackwire and come down only a grubtime.



He and Zalac were dividing the time by glaring at each other and making calf faces at her.

He diffidently tied the hoss shoe into a true-lover's knot and says: "She says it would have more pep if I could work in a new idea, one that would give me a chance to use my strength."

"Like tipping over the Singer Building?" I suggested.

"I don't think she'd thought of that. What she had in mind was for me to hitch hold of something that would fight back and give me a tussell. Say, Mister Benam, ever notice how women fall for the strong stuff?"

"You've been eating love powder," I sternly accused.

He sniggered foolishly; then with sudden savagery warned, "Me for some real act, or I close. See?"

I was exasperated enough to run round and kick him on the side next to the livery stable, but soft-pedaling was my long suit, and I mildly asked: "Well, just what do you want?"

He rubbed his nose thoughtfully with the hoss shoe and informed: "Espanola was telling about some motion pictures where a guy fought a bull in a circus ring and nearly twisted his dod blamed head off to save the life of the girl he loved. See?"

"Erhuh." Noncommittal.

"Well, that's about my size. When we strike Eagle Bend I want you to git a real frisky bull and let me at him, to show how strong I really be. That's all."

"All! You'd stage a regular parlor entertainment," I rapped out. "Think we're playing a Chautauqua circuit? You big bonehead, how can we pull a bullfight in a tent or anywhere on the carnival grounds, without messing up lots of inoffensive women and children?"

The idea was rooted and he would plow it up. "We could hire a vacant lot," he growled. "It would be a good advertising. Mine is the only real act in this rotten outfit. The stunt wouldn't cost anything except for the bull."

"You expect the chief to swap the show for the bull just so you can show how husky you are," I rebuked. "We'll get you a grand piano"——

"If I don't have a chance to show what I've got I'll close at Eagle Bend," he says, twisting the hoss shoe round his finger. "If a man can't express his art he might as well quit." With that he backed through the wall of the tent, snapping a guy rope.

Here was more trouble set brewing by that hussy of a slackwire performer. "If a man can't express his art!" The poor boob never knew those words were in the world till that minx babbled them in his ear. I hiked to the inn where the Colonel was telling some of his oldest lies to the loungers, and drawing him aside I explained the situation.

"Why bother me with trifles?" he complained. "Give some comps to a bull owner and arrange for the contest. If you'd scare up as good a scheme as that once a season we'd both be making more money."

"Sure. Rockefeller and me have a billion dollars—between us. What if the bull kills Oscar?"

"In that sad event he'll never figure as a rival attraction in some other show," he philosophically reminded. "Lord! How it would pack the tents at the Bend!"

"And what if he kills the bull? Know what beef on the hoof is bringing per hundred these days?" I shot back.

He winced. "I took it for granted Oscar would play it safe. If there's any danger to the bull—oh, Lordy! Fix it up to suit yourself." And he edged toward a man tented over with whiskers, who'd been swallowing his chestnuts for the gospel.

"I'll fix it," I grimly says. "Even if we pulled it off o k we'd lose Zalac. He'd close unless we dug up something as nifty for him. He'd want us to rent the Chicago Limited for him to stop with his knives. I'm going to see Espanola."

"Don't rile her," begged the Colonel, his eyes uneasy. "She ain't a large woman, but she'll cover lots of territory with harm if she ever explodes."

I hustled back to the ground and hunted her up. She was in the rest tent back of the cook tent, hypnotizing her audience of two. Only Oscar took up enough space for a community. He and Zalac were dividing the time by glaring murder at each other and making calf faces at her. And she, the little devil, was playing one against the other. I asked her to come to the press tent to look over a new writeup I'd framed round her and she quit the ginks so quick they must have believed they always had lived on a deserted island.

"See here, Kid," I began right off the bat, "you're queering the show by setting them two fellows against each other."

"I don't know what you mean, Mister Benam," she says, haughtily. "And please remember, I'm not 'Kid' except to my most int'mate friends."

"All right, Miss Poggenberry, I'll keep that fact in mind," I promised. She flushed and 'lowed we was good enough friends for me to clip it to 'Kid' if it came easier for me to speak it that way. I then patiently explained to her (for she was as irresponsible as a vibration) how bad it was for business if Oscar and Zalac cultivated a feud, and wound up by bluntily warning her she must quit incendiarying their hearts.

"But I'm sure I love him," she bleated.

"Him? Who? Which?" I cried, almost feeling a twinge of jealousy; for while Espanola wasn't a heavyweight on intellect, she weighed a million tons in good looks.

"That's what I can't decide," she sniveled, using her handkerchief, yet watching me in a maddening manner from the corner of one black eye.

"Great Scott! Trying to make a monkey of your old Uncle Jasper, who was wise to the seasons and the ways of snakes long before you were born?" I snapped.

"Honest Injun," she sobs, "I like them both, but"——

"Erhuh?"

"But with both so partial to me, I don't seem to like one well enough to hurt the other's feelings."

"You must have a dual nature, like the Siamese twins," I suggested.

She lifted her head and I see she was getting mad, but she held in and simply says: "I s'pose it must be Oscar. He's so big and strong."

"Rival suitors fight a duel with weighing scales, the heaviest weight taking the lady," I cried, making a note for a press story if it should come down to tacks.

"I'm not joking," she coldly warned. "Zalac interested me the most at first, but"——

"Sit down on this mossy log, leetle gal, and tell me the story of yuh life," I encouraged.

"Git out with your fooling," she flamed up. "Zalac did and does interest me. But when Oscar tossed me up onto my wire one day, just like I was a rubber ball, I—I seemed to think I like him best."

"Then you opine it's to be Oscar?" I pressed.

She nodded, whispering, "Yes, I think it must be him."

"All right, but settle it definitely," I insisted. "It'll mean the loser closes. But if it ain't the other both will close with one preceding the other to the golden shore. You've made yourself responsible for a whole lot."

"One can't help one's heart," she giggled, twisting on her heel like a country lass at a public spelling bee.

"When will you flash the word for Oscar to mobilize?" I asked, hoping we could stave the crisis off till after we'd looted Eagle Bend.

She imitated deep thought by frowning, and puckered up her red lips in a way to drive a bachelor mad. "Of course, Oscar must prove himself," she murmured. "I think he will do it at the next stand. No, don't ask me any more questions."

This last shifted me back onto Oscar's trail, and after the gate closed that night I held him up and bluntily asked what scheme was mellowing in the back of his concrete nut. He grinned in his vacuous fashion and says: "Oh, nothing for certain. Nothing to hurt the show, whatever it is. Just a new idea. Mebbe it can't be put over. Just leave it to me, Mister Benam." Which being all I could do, I did.

A few days later we pulled up stakes and Oscar beat us to Eagle Bend by several hours, skipping ahead on the limited. This left Zalac an open field with Espanola, but he didn't git much enjoyment out of it. One minute she'd be tender and comforting; the next she'd turn him down among the blue devils. I watched her close and decided she was really troubled about something. Anyway, Oscar's manner on quitting us reminded me of the anchor of hope set in diamonds, he was that happy.

The minute I struck the Bend I got wise to what our Human Mountain had been up to. On his own hook he'd found a man who was willing to rent an ugly bull for a ring rassle. What swept me off my feet was to learn he'd had brains enough to wire a moving picture concern and arrange (for a suitable purse) to let the camera take a film of his big bout. I'd never before credited him with really thinking.

I saw the light, pure and high, when Espanola whispered in my off ear: "The poor goose ain't got any idea how to make his talent pay."

"Picture's your notion, of course?"

"Who's else?" she says, in surprise. "I'm to do the thinking while Oscar tends to keeping in condition."

The bullfight in the farmer's pasture drew from miles around every Ezra who had a leg. Col. Betts thought I'd arranged it and talked vaguely of giving me an interest in the show. It was a sure bet every spectator of the free fight would pack the tents to see the victor or his corpse.

Zalac woofed like a bear when he learned what was on the cards and swore if I didn't provide a human

"HAVE you," she asked, cynically, "always been so straight that you don't know what temptation means? Have you never wanted anything so much that you"——

"That I wanted to steal? No; not even to steal your affections when I thought they belonged to Jo. I will spare you exposure. When I return the ring to Hebler I will tell him it was found on the floor by a servant."

"Thank you," she said, meekly. "If he knew I were here, he'd know who the 'servant' was. What do you propose to do with me now? Return the goods to Bender, or squeal on me to Hebby?"

"I don't know until I have talked it over with Mrs. Kingdon."

"That is very considerate and fair in you," she commended. "Some way I feel confident she will think I should have another chance. You owe me something. 'Kind Kurt.'" she continued, lightly, with a return of the flippancy that had so jarred him on their first meeting, "suppose I had been weak enough to accept your proposal last night? I knew my lapses too well and was too considerate of your happiness to say 'yes.' Suppose I had. Would your sense of honor have been equal to the sacrifice of keeping faith with me? No; I see by your face it would not have been. So you see, your love—your man's love, isn't great enough for even a thief to consider."

"Give me the ring," he said, coldly.

"No; I prefer to return it myself. I'll take my chances with Hebby. Even he isn't as merciless as you. And as I said, his claim is prior to yours. I never expected to take refuge with Hebby! Where is he now?"

"He has gone to the garage. Wait! You shall not go."

He put out a detaining arm, under which she ducked and fled nimbly down the stairs and out to the door. She heard him pursuing, but she jumped on Francis' wheel which stood near and was gone coasting down the driveway to the garage.

"Hebby! Oh—oh, Hebby!" she called to the man sauntering at some distance ahead of her.

"The thief!" he exclaimed, as she came up to him and dismounted. "So, at last I've found you!"

"Found me! Well, I like that! Here I come chasing after you and doing the finding myself. Really lost your ring this time, Hebby? Didn't seem like your 'code' to mention your loss to so new an acquaintance. Sort of a breach, wasn't it?"

He flushed, shamefacedly, but his discomfiture, short-lived, was succeeded by a broad grin.

"Then it was you who took it! That tall, solemn guy seemed to think he could recover it, but I am more delighted at recovering you than a hundred rings."

"May I keep it, Hebby?"

"You always said you detested that ring—that it was very parvenu and so forth. But what are you doing up here, and how did you get in with these folks?"

"Can't a thief break in anywhere? It's far more surprising how you got in."

"You'll not escape me again. You'll go with me when I leave."

"Thank you, Hebby. I'm through here. Will you do me a favor?"

"You don't deserve favors."

"You never did favor the deserving, you know. Will you tell the 'tall, solemn guy' that you have your ring all right? I'll see you get it. I haven't it on me. But this is the real favor. No one here, except Mrs. Kingdon and one of the men on the place knows very much about my checkered career and they only know me by my baptismal name."

"Which I'm not sure that I know, Meg. You have so many names."

"I took my own as a perfect disguise. It's Penelope Lamont."

"Fine name. I'll make a note of it for future use. I'll keep your secret if you'll not try to run away again. You haven't told me how you came here."

"I was—apprehended. But I am not on a thief's hand. It's for a reason apart from my other life. You know, Hebby, thieves do have a code of honor."

"You are the one and only thief! I take off my hat to you. Say, how did that tall guy know you had it?"

"He didn't. He suspected someone else. You can have it back, Hebby. It's so garish it puts my eyes out. I didn't want it. I just wanted to steal it."

"Ruling passion, Meg."

"No; you're way off. Here comes the 'solemn guy.' Tell him I found it and returned it to you."

Just then Kingdon drove around the curve.

"Glad to see you again, Miss Pen. I thought you had forsaken us. I see you've made Mr. Hebler's acquaintance. But I must take him away from you for a while."

As Hebler got into the car, Kurt came up.

"Oh, Mr. Walters, I'm happy to say I have my ring. Meg—Miss Lamont saw it and took it for a joke on me. Sorry I mentioned it."

A little wave of remorse swept over Pen for a second as she turned to Kurt and saw the look in his eyes when the two men had driven off.

"He seemed to have an air of proprietorship," he said, jealously. "Has he really a legal right to take you away?"

"Looks that way. Mrs. Kingdon thought so. I never could get legal stuff through my head. It was for an offense committed long ago, but not outlawed. There is something I want to say to you. Last night you asked me to marry you—don't look so afraid of the cars! I am not going to sue you for breach of promise. I wouldn't marry the grandest man living unless he loved me supremely—enough, at least, to overlook the stealing of a ring. Kurt," she added, after a pause, "did it occur to you I might have had a reason for stealing that ring? To put you to the test—your love, I mean—before answering you?"

"Pen"——

"Never mind, now. Jo wouldn't have gone back on me if he had been my lover. There's the ideal lover for you. There's one thing I didn't try to steal up here—Jo from Marta. Well, it's over now, and I am going back—back with Hebby."

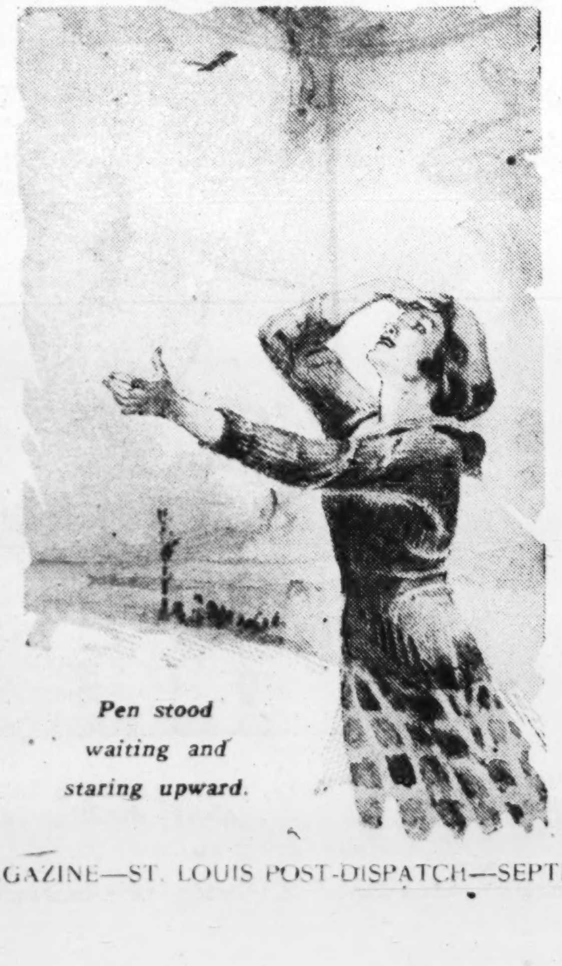
"You are not going away with that man," he said, hotly. "Mrs. Kingdon arrives today. She will find a way out."

"I think not. You don't know Hebby. I think I want to go with him."

"You see," he said, looking at her wistfully, "you didn't love me"——

"Then we're quits," she laughed, jumping quickly on the wheel and speeding toward the house.

"The beans are sure spilled now," she thought, when she had gained her room. "I've outwitted Kurt, and I must give Hebby the same treatment, but how can I make my getaway? Hebby in town—and such a small town. They took the racer. The big car is out of commission. Sandy rode to the corral in Kurt's shebang. No horse leaves the stables without Kurt's o k. Oh, for the wings of a dove! There's my inspiration! I know some better wings than a dove's. I'll telephone Larry and literally fly from here."



Pen stood waiting and staring upward.

She went into Mrs. Kingdon's room, where there was an extension telephone and called up Larry at the hotel. Fortunately, he was within call.

"Want to do something for me, Larry, dear? Hebby is here! I'm in a mixup, as I generally am. No way out, unless you'll fly to me up here. I mean it. Inquire the way to Westcott's ranch—the next beyond Top Hill, where I am. Land by a big, red-roofed barn—only red roof in vicinity. I'll be there at 3 this afternoon, and be yours forever after, if you'll have me. I knew I could count on you. This is really serious, Larry. If you love me, don't fail me."

She hung up the receiver with a sigh of relief.

"To think of my falling back on Larry, whom I used to consider a lightweight. He is my last ditch, and then I'm off by the overhill and skyville route. In the meantime, I'll make some manuscript memoirs to leave behind."

A note to Marta and a shorter one to Jo occupied but a few moments' time, but she wrote swiftly and steadily for an hour on a longer one. When she had a bulky package she sealed it and addressed it to Kurt. An explanatory letter to Mrs. Kingdon then followed.

"I'll have to travel light—a beach comber's outfit," she thought as she prepared for departure.

She gave the notes for Jo and Marta to Agatha, to be delivered on their return. She had a few moments' confidential conversation with Francis, bade the others good-by and then sped down the road to Westcott's.

CHAPTER XIII.

AGATHA came out to the driveway to stop the buckboard and deliver the notes.

Marta read the one handed to her as they drove on to the stables.

"What 'tis, honey," Jo asked in alarm, as he reined up and turned to her.

There was a wild, distraught look in Marta's eyes, and her face had suddenly turned very pale.

"Oh, Jo! Pen"——

"Wait!" he cautioned, as Gene came out of the stable.

"Unhook for me, will you, Gene?" he asked.

"Now, Marta, what is it?" he again asked, anxiously as they were walking back to the house.

"Read your letter, Jo, and see what it says."

He read aloud:

"Dear Jo: Leaving Top Hill forever by the Excelsior route. Had to. Never go back on Little Marta. Will see you somewhere, some time. At 4 this afternoon come to Westcott's red-roofed barn and get Francis' wheel. Yours, Penny Ante."

"What has happened to send her off in such skyrocket fashion?" he asked. "What did she say to you?"

"Jo, we must find her at once. Let's go to Westcott's the quickest way we can."

"What is it, Marta?"

"That Mr. Hebler who is visiting here, you know," said Marta breathlessly. "Well, he missed a diamond ring. He left it on a table near his door—I saw it. When we came back from our walk last night, I went to Miss Lamont's room. His door was open. A great whopping diamond ring was on the table—and"——

"Yes, Marta," he said, encouragingly, as she paused.

"When she found it was gone, she told Mr. Walters and Mr. Hebler that she took it, so as to protect me. That's why she has gone."

"She's a trump! Read me her note, Marta.

"Dear Little Marta: You must do just as I say. I told Mr. Walters and Mr. Hebler I took the ring. Give it to Mr. Hebler and tell him I left it with you to hand to him. Never do it again, Marta. Jo is worth a whole mine of diamonds. When I am safely and far away, will let your hear from me. With love. Pen."

"Some girl!" exclaimed Jo. "But she isn't as keen as I thought, or she'd have known you didn't take the ring."

"Jo, do you believe"——

"Shucks, honey! I know you didn't. I wouldn't believe you if I saw you take it. Here, little girl"——

He stopped, put his arm around her, lifted the little face and kissed the tears from it. "What's the matter with you?"

"Jo, I didn't take it!"

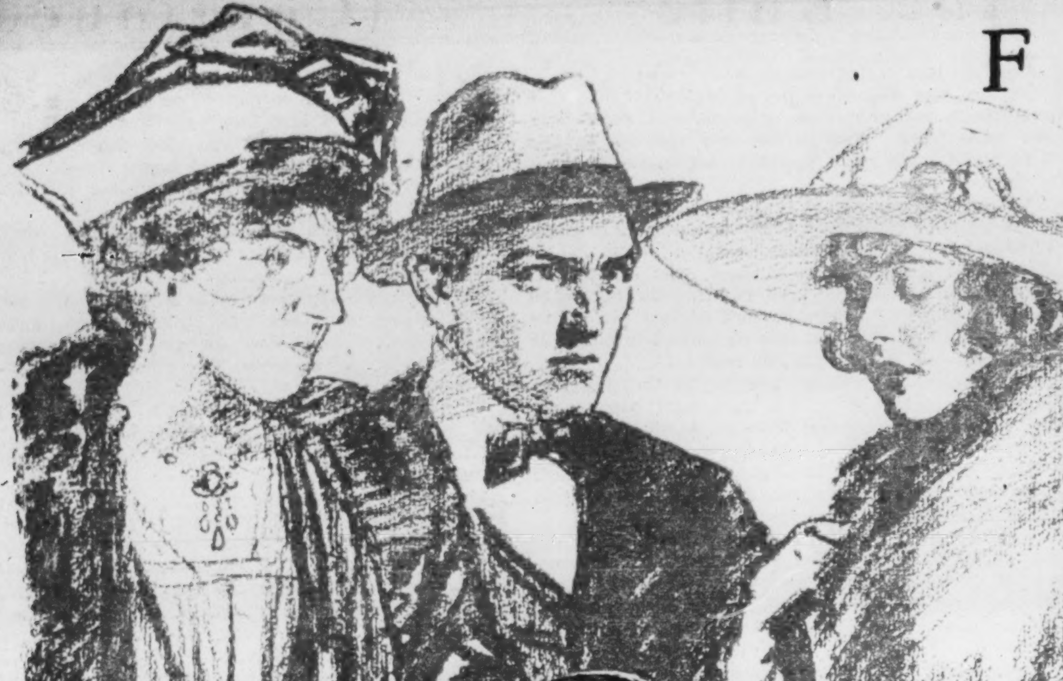
"Don't I know you didn't, honey!"

"It's nice in you to know it, Jo. But—suppose, I had taken it"——

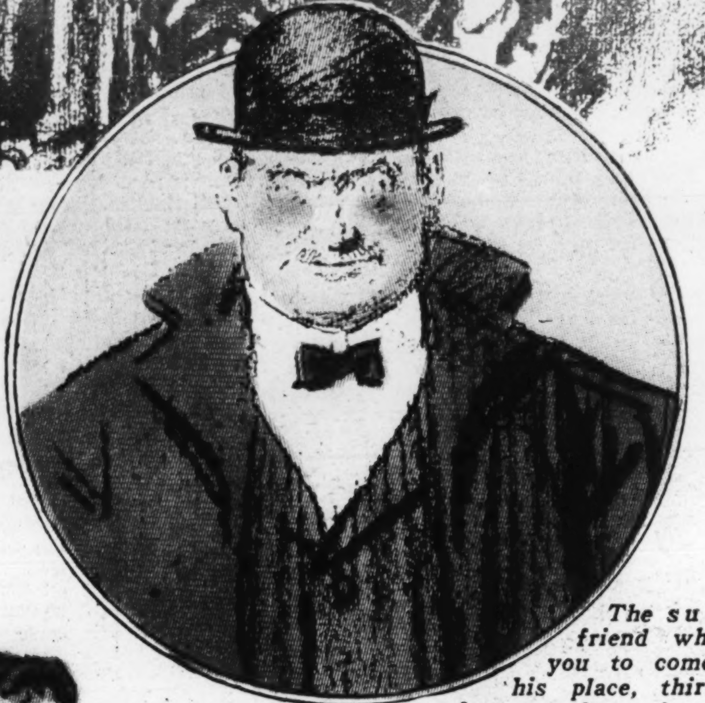
"I'd have given it back and rustled around till I

FRIENDS

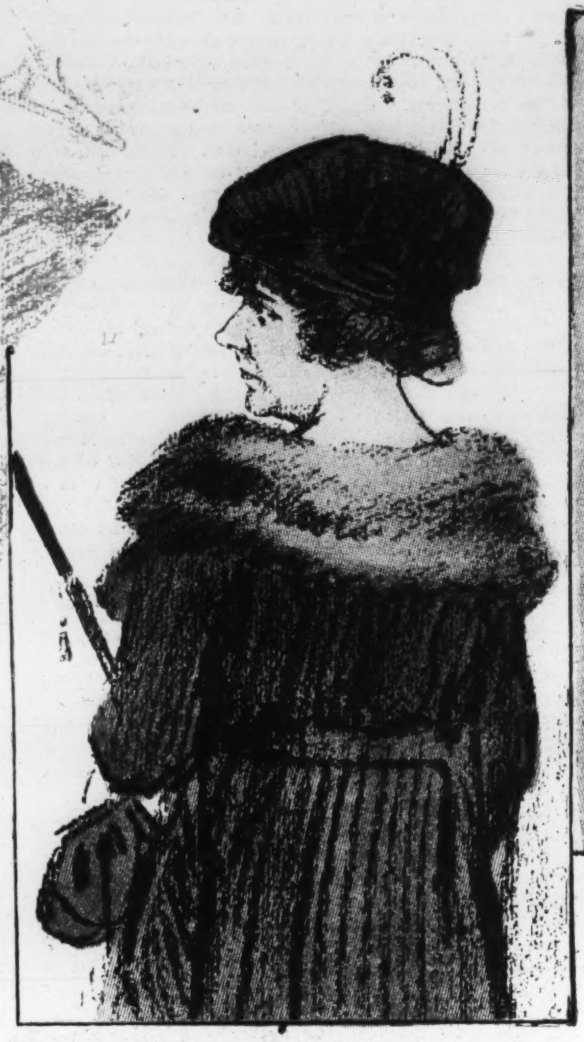
Character Sketches by W. E. HILL



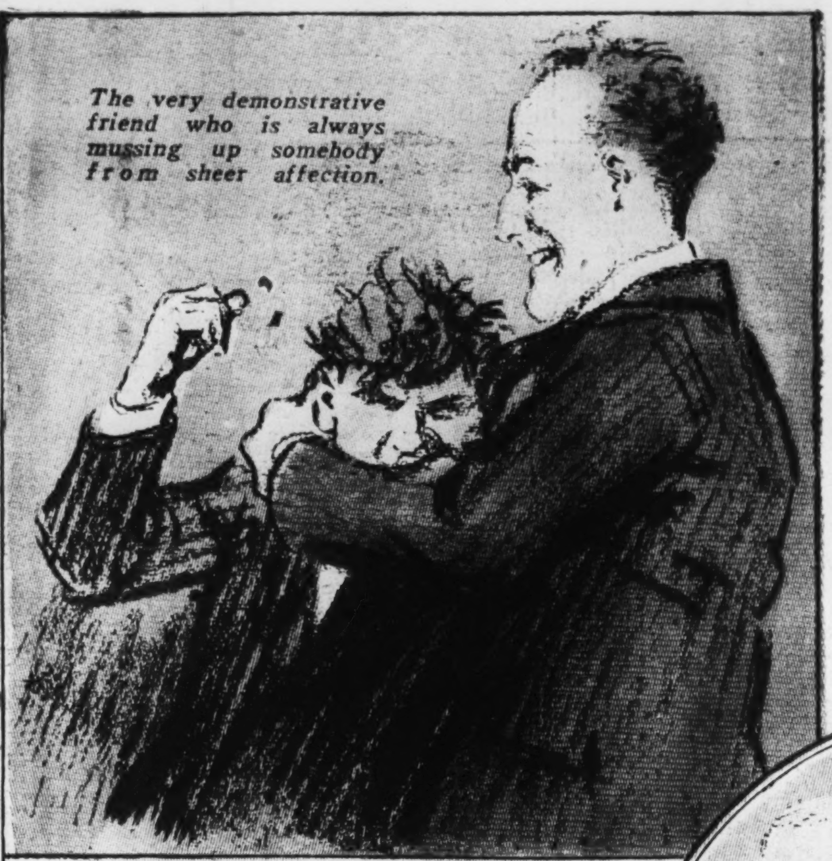
The pretty girl's intimate friend, George, can't see why, if Mabel has to get these crushes on school girl friends, she can't for once pick a winner.



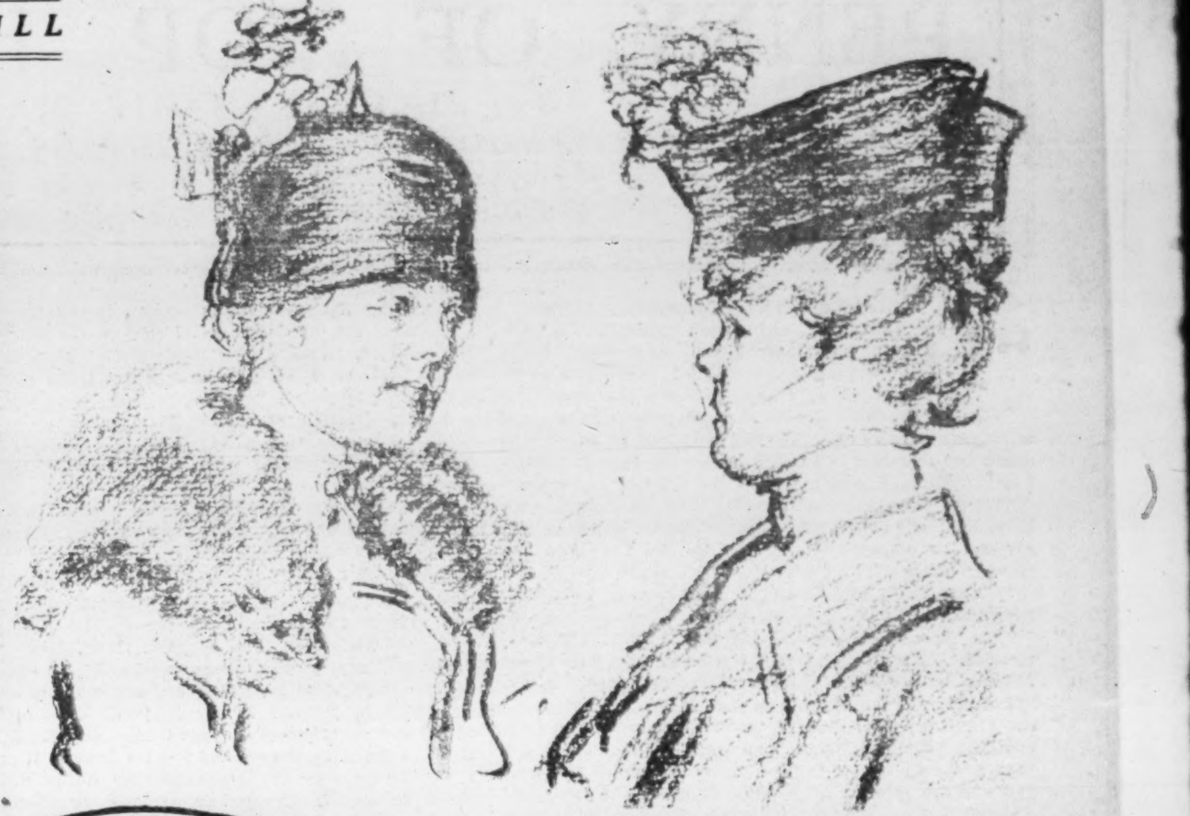
The suburban friend who wants you to come out to his place, thirty miles from nowhere, for the evening. And if you don't mind bunking with two of the children he can put you up for the night. Won't take no for an answer.



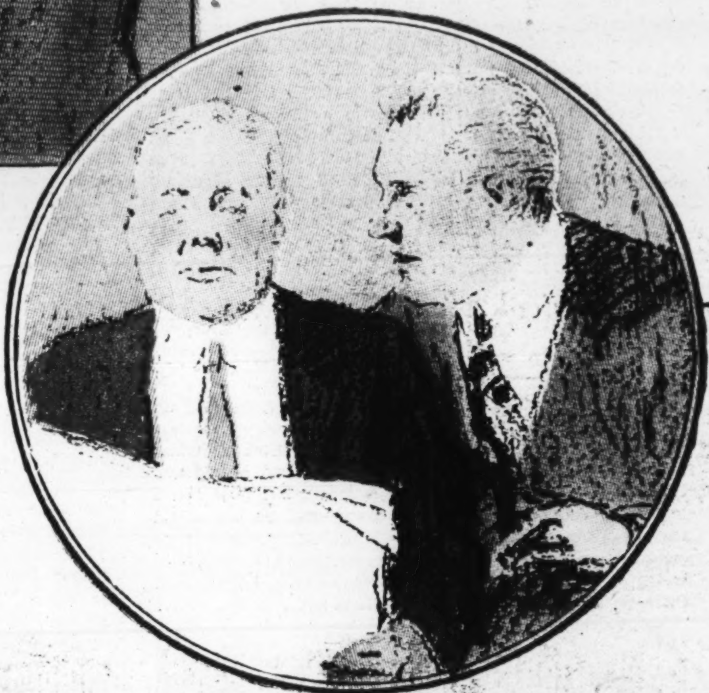
The friend who is always getting her feelings hurt by something or somebody. Someone on the other side of the street may have failed to bow to her.



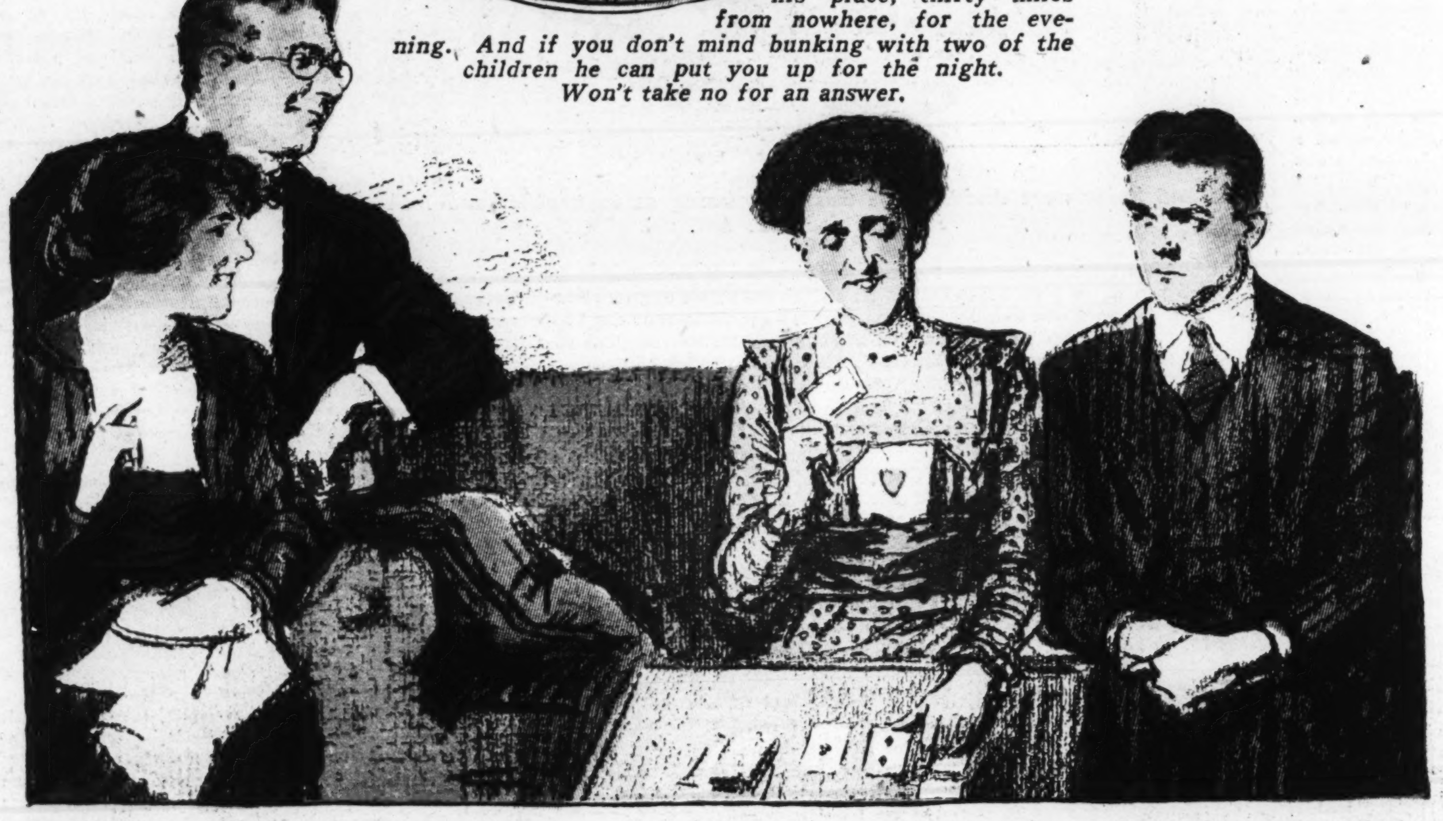
The very demonstrative friend who is always mussing up somebody from sheer affection.



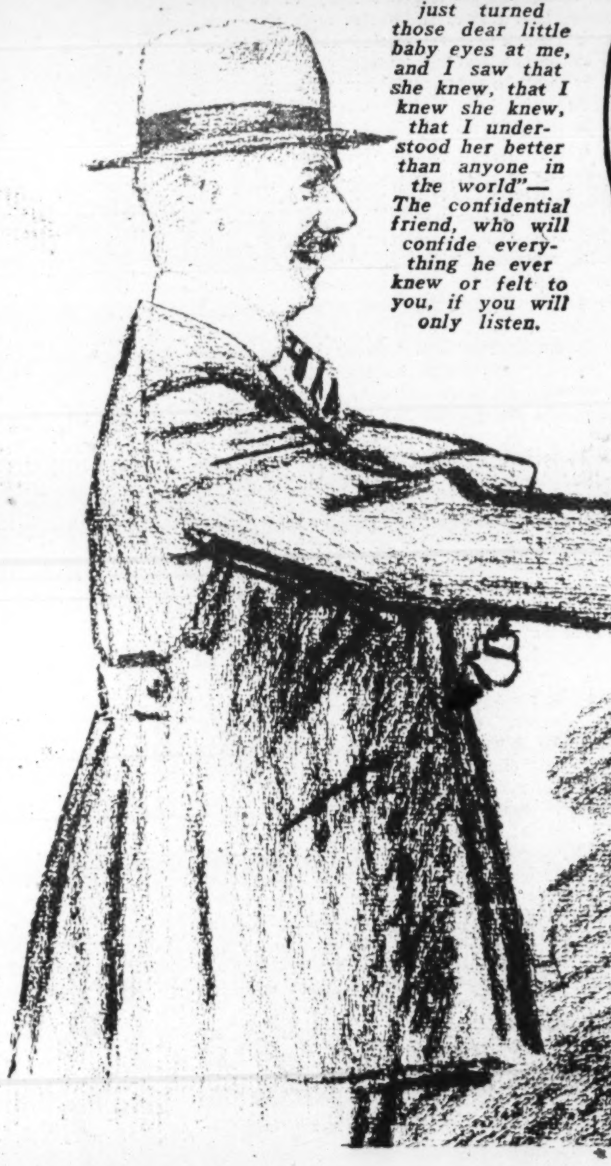
"Of course, I didn't believe a word of it, but I wanted you to know what they were saying about you." The dear friend who is always telling someone unpleasant truths for their own good. But if you try to tell her any——!



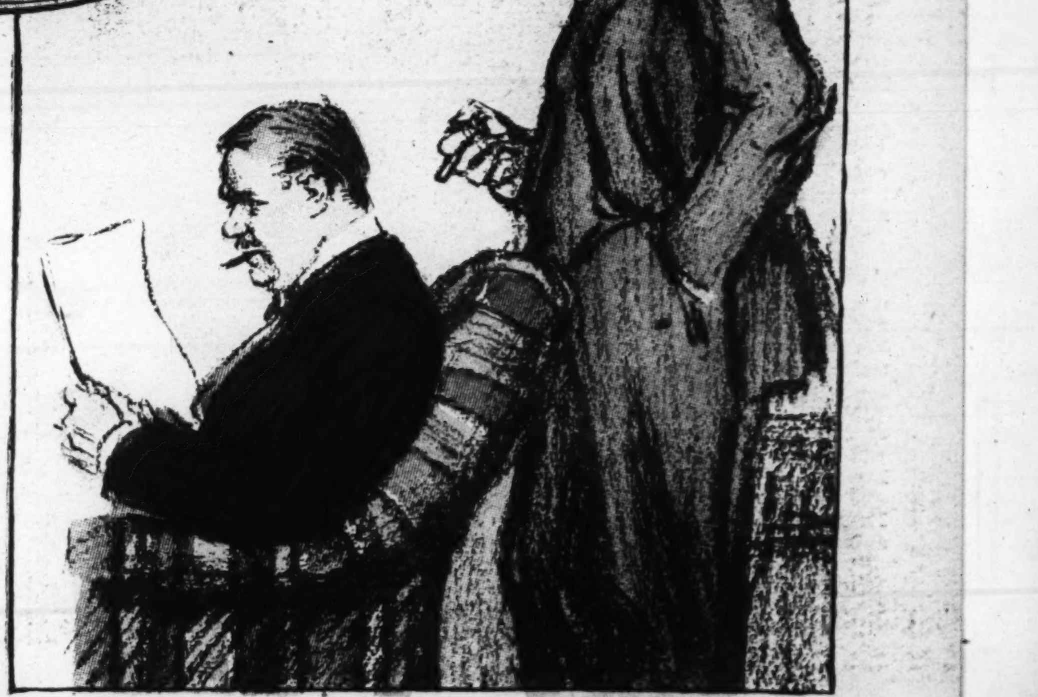
"Well, do you know, Art, she just turned those dear little baby eyes at me, and I saw that she knew, that I knew she knew, that I understood her better than anyone in the world"—The confidential friend, who will confide everything he ever knew or felt to you, if you will only listen.



The match-making friends—newlyweds—who leave no stone unturned to make a go of it between her most intimate friend and one of his college pals. And, as it usually happens, Miss Pinney and "Old Walt" Jones are not getting along nearly as well as their newlywed friends hoped—although Miss Pinney is doing her bit nobly with fortune-telling cards. She has just discovered that Mr. Jones had measles when young (all due to the position of the ace of clubs), and what is more, the ace of hearts shows by its position on the table that a successful marriage is imminent! "Oh, you naughty, naughty boy—what have you got to tell us?" murmurs Mrs. Newlywed, in raptures.



The old college friend whom you didn't see much of for some time after you left college. Then, all of a sudden, he goes into the insurance game and you see a great deal of him, and learn all about thirty-five year endowment policies, etc., etc.



"Harry, you're getting a bald spot." The observant friend, who is always dwelling on one's personal shortcomings.

Many people spoil their nails by the wrong kind of care

What causes rough cuticle and hangnails

How to have smooth, even cuticle, perfect nails

ONLY a bit of cuticle one-twelfth of an inch wide covers each delicate nail root. You can see from the diagram what a tiny protection this is.

Yet the nail root is very sensitive. When it is injured, the nail which grows from it, and the cuticle which covers it, are spoiled.

Some people actually cut the fine rim of cuticle which protects the nail root!

Sometime, see for yourself the injury cuticle cutting does: Look through a magnifying glass at a cuticle that has been manicured with scissors or knife.

What the magnifying glass reveals

You will see that there are many little raw places where more than the dead skin has been cut. The live cuticle itself, the real protection of the nail root has been actually cut away:

In the little places where it has been cut, this live skin grows especially fast. It grows up much faster than the rest of the cuticle. In this way an uneven edge is formed. This ragged edge splits and forms rough places and hangnails.

Well kept nails depend on faithful, gentle care. Easily you can keep your nails so charming that your friends consider them one of your special beauties.

The delicate nail root is only one-twelfth in. below the cuticle. People injure it by cutting the cuticle.

When cuticle is neglected, it sticks tight to the nail. The growing nail pulls it up unevenly to form an ugly line. The cuticle dies, dries up and becomes a horny white rim. Then it splits in places and forms rough edges and hard hangnails that catch on things.

A smooth oval margin to each nail

It is easy to keep your nails always in exquisite condition without cutting or over-rough pushing back. It is only a matter of a few minutes' care.

In the Cutex package you will find an orange stick and a quantity of absorbent cotton. Wrap some of the cotton around the end of the orange stick, dip it into the bottle and work it around the base of your nails. The surplus cuticle is softened, removed. Then carefully wash the hands with soap and water, pushing the cuticle back when drying them.

By this method, in only a few minutes you can keep your nails in perfect condition. Give your hands this care regularly and you will never again blush for their ragged, uncouth appearance.

A complete manicure set for only 20c

Now comes new knit underwear

Made with all their skill and care by Kayser, the originators of "Italian" Silk Underwear and Silk Gloves

SO different from the knit cotton and lisle union suits you have known—this adorable suit, daintily ribboned!

When Kayser set about making knit underthings for women, they went right to the bottom of things—even to the kind of yarn used for the knitting. Combed cotton entirely—the softest, the whitest—makes Kayser Knit Underwear a little lovelier than ordinary knit underwear.

That is why special attention is given to its finishing—why every garment is laundered and pressed before you buy it, so it is white, soft—not prickly and fuzzy!

After this, much is naturally expected of a Kayser Knit Union Suit when it comes to comfort.

And you are not disappointed! Because it is made in a special way so it will fit perfectly.

Kayser cuts each garment from a shaped pattern—one at a time. Fits them so that every woman can find her size. Measures them again before sending them out. Inspects them again and again!—every step according to the high Kayser standard.

Go today to your department store and get the saleswoman to show you a Kayser Knit Union Suit or Vest in your size. See the finish, the softness, the beauty of it!

Soft and snowy—freshly laundered—daintily ribboned—Kayser Knit Union Suits and Vests are things of beauty and joy forever!

Not the knit union suits you have known, but a new thing—one with the fine, slender lines, the trim tailored band tops Kayser Silk Union Suits have! And its Marvelfit seat makes it so comfy!

Perspiration hurts fabrics

Launder your blouse the moment it gets soiled!

WHEN you lay aside a blouse that is even slightly soiled, have you ever stopped to think what happens to it?

Perspiration contains acids that are harmful to delicate materials. These acids attack the fabric and make it "tender." Leaving your blouse like this even a day will damage it.

The moment your blouse gets soiled, dip it into pure Lux suds!

Lux comes in delicate glistening flakes, that melt instantly in hot water and whisk up into a rich, cleansing lather. The gentle Lux way of washing will save your blouse from the harm even a trace of perspiration does to frail things!

Your grocer, druggist or department store has Lux.—Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

To wash sheer silk blouses

Whisk a tablespoonful of Lux into a thick lather in half a bowlful of very hot water. Add cold water till lukewarm. Dip your blouse through the foamy lather many times. Squeeze the suds through it—do not rub. Rinse three times in clear lukewarm water. Squeeze the water out—do not wring. Roll in a towel. When nearly dry press with a warm iron—never a hot one. Georgette crêpe blouses should be gently pulled into shape as they dry and also should be shaped as they are ironed.

Lux won't hurt anything pure water alone won't injure.

THESE NUTS ARE MEAT AND DRINK TO THE ISLANDERS OF THE PACIFIC

"The Cow of Trees"
—from an Article in the Literary Digest

STEVENSON once called the coconut "the giraffe of trees." Intrinsically, it is "the cow of trees." In the South Seas, a coconut grove is as a herd of beef cattle to us.

The metaphor of "the cow of trees," indeed, is apt. Mothers feed the expressed juice of the nut to infants for a day or two after birth, and instances are known of children who feed for eighteen months on nothing else than this rich, chalk-white, creamy fluid. Meat of the young nut is a delicious custard.

"THE cow of trees" provides the rich, fresh, wholesome source of Nucoa Nut Butter. And to "the cow of trees" belongs the credit for the low price of Nucoa---a "herd" of coconut trees costs nothing to feed!

Nucoa is a pure churning of nuts and milk—clean and kept so from beginning to end by the sanitary Nucoa print carton.

Instead of Cow Butter—
NUCOA
The Original Nut Butter

COSTS less because coconuts are more plentiful than cows. Serve Nucoa with pride in the satisfaction it gives you and the money it saves.

Branded "Oleomargarine" to comply with the Federal law of 1886. Nut butter was then unknown. Nucoa contains no animal fat. You buy it white and color it yourself in a minute. Capsules containing the same color as used in cow butter are free. Directions surround each print. We are denied the right to color Nucoa at the churn. La-May Face Powder Is Harmless to the Most Delicate Skin

A specialist has at last perfected a pure face powder that positively will not cause enlarged pores, blackheads and irritations. In fact, while it is considered the best face powder, it is also a remedy for complexion troubles. It is guaranteed pure and harmless to the most delicate baby skin. It beautifies wonderfully because it helps to clear and lighten the skin and protect the complexion from blemishes. This new kind of face powder is made largely of an ingredient that skin specialists use in the treatment of the complexion. And it really stays on better than any other face powder. Of course, saying this, every one knows we mean the famous La-may Powder (French, Poudre L'Ame). This is the powder that does not contain starchy rice powder or dangerous white lead to make it adhere. White lead is a deadly poison and rice powder turns into a gluey paste that makes enlarged pores, blackheads and rice powder irritations. Because La-may is so pure and because it stays on so well it is now used by over a million American women. All dealers carry the large box, and many dealers also carry the small trial size. Be sure to try La-may. Then you will really know a perfect face powder. You will be sorry if you take a substitute. When you use this harmless powder and see how beautifully it improves your complexion, you will understand why La-may so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in America. Save this notice.

Under Searching Eyes—
Do you ever wince inwardly?

AN unexpected meeting—a battery of eyes focused upon your face— Can you meet it with composure? Is your skin flawless? Clear, lovely in coloring?

Or is there some blemish that stands out mercilessly in your own conciousness? Some fault in your complexion that you know observant eyes must take notice of?

There is nothing that so destroys a man's or woman's poise and self-confidence as the conciousness of a complexion at fault. Even a little blemish in some conspicuous place makes you miserably embarrassed. You want to shrink into the background. You lose your confidence, your gaiety. Your very personality is dimmed just when you are most anxious to appear at your best.

Yet this suffering is entirely needless. You need never be miserable and tongue-tied from such self-conciousness. Almost anyone, by simple, regular hygienic care of the skin can free her complexion of the defects that so commonly mar an otherwise lovely face.

Blackheads are such a disfigurement, Enlarged nose pores, a skin that will get shiny— These things can be corrected.

Take care of the new skin that is forming every day as old skin dies. Give it every night the right treatment for your particular trouble, and within a week or ten days you will notice a marked improvement.

Take one of the most common skin troubles. Perhaps your skin is constantly being marred by unsightly little blemishes. No doubt you attribute them to something wrong in your blood—but authorities on the skin now agree that in the great majority of cases, these blemishes are caused by bacteria and parasites that are carried into the pores from outside, through dust and fine particles in the air.

How to remove skin blemishes

By using the Woodbury method of cleansing your skin, you can free it from such blemishes.

Just before retiring, wash in your usual way with warm water and Woodbury's Facial Soap, finishing with a dash of cold water. Then dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy cream-like lather. Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this and leave it on for ten minutes. Then rinse very carefully with clear hot water, then with cold.

Use this treatment regularly and the blemishes will gradually disappear.

The famous treatment for conspicuous nose pores

Do you know what it is that causes conspicuous nose pores?

The pores of the face are not as fine as on other parts of the body. On the nose, especially, there are more fat glands than elsewhere, and there is more activity of the pores.

These pores, if not properly stimulated and kept free from dirt, clog up and become enlarged.

Try using this special treatment for conspicuous nose pores, and supplement it with the steady, general use of Woodbury's Facial Soap.

Wring a soft cloth from very hot water, lather it with Woodbury's Facial Soap, then hold it to your face. When the heat has expanded the pores, rub in very gently a fresh lather of Woodbury's. Repeat this hot water and lather application several times, stopping at once if your nose feels sensitive. Then finish by rubbing the nose with a piece of ice. Always dry your skin carefully.

Use this treatment every night before retiring, and before long you will notice how this gradually reduces the enlarged pores until they become inconspicuous. But do not expect to change completely in a week a condition resulting from long-continued exposure and neglect.

You will find Woodbury's Facial Soap on sale at any drug store or toilet goods counter in the United States or Canada. The booklet containing full directions for all the famous Woodbury treatments is wrapped around each cake.

Get a cake today and begin using it tonight. A 25 cent cake lasts for a month or six weeks of any one of these treatments.

Would you like to have a trial size cake?

For 6 cents we will send you the trial size cake (enough for a week of any Woodbury facial treatment) together with the booklet of treatments. Or for 15 cents we will send you the treatment booklet and samples of Woodbury's Facial Soap, Facial Powder, Facial Cream and Cold Cream. Address The Andrew Jergens Co., 9906 Spring Grove Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio.

If you live in Canada, address The Andrew Jergens Co., Limited, 9906 Sherbrooke Street, Perth, Ontario.

HELLO LARRY! I'M FREE TO-NIGHT. HOW ABOUT A LITTLE GAME?
I'M SORRY W. GOT TO GO OUT OF TOWN. IMPORTANT. SORRY-
I'LL SAY THIS IS THE LIMIT, CAN'T GET ANY OF THE BOYS. NOW I'VE GOT TO DINE ALONE.
RAINING! CAN YOU BEAT IT. WELL, I GUESS I'VE GOT TO GO HOME.
WHAT'S GOIN ON HERE, I SEE IT ALL NOW. A PUT UP JOB TO KEEP ME AT THE OFFICE
SO YOU THOUGHT YOU'D PUT ONE OVER ON ME EH! ME WORKIN' HARD AT THE OFFICE AN' YOU GINKS HOME HERE HAVIN THE TIME OF YOUR LIFE
—AND THEN IT STARTED TO RAIN, AND WE DECIDED TO COME HOME. ON THE WAY HOME WE MET TWO OF BROTHERS FRIENDS RUNNING HOME THRU THE RAIN. AND I INVITED THEM HERE-
I'LL TELL 'EM WHERE TO GIT OFF!
GOOD - - EVENING!
THERE YOU ARE! GIRLS, MEET MY BROTHER-IN-LAW MR. W
WELL, BROTHER, IT HAS STOPPED RAINING. WE MUST BE GOING
YES. WE MUST GO.
CAN WE SEE YOU LADIES HOME?
I'LL SEE 'EM HOME W. YOU STAY HERE WITH PANSY
HE'S A PIECE OF CHEESE. *-!!-?
SOUNDS GOOD TO ME
NOW YOU SAID SOMETHIN GIRL.
WHEN WE GET HOME I'LL MAKE A RAREBIT, EH WOT!

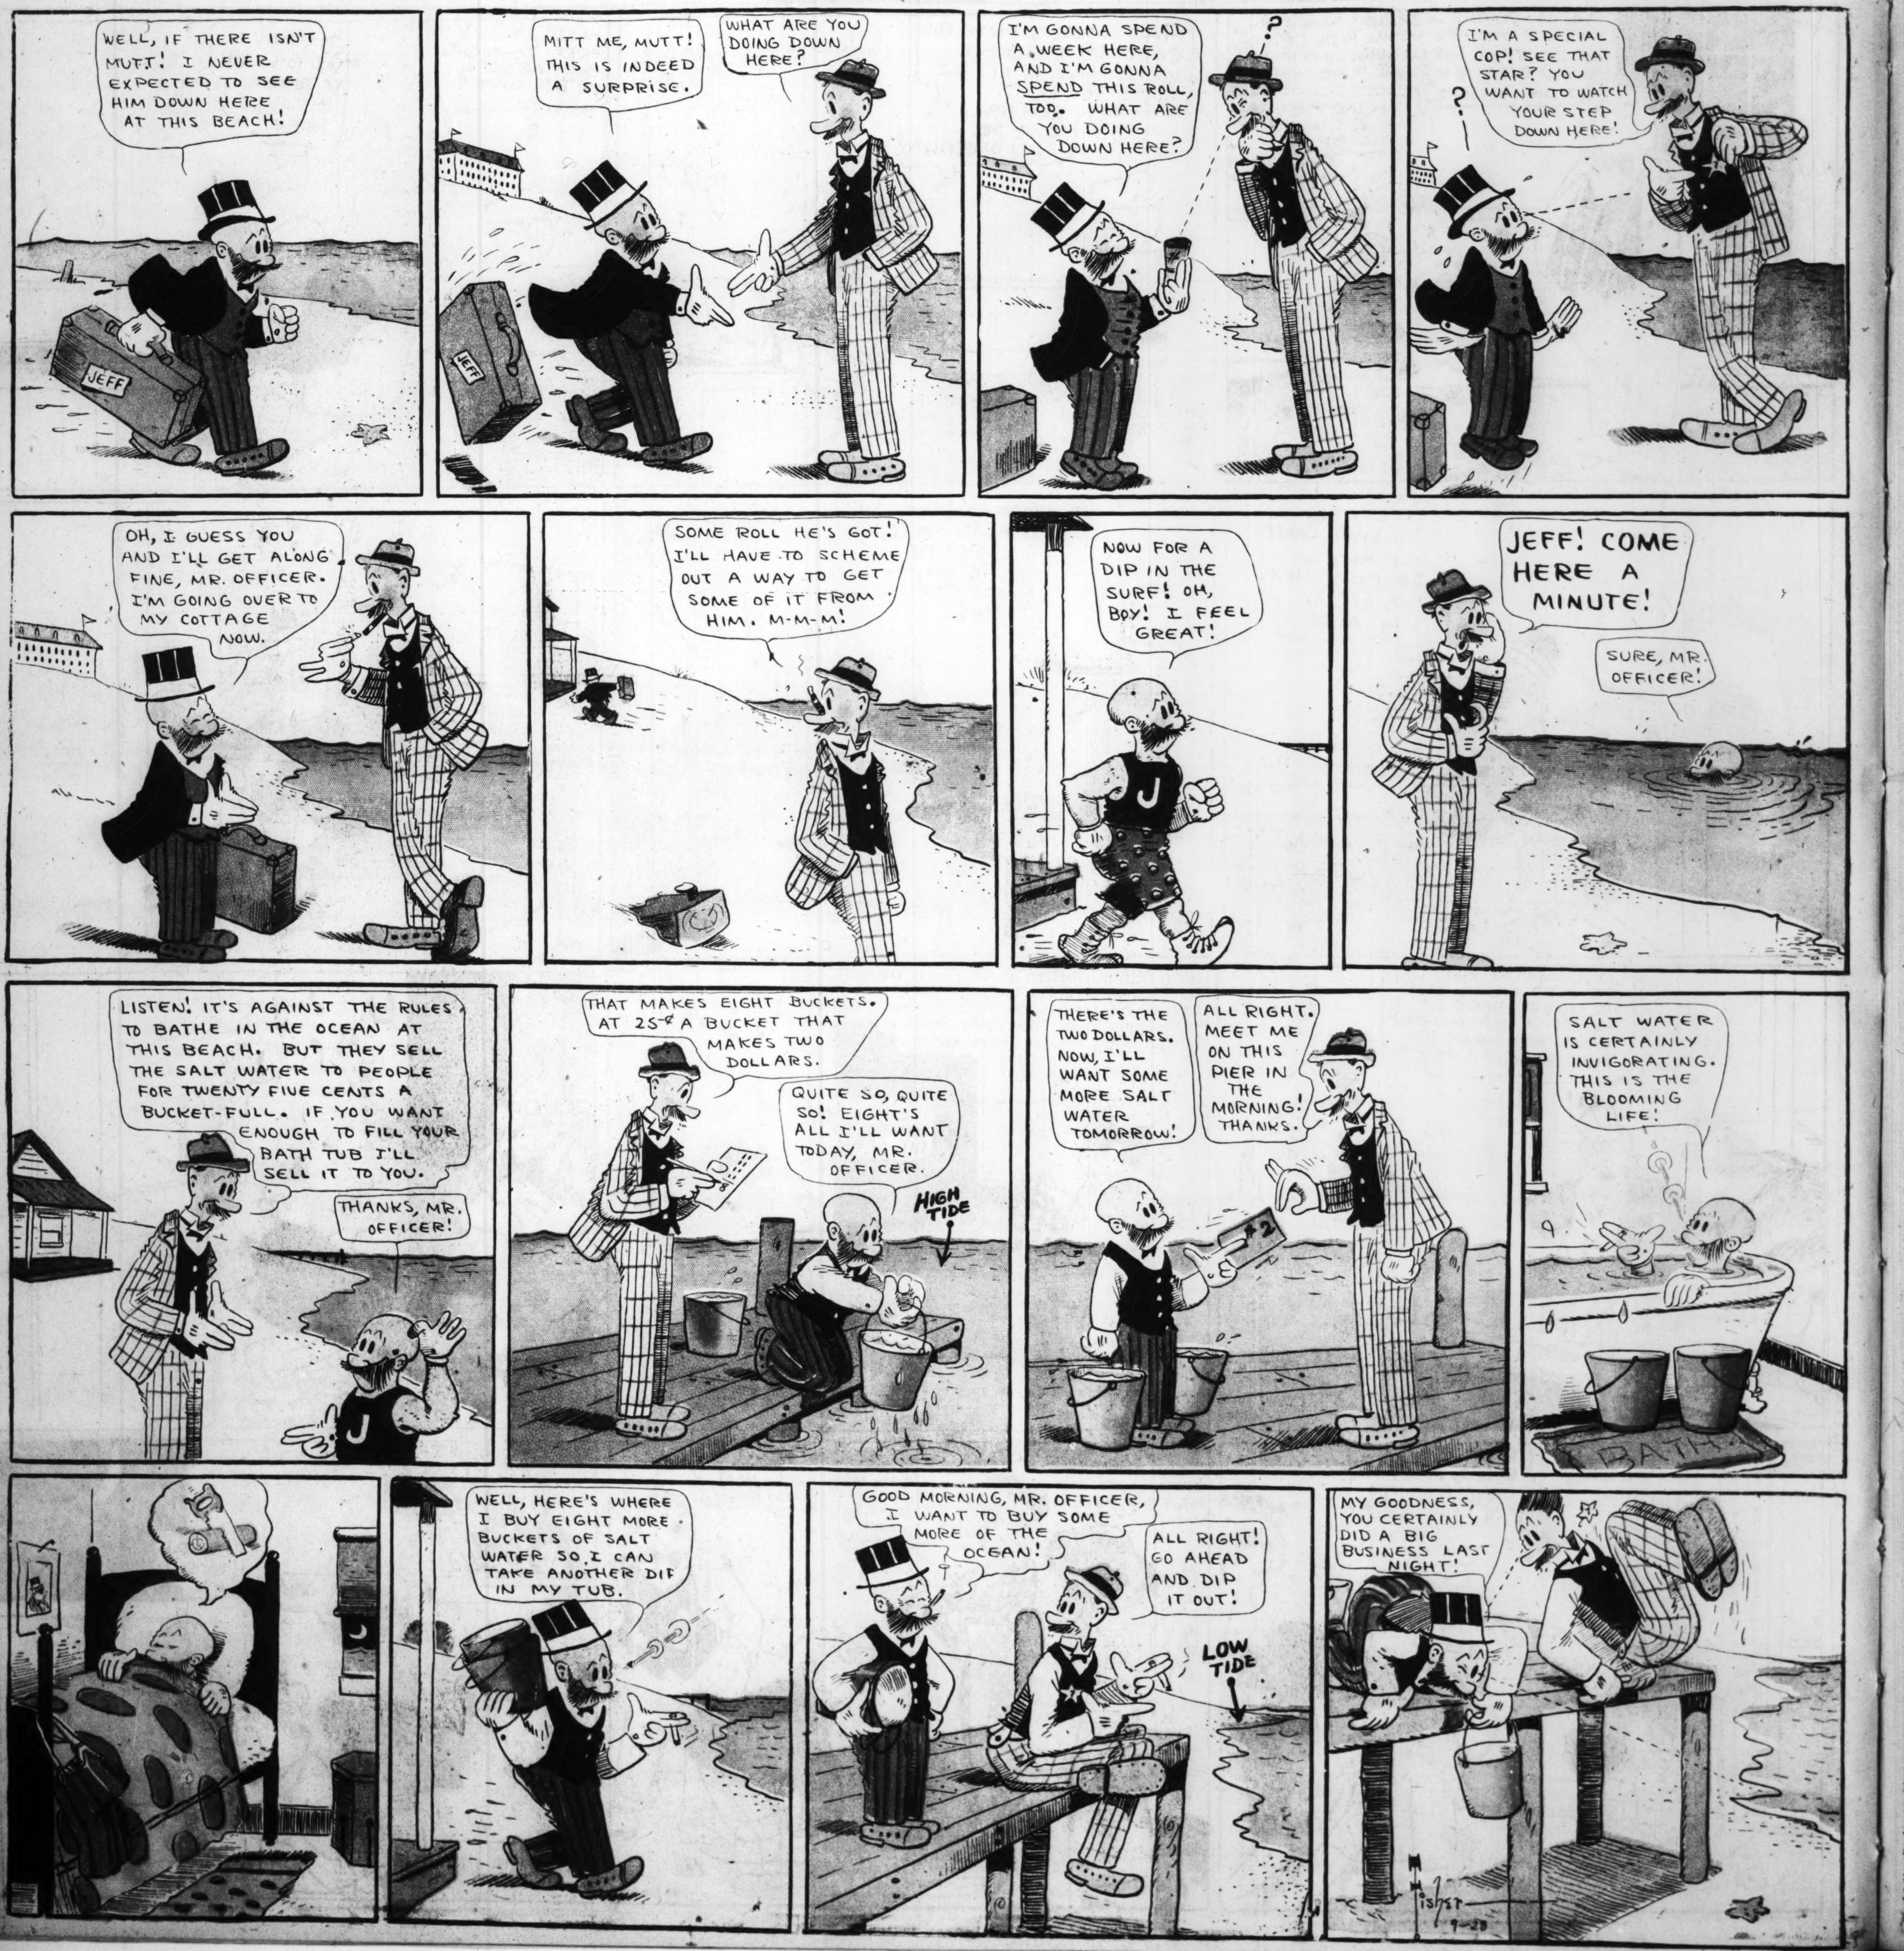
(Copyright, 1919, by H. C Fisher Trade Mark Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)



WELL, IF THERE ISN'T MUTT! I NEVER EXPECTED TO SEE HIM DOWN HERE AT THIS BEACH!
JEFF
MITT ME, MUTT! THIS IS INDEED A SURPRISE.
WHAT ARE YOU DOING DOWN HERE?
JEFF
I'M GONNA SPEND A WEEK HERE, AND I'M GONNA SPEND THIS ROLL, TOO. WHAT ARE YOU DOING DOWN HERE?
I'M A SPECIAL COP! SEE THAT STAR? YOU WANT TO WATCH YOUR STEP DOWN HERE!
OH, I GUESS YOU AND I'LL GET ALONG FINE, MR. OFFICER. I'M GOING OVER TO MY COTTAGE NOW.
SOME ROLL HE'S GOT! I'LL HAVE TO SCHEME OUT A WAY TO GET SOME OF IT FROM HIM. M-M-M!
NOW FOR A DIP IN THE SURF! OH, BOY! I FEEL GREAT!
J
JEFF! COME HERE A MINUTE!
SURE, MR. OFFICER!
LISTEN! IT'S AGAINST THE RULES TO BATHE IN THE OCEAN AT THIS BEACH. BUT THEY SELL THE SALT WATER TO PEOPLE FOR TWENTY FIVE CENTS A BUCKET-FULL. IF YOU WANT ENOUGH TO FILL YOUR BATH TUB I'LL SELL IT TO YOU.
THANKS, MR. OFFICER!
J
THAT MAKES EIGHT BUCKETS. AT 25¢ A BUCKET THAT MAKES TWO DOLLARS.
QUITE SO, QUITE SO! EIGHT'S ALL I'LL WANT TODAY, MR. OFFICER.
HIGH TIDE
THERE'S THE TWO DOLLARS. NOW, I'LL WANT SOME MORE SALT WATER TOMORROW!
ALL RIGHT. MEET ME ON THIS PIER IN THE MORNING! THANKS.
SALT WATER IS CERTAINLY INVIGORATING. THIS IS THE BLOOMING LIFE!
BATH
WELL, HERE'S WHERE I BUY EIGHT MORE BUCKETS OF SALT WATER SO I CAN TAKE ANOTHER DIP IN MY TUB.
GOOD MORNING, MR. OFFICER, I WANT TO BUY SOME MORE OF THE OCEAN!
ALL RIGHT! GO AHEAD AND DIP IT OUT!
LOW TIDE
MY GOODNESS, YOU CERTAINLY DID A BIG BUSINESS LAST NIGHT!
